$150,000 'Contract' Out On Kissinger, Paper Says

NEW YORK (AP) – A clique of Israeli right wingers has put out a $150,000 contract on the life of outgoing Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger, the New York Daily News reported Thursday.

"The money to hire one or more foreign hit men was reportedly paid in advance," the newspaper said in its Friday edition, crediting its information to anonymous high State Department officials.

U.S. officials declined to confirm or deny the Daily News report.

However, the officials said threats have been received against Kissinger, Vice President Nelson A. Rockefeller and Treasury Secretary William Simon. The officials, who did not wish to be identified, declined to give details about those threats.

The Secret Service is evaluating reported threats against Kissinger, State Department spokesman Robert Funseth said.

"The White House had asked for an assessment of threats against Kissinger's life after he leaves office Jan. 20," Funseth said. "This is the assessment that was discussed between the President and members of Congress the other day. As far as the nature of the threats – we are not discussing them."

There was no indication that Ford also would seek continuing Secret Service protection for Rockefeller or Simon.

Avi Pazner, spokesman for the Israeli embassy, said the Daily News report was the first time he had heard of an alleged threat.

The News account quoted an unnamed Kissinger aide as saying the $150,000 "was provided by a small, radical splinter factor within Israel's Likud opposition bloc, which opposed the Labor government's surrender of captured Arab territory in the interim agreements with Egypt and Syria.

"The motive was said to be revenge against Kissinger for allegedly selling out Israel during his Mideast shuttle diplomacy ...

"While Likud includes extreme right wingers who oppose any surrender of territory to the Arabs, it is regarded in Israel as a reputable opposition bloc working within the democratic system, a diplomat said."

The News said the unnamed diplomat suggested the plot could have been hatched by the Jewish Defense League, a militant, terrorist group active in Israel as well as the United States. But the U.S. official was said to have insisted the threat came from a group within Likud.

Top Anthony Campaign Donor Aiding In Probe

Robert G. LanFranco, whose $10,000 donation was the largest single contribution to Supervisor Philip Anthony's 1976 campaign, reportedly will cooperate with a district attorney's office investigation into the financing of the campaign.

LanFranco, a Costa Mesa building supply firm owner, confirmed Thursday he has contacted an attorney in connection with the probe but would not say whether he was in touch with a private attorney or the district attorney's office.

The probe is aimed at the part former district attorney's office informant Gene Conrad played in funneling funds into the Anthony campaign. Conrad has characterized himself as one of the campaign's financial angels.

Under investigation is whether Conrad pumped money into the campaign in the others' names, including officers of his loan brokerage, Pension Funds of America, (PFA) Irvine.

Anthony reportedly has contacted Dist. Atty. Cecil Hicks in an effort to cooperate.

LanFranco's business card was attached to a $10,000 cashier's check, delivered to the campaign offices. The check did not bare the purchaser's name.

The check was purchased at Irvine National Bank, which is located on the first floor of the building in which Pension Funds of America is based.

James Roosevelt, whose business is located in the same building as PFA, donated a $4,000 business check the day before the election.

Donald, in behalf of Conrad, has filed a $170 million suit in federal court against Hicks, Asst. Dist. Atty. Michael Capizzi and Gier, charging they illegally wiretapped Conrad's telephone for about two years.

Another donation expected to be examined by the district attorney is the $5,000 business check given by the Los Angeles attorney Frank J. Waters, a Corona del Mar resident.

Carter Calls For Summit Of West Nations

WASHINGTON (AP) – In a pre-inaugural flurry of telephone summitry, President-elect Carter talked to foreign leaders long-distance Thursday and set up an economic summit meeting of major non-Communist industrialized nations, probably in April.

The telephone calls, to President Valery Giscard d'Estaing of France, Prime Minister Helmut Schmidt of Germany, Prime Minister James Callaghan of Great Britain and Prime Minister Takeo Fukuda of Japan, interrupted a day of briefing for the President-elect and his top national security advisers by the Joint Chiefs of Staff.

Carter's secretary of state-designate, Cyrus Vance, said the President-elect's calls also dealt with Vice President-elect Walter F. Mondale's upcoming visit to those heads of government and with "ways to improve the consultation process between our countries."

Press Secretary Jody Powell said Carter invited the foreign leaders to this country and said the briefings included "discussion of possible trips during the first half of this year." He declined to be more specific.

Vance said he hopes the United States and the Soviet Union can reach a new SALT agreement, but added that the briefings "really didn't go into the Soviet military threat."

"My feeling is there's rough parity between the forces." Vance said.

Asked whether the briefings contained any sobering surprises, he replied: "No." He said pros and cons of the B1

ANCHORAGE, Alaska (AP) – Five persons were killed Thursday when a Japan Air Lines DC8 cargoliner carrying cattle crashed during a heavy fog shortly after takeoff from Anchorage International Airport Thursday, officials reported.

The wreckage of the plane, Flight 1045 from Moses Lake, Wash., to Tokyo, was scattered over a wooded square-mile area. Fires broke out in the wreckage and were still smoldering when rescuers arrived by snowmobile.

The cause of the crash was being investigated but Richard Jensen, the airport manager, said a maintenance man reported seeing the left wing of the four-engine jet dip before the plane plunged to the ground and disintegrated.

Three crewmen and two cargo agents, one of whom worked for the cattle company, Colorado International Exports, Inc., of Denver, were killed, officials said.

The names of the victims were not immediately released.

The 56 head of huge beef cattle were strewn over the crash site, less than a mile from Cook Inlet.

A spokesman for the National Transportation Safety Board said the flight recorder and voice recorder were recovered.

The plane was airborne for only a short time before it crashed.

Visibility at the time of the crash was a quarter-mile, well within legal takeoff minimums, officials said.

Traffic in and out of Anchorage International, a major stopping point for flights between the United States and the Orient on the Great Circle Route and between the Orient and Europe on the transpolar route, was halted for about 3½ hours.

The Federal Aviation Administration said one commercial flight inbound to Anchorage International diverted to nearby Elmendorf Air Force Base, while others held overhead until the civilian field was reopened.

In Moses Lake, Grant County Airport official David Bailey said the jet left there early Thursday morning on the long flight to Tokyo, with a stopover at Anchorage.

Both Sides Rest In Longet Trial

ASPEN, Colo. (AP) – The defense and prosecution rested their cases Thursday in the Claudine Longet manslaughter trial after less than a week of testimony in which the former showgirl swore she shot her lover by accident.

District Judge George Lohr scheduled closing arguments and legal instructions for this morning and said the case would be submitted to jurors shortly thereafter.

"I think it's best we start fresh tomorrow," he told the jury of seven men and five women. He spent the balance of the day with attorneys discussing final instructions.

Miss Longet's defense rested after calling only nine witnesses in two days – including the dark-haired defendant who was her own star witness.

The prosecution, which called 17 witnesses in two days, surprised a jammed courtroom by announcing it would present no rebuttal case.

In the final day of testimony, a ballistics expert testified that the gun which killed Miss Longet's lover could have fired without the trigger being pulled.

But the expert, Lama S. Martin, conceded in cross-examination his efforts to get the weapon to discharge without pulling the trigger were unsuccessful.

Martin testified as Miss Longet's lawyers tried to show the gun held by the singer-actress the night Vladmir "Spider" Sabich was killed fired accidentally. Miss Longet testified earlier she did not remember pulling the

Yoshimura Case Handed To Jury

OAKLAND, Calif. (AP) – The jury in Wendy Yoshimura's weapons possession trial began deliberations Thursday and asked to see more than 160 pieces of evidence, including a diary written by the defendant.

Alameda County Superior Court Judge Martin Pulich said the evidence was "mostly writings," including revolutionary literature, photographs and drawings. The jurors also asked to see one of the several weapons found in a garage Miss Yoshimura is accused of renting with revolutionary companions in 1972.

The jury made its request after about 3-1/2 hours of discussions, then adjourned shortly thereafter for the evening.

The judge agreed to send into the deliberation room a red spiral notebook containing a letter apparently intended for Miss Yoshimura's parents, who live in Fresno. The letter, read to the jury twice during the trial, told of the writer's dedication to social change in an "insane and unjust society."

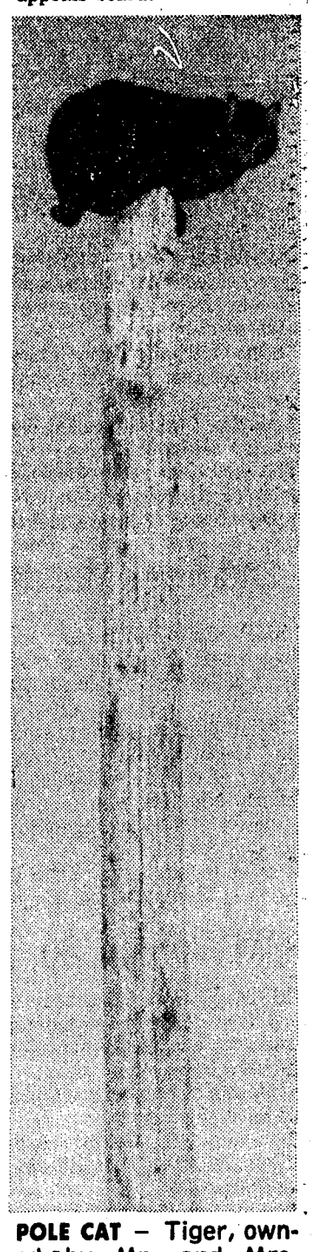

The judge stapled together pages of the diary that were not introduced as evidence and taped a note on the front instructing the jury not to open the closed pages.

Also requested by the jury were 24 photographs, several drawings and a six-page dossier on the Aspen, Colo., vacation home of former Defense Secretary Robert S. McNamara. Prosecutor Jeff Horner had argued that McNamara

Settlement Talks Mandated To Ease OC Court Backlog

By CHARLES ROBERTS
Register Staff Writer

SANTA ANA – Superior Court Presiding Judge Byron McMillan has begun a crash program of mandatory jury trial settlement conferences to clear some of the backlog of civil cases.

The new presiding judge announced the action Thursday as an effort to achieve early settlements without trial and reduce the 18-month waiting period for cases ready to go to trial.

On Dec. 31, 1976, McMillan said there were 5,102 cases ready to go to trial, an increase of more than 340 per cent in the backlog in just four years.

The first available jury trial date for cases ready to go to trial on Dec. 31, 1976 was in the middle of June 1978, nearly 18 months away.

McMillan said the problem is a "continued dramatic growth in the caseload" in Orange County Superior Court without a corresponding increase in the number of judges.

The crash program will require litigants in all jury civil cases with trial dates after Sept. 1, 1977, to participate in mandatory settlement conferences before receiving a new trial date.

McMillan said he anticipates that 30 per cent of the backlog can be disposed of in this manner, allowing the remaining cases to proceed to trial more quickly.

As outlined by the judge, settlement talks will be scheduled during the weeks of March 21-25, April 25-29, May 23-27, and June 20-24, 1977.

Each of twelve specially selected judges will be assigned two volunteer attorneys per day to sit as temporary judges for the purpose of conducting mandatory settlement conferences.

Nine conferences will be scheduled each morning and six each afternoon during settlement weeks. McMillan estimated that 900 cases could be handled weekly in this fashion with a projection of 270 cases each week being settled and taken off the court's calendar.

Where no settlement is reached, and the judge decides that the parties have shown a "good faith effort" to resolve the matter, the case will be given a trial date.

Attorneys and their clients will be required to attend, and those who do not attend or are not properly prepared will be liable for penalty fees, contempt citations or removal from the conference calendar without a trial date.

FBI Nabs Brinks Guard-Turned-Thief

SANTA FE, N.M. (AP) – A Brinks guard described by police as possibly the "greatest rip-off artist of all time" after he vanished with a half-million dollars in California nearly a year ago was arrested Thursday in New Mexico, the FBI reported.

Richard Charles Rees, a 27-year-old former Marine, was taken into custody by the FBI and state police at Villanueva, N.M., about 40 miles north of here, said FBI special agent Forrest Putman, in charge of the bureau's Albuquerque office.

Rees, who had been camping out in the area, was arrested without incident at a residence, Putman said. He had $400 cash in his possession, Putman said.

Rees, originally from Wellsboro, Pa., was jailed in Santa Fe, where he was to be arraigned Friday before a U.S. magistrate on federal charges of bank larceny.

Just last week the FBI was given a 17-page letter Rees sent to San Francisco newspaper columnist Herb Caen, who said the letter asked him to give it to federal authorities.

The FBI said they considered the letter, which described a high-rolling style of living since Rees disappeared, to be authentic.

The letter was postmarked Kansas City, Mo., and was the first word from Rees, who dropped from sight last Feb. 11 with $500,000 taken from a Brinks truck which had stopped at a restaurant in San Mateo, a San Francisco suburb.

Following the theft, a police sergeant said he "may be the greatest rip-off artist of all time." Rees was newly married, had no criminal record, and did his job unobtrusively.

"We can't think of another case where a single man, using no violence or weapons, escaped with such a large amount of untraceable cash," a police officer said.

In the letter, Rees described how he took the money out of bags, put it in a box and told the driver that he was selling a box of champagne to a girl in the restaurant.

"I put the box on a handcart and just walked away," the letter said. "I found a bush and got behind it. I waited there until after dark."

The letter described how Rees hid out for several weeks in California before taking a bus from Los Angeles to Ft. Worth, Tex., where he a met a woman he said "was later to be my downfall."

Rees, who left his wife and an ex-wife and daughter in California, said he spent close to $250,000 in Ft. Worth, Tex.

The woman, he said, "gave me three hit men to get rid of me ... she could have been set up for life, but she chose to have me hunted down."

After spending some time in Austin, Tex., where he met up with a girl "who later turned out to be a lesbian swinger and crazy," the letter said he headed for New Mexico almost broke.

"In the last 10 months I have spent more than the average man makes in a lifetime," the letter said. "Since my money has all but run out, I have changed to a lifestyle that uses little – or no – money. I guess I have sort of gone the way of the hippie. Of all the life styles I have been through, I like this one the best."

NEWS BRIEFS

Gilmore Chooses Five Witnesses

SALT LAKE CITY (AP) - Convicted killer Gary Mark Gilmore asked Thursday that his girl friend, his uncle, his two lawyers and the man who obtained rights to the convict's life story be witnesses to his Monday morning execution.

Ronald Stanger, his attorney, said Gilmore declined to request, as was his legal right, two clergymen to view the execution.

Gilmore asked that his girl friend, Nicole Barrett, 20; his uncle, Vern DAmico; attorneys Robert L. Moody and Stanger, and Lawrence Schiller, serve as the five witnesses he is allowed by state law to name.

Miss Barrett, a 20 year-old divorcee and mother of two children, was committed by her mother to a state mental institution in Provo after joining Gilmore in what was an apparent unsuccessful suicide pact Nov. 16.

She has since been ordered by a judge to remain at Utah State Hospital under doctors' care and Stanger said it is unlikely she would be allowed to view the execution.

DAmico, a Provo shoe repairman, has visited Gilmore on several occsions at the Utah State Prison.

Stanger said he and Moody would probably attend the execution, but added, "I haven't thought about it. It seems not the place to be, to be honest with you."

However, he said that if DAmico asked that he and Moody attend, they probably would. "That might be the persuading thing," he said.

Texas Judge OKs TV Executions

DALLAS (AP) - A federal judge in Texas on Thursday gave television crews permission to film executions. But the U.S. Supreme Court was asked to stay an execution scheduled next week because televising it would go beyond the bounds of decency.

Jay Topkis, an attorney for Jerry Lane Jurek, asked the high court to consider blocking the execution on four grounds, including a belief that a public, televised execution was inconsistent "with evolving standards of decency as required" by the Constitution.

Jurek, convicted of murdering a 10-year-old girl in 1973, is scheduled to die Wednesday in what would be the first execution in Texas since 1964.

Ford Gives Kissinger Medal

WASHINGTON (AP) - President Ford called Henry A. Kissinger the "greatest secretary of state in the history of our republic" and presented him with the Medal of Freedom, the nation's highest civilian award, Thursday night.

"He has a record of unprecedented scope and enormous accomplishment," Ford said in making the surprise presentation at a reception the Washington diplomatic corps gave for the outgoing secretary of state.

The German-born Kissinger, obviously pleased, said, "The highest civilian decoration of my adopted country is something I will always treasure."

French Protest U.S. Criticism

PARIS (AP) - The French government formally protested on Thursday against U.S. criticism of its release of Palestinian leader Abu Daoud, accused of masterminding the attack on Israeli athletes at the 1972 Munich Olympics.

Daoud, in a telephone interview with the Toronto Star from Al Fatah headquarters in Algiers, claimed he played no part in the Munich massacre. He said he expects Israeli agents will try to assassinate him and he is ready "to die for my cause."

The Palestinian revolutionary also claimed in the interview that an officer who arrested him last Friday was an Israeli secret agent.

Teng Reported Named Premier

HONG KONG (AP) - Teng Hsiao-ping has been restored to favor and named premier of the Red Chinese government, a Hong Kong Chinese language newspaper reported Thursday. It quoted unconfirmed reports circulating at Canton, the nearby metropolis of south China.

The Ming Pao, politically independent, quoted an arriving traveler from Canton as saying that a Communist official reported that Teng's appointment was contained in "an internal document" from Peking and that Teng has already started his duties as premier.

The newspaper said the traveler reported that an official announcement of the appointment will be made late this month.

Bay Area Grocery Strike Nears

CONCORD (AP) - Last-minute negotiations were called today by federal mediators attempting to avoid a midnight strike by 17,000 grocery store clerks in eight San Francisco Bay area counties.

Federal mediator Jerry Finley said, "There are some major differences that pose some major problems. In one word, it's bleak."

Finley said talks he called Wednesday produced no progress toward a settlement.

The AFL-CIO retail Clerks International Association said seven of its locals planned to strike over the refusal of employers to give them equal treatment with butchers.

2nd Black Marine Pleads Guilty

CAMP PENDLETON (AP) - The second black Marine of 14 charged with assaulting whites pleaded guilty Thursday, saying his group tried to "do something" about the Ku Klux Klan.

"I wore utilities (uniform) and had a stocking cap over my face," testified Cpl. Dean Edwards, 20, of Bay St. Colfax, La.

A jury of officers was being picked to determine Edwards' sentence after his plea to a charge of assault. Charges of conspiracy and assault likely to produce grievous bodily harm were dropped.

CM Woman, 20, Slain In Bathtub

COSTA MESA — The body of a 20-year-old waitress was found face down in the bathtub at her residence here and police said an autopsy indicates that she was strangled and drowned.

The death of Robyn Lynn Cox is a mystery to police who said they have no suspects.

Her body was discovered by her roommate Carla Jean Rhoden, 24, when Miss Rhoden returned from work at 6:15 p.m. Wednesday.

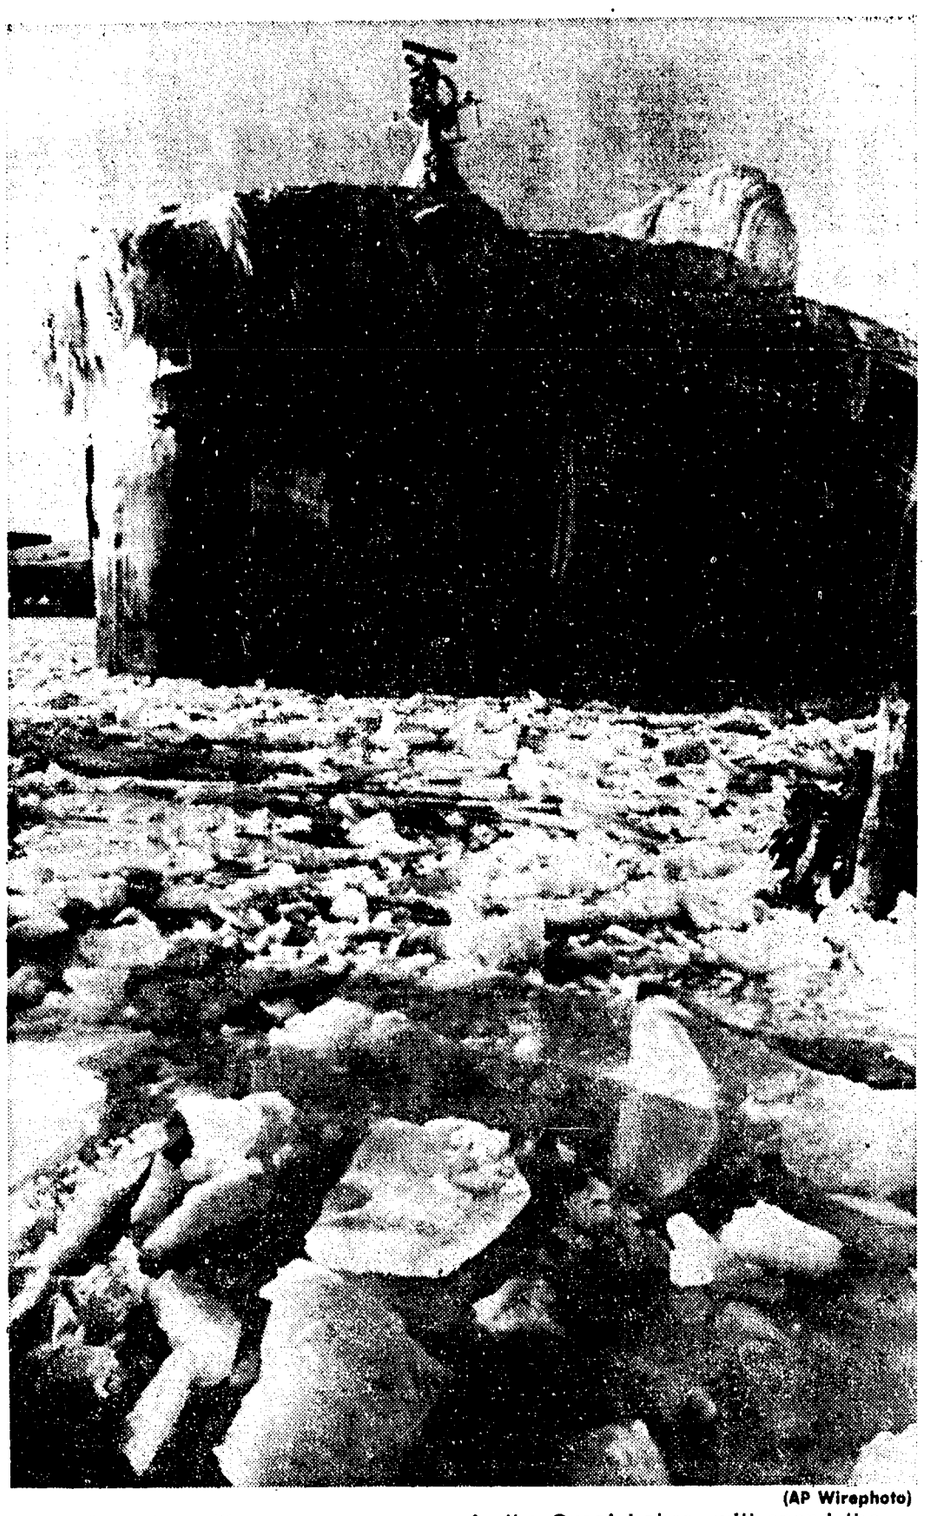

Miss Rhoden ran to neighbors for help upon finding her dead friend, said investigators. Detectives found no signs of a struggle and no motives for the killing are known.

Industrialist Seized In Italy

GENOA, Italy (AP) - Kidnapers have seized Piero Costa, one of Italy's wealthiest industrialists, police said Thursday.

They said Costa, 42, was grabbed and dragged into a car as he walked home from his office Wednesday night.

Costa is an heir to an empire ranging from shipping lines and shipyards to textile and oil industries, hotels and real estate.

AN ICY TRIP — The tug-barge bulk carrier, Presque Isle, was covered with ice when it arrived in the ice-strewn Port of Milwaukee Wednesday. The 1,000-foot vessel, largest in the Great Lakes, will spend the rest of the winter berthed as unusually bitter cold weather may cause Lake Michigan to freeze shore to shore for the first time since 1963.

Sawhill Urges U.S. To Enter Oil Business

WASHINGTON (AP) - President John C. Sawhill of New York University suggested Thursday that the federal government enter the oil business by buying crude from producing countries to help build a national stockpile.

Sawhill, former federal energy administrator, made the proposal in advocating that Congress "begin immediately to analyze how a government-run oil company might work."

He said this should be done by studying the experience of existing agencies in Canada, Italy and Great Britain, then starting on a limited scale. "The fact is, none of us are really going to know until we try," he said.

The idea was discounted by another witness before a Senate-House economic subcommittee on energy, President H. G. Kaufmann of Exxon Corp. He said "direct government involvement in the commercial operations of the industry is neither necessary nor desirable."

Kaufmann said it is desirable for the government to acquire oil for its strategic reserves, but said that federal moves to buy and distribute crude would result in a bureaucratic nightmare.

Kaufmann and Sawhill, who headed the federal energy program in the final year of the Nixon administration, testified at hearings by the subcommittee on what the nation should do about escalating prices of oil from the Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries (OPEC).

Prof Testifies At Ship Hearing

LONG BEACH (AP) - A chemical engineering professor who specializes in the study of explosions said Thursday that the ventilation system of the shattered oil tanker Sansinena was riddled with holes that could conduct flames into the ship's cargo tanks.

Dr. Jerry Havens, who is on leave from the University of Arkansas to assist the Coast Guard, told a Coast Guard board of inquiry that he inspected the remains of the devastated 810-foot Liberian tanker which exploded Dec. 17 in Los Angeles harbor after unloading crude oil from Indonesia.

ZOO ALLIGATOR MUGGED; BLOWS MAY PROVE FATAL

LOS ANGELES (AP) - For the second time in two weeks, Methuselah has been hit in the eye with a metal pipe. The shock of the attacks, plus the seriousness of his latest injury, may cost the old alligator at the Los Angeles Zoo his life.

According to zoo officials, Methuselah was just lying there in a pool of water, as alligators do, when a teen-age zoo visitor decided he'd like to see more action.

The young man reportedly fetched a five-foot metal pipe used to turn on water valves and jabbed Methuselah in the left eye, right where the leathery old gent had been hit the week before by an unknown assailant.

Then the alligator mugger threw the pipe at Methuselah, hitting him again, whereupon a bystander who couldn't stand it any more made a citizen's arrest.

The bystander's name was being withheld by police, but they report 19-year-old Jorge Cardenas was booked on a misdemeanor charge of cruelty to animals. He is being held on $500 bond.

Methuselah has been tranquilized and is still lying in his pool. Zoo Dr. Warren Thomas said Methuselah may lose his eye, maybe even his life.

There was no word on whether there would be an operation. Methuselah, 11 feet long, isn't going to be the most cooperative patient, Thomas said.

Grand Jury Blasts Camarillo Hospital

VENTURA (AP) - The grand jury that indicted eight Camarillo State Hospital employes in patient deaths Thursday issued a report criticizing the facility for a lack of qualified nursing care, weak leadership and the "ominous" overuse of drugs.

The result of a three-week investigation last November into unexplained patient deaths, the report included a list of specific recommendations. Without better care, said the report, "there is just pretense and the facility becomes only a warehouse with warehouse staff."

The nine-page report also reaffirmed the jury's belief that all eight persons indicted - three doctors and five psychiatric technicians - had "crossed the line into gross negligence and criminal behavior." Ventura County Dist. Atty. C. Stanley Trom has, however, dismissed charges against four of the eight.

Camarillo's executive director, Clinton Rust, responded to the report by saying "we appreciate their suggestions and we agree with many if not all of them...we are on the same wave length."

Rust, who took over the post Nov. 1 and thus was not director during the four years covered in the jury's probe, said action had already been taken in many areas mentioned in the report.

A total of 54 cases of unexplained deaths were presented to the 16-member jury by the district attorney's office, which carried out an investigation lasting more than a year.

"No part of this investigation seems more ominous than the use of drugs," said the report. "The evidence discloses what we believe to be the general indiscriminate use of (tranquilizer) drugs."

Rust said that Camarillo physicians had been ordered to stop prescribing psychotropic drugs in combinations, and that a pharmacology training course for physicians had been given.

The most serious deficiency at the hospital "seems to be the need for real quality nursing care," said the report.

Gov. Brown has approved the hiring of an additional 700 nursing personnel at the 11 state mental hospitals, and Rust said about 93 of them would be hired for Camarillo. In addition, said the administrator, Camarillo has begun an "aggressive" recruitment program.

"We note a lack of real, formal leadership and direction," said the report, "and we are not impressed with the administration at the hospital as it has unfolded in the testimony. There seems to be no plan, controls, feedback or evaluation."

Rust said an Office of Program Review has already been directed to suggest steps for improvement.

Rust spoke in an interview in which he said the hospital's one-year certification by a national accreditation agency had run out and the hospital had not yet applied for a new one.

Dummar Admits Delivering Hughes Will, Lawyer Says

LOS ANGELES (AP) - Former Utah gas station owner Melvin Dummar has admitted delivering to the Mormon Church a purported Howard Hughes will naming him as one of the beneficiaries, an attorney said Thursday.

Dummar supposedly made the admission Wednesday in Ogden, Utah, during a lengthy "grilling session" with Harold Rhoden, an attorney who represents former Hughes aide Noah Dietrich. Dietrich was named executor of Hughes' massive estate in the so-called "Mormon will."

Although the way the will reached the church headquarters in Salt Lake City may be in question, the document might nonetheless be authentic.

All four handwriting experts who told him Dummar wrote the address on the outer envelope left at the church also told him Hughes wrote the will, Rhoden said.

George Handy, attorney for Dummar, defended his client: "Mr. Dummar, out of all the grilling we put him through, and it was very harsh and unkind, denies that he wrote the will, had anything to do with the writing of the will and does not know who wrote the will."

Rhoden, who said he has been trying to prove the will is authentic, said he asked for the session after "my own handwriting experts told me Dummar wrote that envelope."

Dummar gave several stories as to how he got the will, Rhoden said.

"I didn't believe him and told him so," Rhoden said. "He's not ready to tell the truth about how he got it."

Dummar also admitted that his fingerprints would probably be all over the will because he had steamed open the inner envelope and read it, Rhoden said.

One month ago, it was revealed in court that Dummar's fingerprint had been found on the outer envelope. At first he denied ever handling it, and suggested the print was planted.

Rhoden said Dummar told him he wore ordinary clothes and was undisguised when he took the will to the Mormon Church headquarters about three weeks after Hughes died last April.

The will was in a sealed envelope, and Dummar said he put that envelope in a church envelope, which he then addressed to church President Spencer Kimball and left with a secretary.

Dummar ran a gas station when the will, giving him one-sixteenth of the billionaire's estate, turned up. Dummar claimed he had picked up an old man in the Nevada desert one night and had given him a ride to Las Vegas. The man said he was Hughes, Dummar said.

Dummar, now unemployed because a freeway bypassed his station, held to his story of the man in the desert during the questioning Wednesday, Rhoden said.

Rhoden said Dummar has agreed to take the witness stand in Las Vegas, Nev., where the will was filed for probate.

The attorney said he was awaiting FBI tests on the authenticity of the will.

Yoshimura Case

"was targeted for some sort of action by revolutionaries."

The panel also asked to see documents Miss Yoshimura allegedly used in establishing several aliases.

The case went to the eight-woman, four-man panel after Pulich urged jurors to be cautious in considering Miss Yoshimura's associations with fellow fugitives Patricia Hearst and Symbionese Liberation Army members William and Emily Harris.

"You are not to consider any event or alleged crimes which may have occurred during the time these people were together," said Pulich. "You may consider Miss Yoshimura's flight from prosecution only in relation to her guilt or innocence to the charges for which she is on trial."

Pulich spent about an hour outlining points of law he said the jury should consider in reaching a verdict on charges that Miss Yoshimura possessed a cache of weapons and bombmaking devices.

The panel began its deliberations shortly before noon, took 90 minutes off for lunch and then resumed its discussions. Pulich said he did not intend to sequester the jury overnight.

Her attorney, James Larson, conceded Miss Yoshimura rented the Berkeley garage where the arsenal was discovered on March 31, 1972. The defendant's boy friend, William Brandt, and two other men were arrested at the garage.

Miss Yoshimura, who will be 34 on Monday, said she was never aware of the garage's contents. She was captured with Miss Hearst and the Harrises on Sept. 18, 1975 and is free on $25,000 bail.

Sixty-two witnesses, 59 of them for the prosecution, testified during the 13-week trial. More than 350 items, most of them articles from the garage, were introduced as evidence.

Miss Yoshimura spent a full day on the witness stand recounting her personal history and denying any participation in terrorist movements.

However, the judge ordered all of her testimony stricken when she refused to answer any questions about her life after dropping out of sight shortly after the police raid on the garage.

Miss Yoshimura was cited on contempt of court charges five times. Pulich delayed disposition of the charges until a verdict, however.

Miss Yoshimura was charged in a four-count grand jury indictment accusing her of possessing an explosive, a machine gun, materials with the intent of making a destructive device with the intent of injuring people or destroying property.

If convicted on all counts, Miss Yoshimura could be sentenced to a minimum of five years in prison.

Heroin Trade Public Service? Police Say No

NEW YORK (AP) - Isaac Michael Webb had the world on a string, and at the same time he thought he was performing a public service. The police thought not.

Authorities said Webb, 39, was carrying on a lively heroin trade by lowering a tin can on a string from the fifth-floor window of his Brooklyn apartment.

The district attorney's office quoted Webb as saying after his apartment was raided:

"I'm performing a public service by selling to people who otherwise would be potential violent criminals."

When investigators from Dist. Atty. Eugene Gold's office first raided Webb's apartment last September, they said they found "tons" of tape recorders, movie cameras, color television sets, coins and jewelry, as well as four handguns and two ounces of heroin.

The larger items, the investigators said, were carried into the apartment the conventional way. But the smaller stuff, they said, would be put in the lowered tin can, which Webb then hauled up through the window.

After removing the contributions, they said, he would lower the can again with a heroin fix for the donor.

Webb was released on low bail after that raid, but Tuesday night detectives searched the apartment again. They said they found two more ounces of heroin, lots more merchandise, and a sawed-off shotgun.

This time Webb was held on $100,000 bail.

"I'm glad I've been arrested," he was quoted as saying. "I need a vacation."

Three Bodies Found In Camp

FT. LEONARD WOOD, Mo. (AP) - The Army said the bodies of two young men and a young woman were found in a remote part of this military camp Thursday after a search was started on a tip from the sheriff's office at Waynesville.

The Pulaski County Sheriff's Department said it was called after a motorist picked up a young woman who staggered out of the woods on the military reservation Thursday morning and took her to the Pulaski County Hospital in Waynesville.

She had been shot twice.

Sheriff's officers quoted her as saying she and three other young people were walking on a road at Ft. Leonard Wood Wednesday night when they were stopped by what appeared to be a military police vehicle. She said she and her companions were told to get inside the vehicle and were driven to a remote area.

trigger.

Martin said he examined the .22-caliber pistol and found the inner mechanism "covered with a sticky, greasy residue" which could have caused it to fire accidentally.

James Lillstrom, who followed Martin to the stand, told how the entertainer once threw a glass at Sabich in a bar to catch his attention.

But Lillstrom, who declared, "Spider was the best friend that I've ever had," refused to cast Miss Longet in a negative light. Of the glass-throwing incident in 1972, he said, "Spider and I had a good laugh over it, a chuckle. We thought it was a pretty good prank."

The incident came at the start of a four-year love affair between the champion skier and the former showgirl. The affair ended last March 21 with the shooting at their mountainside chalet.

Miss Longet's former husband, singer Andy Williams, and actor Jack Nicholson were among the spectators in the courtroom.

Miss Longet, 35, who testified Wednesday, contended the 31-year-old Sabich was killed by accident when a gun she was holding "just went off." She said she loved him to the last.

Lillstrom, a former professional skier who now works for a ski equipment company, said he saw evidence of that love. His wife, Jeanne, had testified earlier the two couples were together at a ski race the weekend before Sabich died.

"We skiied together all that weekend," Lillstrom said. Sabich, who had been plagued with injuries, did not qualify for the ski race.

"We discussed his relationship with Claudine," said Lillstrom. "I can remember his words ... when I asked ... how things were going. His reply to that question was that things were just fine, that, 'We've really got it all worked out.'"

Later, Lillstrom said, he concluded from seeing them together that "they were getting along very well ... as well or better than anytime since I'd known them."

Miss Longet, who has three children by her marriage to Williams, moved into Sabich's luxury home in this ski village in 1974. She and Williams were divorced last year, but he has comforted her since the shooting and testified in her defense this week.

Martin agreed with a prosecution expert that the gun's safety mechanism was inoperable. But he challenged the other witnesses's conclusion that the fatal shot was fired from four to six feet away.

Martin said his tests showed "the furthest the gun could have been is slightly less than three feet away."

Miss Longet said she was standing with Sabich in a small bathroom asking his instructions on how to use the weapon when it went off.

bomber were discussed, "but not at great length."

A French spokesman declined to comment when asked if Carter had spoken to Giscard d'Estaing about France's release of Abu Daoud, the Palestinian terrorist accused of masterminding the 1972 Olympics massacre in Munich. The action had aroused criticism from the U.S. and a subsequent response from France.

The briefings, concentrating on U.S. military might around the world, lasted about 10 hours - twice as long as scheduled.

A Carter spokesman said this was because of an inaccurate estimate of how long the discussion would take and because there was "a great deal of very good and informative exchange" on the deployment and capabilities of U.S. forces.

The briefings also dealt with the Strategic Arms Limitation Talks, but this took up only about 30 minutes of the session, the spokesman said.

FANTASY IN ICE – Bubbling water shaped by cold, hard winds, formed some artistic pillars of ice at a waste treatment plant in Marshall, Minn. Despite the icing problem, the plant continues to operate normally.

Eastern Waterway Traffic Frozen To Near Standstill

By The Associated Press

Ship and barge traffic moved at a crawl or not at all Thursday in the ice-jammed Great Lakes, the Mississippi and Ohio rivers and on other waterways in the Midwest and East usually navigable in January.

Lake Erie was almost completely frozen and Lake Michigan stood a good chance of freezing over for only the fourth time this century as earlier-than-usual buildups of ice were reported.

Two oil barges carrying about 800,000 gallons of oil were stuck in ice or aground Thursday in the upper Chesapeake Bay, where traffic came to a near standstill due to ice up to a foot thick.

"The whole area is freezing in," said a spokesman at the Coast Guard's 5th District headquarters in Portsmouth, Va.

The coast guard in Baltimore said it had sent a cutter to assist a third barge, carrying telephone poles, which was sinking as it drifted with the ice. The cutter was also stuck briefly in the ice.

Unusually heavy ice also was blamed for an 18,000-gallon kerosene spill from a Hudson River tanker-barge south of Albany, N.Y.

In Portland, Maine, the second largest oil port on the East Coast, the Coast Guard said its cutter Yankton was called out to clear the harbor of ice, which appeared several weeks early this year.

The Coast Guard halted traffic along 20 miles of the Mississippi on Thursday morning near Cape Girardeau, Mo., when a collapsing ice dam separated 11 barges from a towboat. At noon, eight barges were back under tow, two were aground and one was missing and believed sunk.

A coast guard spokesman in St. Louis said the river would remain closed until the missing barge was located.

Barge traffic was also slowed on the Ohio, Allegheny and Monongahela rivers. On the Monongahela, the Army Corps of Engineers Chief, Col. Max R. Janairo, said ice was causing trouble at locks and dams just below Morgantown, W.Va. He said ice was making it difficult to close the locks.

In Pittsburgh, F.A. Mechling, president of Union-Mechling Corp., the nation's third largest barge line, said ice has seriously hampered barge traffic. The firm's 18 towboats and 700 barges operate between the Great Lakes and New Orleans and Pittsburgh.

"We haven't seen conditions this bad since 1962-63," he said.

"There's bad ice gorging between St. Louis and Cairo, Ill., and there are a number of boats trapped in there."

In Detroit, Coast Guard officials said they didn't know how much longer navigation could continue on the Great Lakes, which stayed open for shipping year-round for the first time last year.

The western third of Lake Superior was ice-covered, according to the agency's ice monitoring station in Cleveland. The station said southern Lake Michigan was frozen for 36 miles offshore and the shallower Lake Erie was virtually frozen over.

"We've spotted a couple of open areas on Lake Erie, but not many," a spokesman said. "I would say it's 98 to 99 per cent frozen over."

It was minus 8 degrees Thursday morning in Detroit and the Weather Bureau said this is the coldest Detroit winter this century.

Lake Michigan was reported to have frozen over in the winters of 1912 and 1936. However, the only officially recorded freeze was in 1963 when a Milwaukee weather bureau official flew across the lake and found no open water between Milwaukee and Muskegon, Mich.

Assembly In Sex Battle Over A 'Waddayacallit'

SACRAMENTO (AP) – The California Assembly voted Thursday to take the sex out of its legislation, but the battle is not over.

Assemblywoman Maxine Waters, D-Los Angeles, won a 48-27 vote for a resolution that would give all members of the Assembly the title "Assembly Member" on bills they introduce, eliminating the titles "Assemblyman" and "Assemblywoman."

But a male colleague, Republican William Craven of Oceanside, blocked final adoption of the resolution by a parliamentary maneuver seeking reconsideration next week.

It was Ms. Waters' second try at changing the titles given legislators on bills. After extensive debate she pleaded, "I do consider that the resolution I am offering is a serious one. I would respectfully ask my colleagues to take it seriously."

After the first vote on her measure came up 38-28, three short of the 41-vote majority required, she told reporters, "It's just a correction of language. I guess the problem is some of the men want to be called assemblymen."

Assemblyman Jerry Lewis, R-Highland, challenged the change: "How are you going to go? Are you going to try to amend the state Constitution every place where it says 'assemblyman?' " he asked.

Assemblyman Howard Berman, D-Beverly Hills, replied the legislature already did that two years ago, substituting "Member of the Assembly."

Assemblyman William Dannemeyer, R-Fullerton, told Ms. Waters, "I can see how you as a lady don't want to be referred to as an assemblyman. Now you seek to take the masculinity out of my title."

Ms. Waters, one of five women in the 80-member Assembly, attempted a few days after she took office last month to change rules on titles.

In past years, the titles "Assemblyman" and "Assemblywoman" were used on bills, but when male and female legislators coauthored a bill, they carried the common title "Assemblymen."

In December, the Assembly adopted her proposal to use "Assembly Members" for male and female coauthors, and retain "Assemblyman" and "Assemblwoman" in other cases.

But a day after that resolution was adopted, the rule change was repealed.

Senate Panel OKs Brown As Defense Chief

WASHINGTON (AP) – Harold Brown, who headed the Air Force at the height of the Vietnam war, was approved by the Senate Armed Services Committee Thursday to be secretary of defense.

The committee's unanimous vote sent the nomination to the full Senate, which is expected to overwhelmingly confirm Brown after President-elect Carter takes office on Jan. 20.

The committee also recommended confirmation of Charles W. Duncan Jr., a Houston millionaire, as deputy secretary, the No. 2 position in the Pentagon.

Chairman John C. Stennis, D-Miss., said the committee agreed to relax one of its rules and allow Duncan to keep his $12 million to $13 million worth of Coca-Cola stock, even though the company does business with the Pentagon.

Brown, 49, told the committee earlier in the week that the Carter administration will stick to its goal of cutting the defense budget. But he cautioned against any expectation that as much as $7 billion could be lopped off the record $123 billion budget that President Ford plans to send Congress next week.

South's Black Leaders Back Bell Nomination

WASHINGTON (AP) – Southern black leaders split with their Northern colleagues Thursday to endorse the nomination of Griffin Bell, a white lawyer influential throughout Georgia during the desegregation turmoil, to be attorney general.

"It hurts me to have to come here and say anything contrary to the NAACP. But I can't sit there and let them degrade Judge Bell," declared James E. McKinney, a black Georgia state representative who said he owes his political success to the NAACP's decades of struggle for black rights.

That was the tone of the third day of the Senate Judiciary Committee's hearings on the Bell nomination.

Clarence Mitchell, Washington lobbyist for the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People, on Wednesday put the organization on record against Bell on grounds that he worked against racial equality in the 1950s and has shown no sign of reform.

McKinney joined the president of the Atlanta NAACP, another longtime black leader in Atlanta and the black mayor of Prichard, Ala., in supporting Bell.

Warren Cochrane, executive secretary of the Atlanta Negro Voters League in the 1950s, said Bell urged the group "to go slow" on school desegregation but worked to calm segregationist passions in the state administration.

GRIFFIN BELL Meets Panel

"The one thing in Judge Bell's favor that made me come up here and testify is that he kept us informed every step of the way about what was happening" in the administration of segregationist Gov. Ernest Vandiver, Cochrane said.

Vandiver took office in January 1959 after campaigning on a promise that he would rather go to jail than see the schools integrated.

Bell was a legal adviser to Vandiver. Cochrane said Bell initiated meetings with the voters league soon after Vandiver was elected.

"There was an effort to get us to go slow to buy time until we could work things out, to hold off any massive action such as lawsuits," Cochrane said.

He said the black leaders were considering filing school desegregation suits but didn't have enough money to do it right away.

The lawsuit which brought about desegregation of Atlanta schools had been filed by the NAACP almost a year earlier and was pending.

"We never accepted segregation," Cochrane insisted. "We tolerated it until we could work things out without the violence and death we had seen over and over again in Georgia."

Asked if he considered Bell "to be a force for segregation," he replied, "I would say he was somewhere in the middle."

Cochrane was the first of several Georgia black leaders speaking in Bell's support as the committee conducted its third day of hearings.

He said he would trust Bell to be a fair attorney general "as I will trust any Southerner now almost before any Northerner."

The President of the Atlanta branch of the NAACP, Lonnie King, split with the organization's national leaders to join in support of Bell.

"Many people are applying 1977 standards of morality to 1959 conditions," King said.

A. Jay Cooper Jr., black mayor of Prichard, Ala., said he has found Bell to be "one of the most intelligent and thoughtful judges" on the 5th U.S. Circuit Court in New Orleans. Cooper, as a private attorney, represented blacks in desegregation cases before Bell.

"The refusal of an appellate court judge ... to extend legal theories to the outer limits desired by civil rights lawyers cannot be interpreted to mean automatically the judge is either hostile or racist," Cooper said.

"He was a judge who treated black lawyers with dignity and respect," he continued. "We must move beyond the past if there is to be a biracial future for America. Judge Bell ... is committed to working toward that biracial future."

Two civil rights leaders testifying against Bell said the Georgian's continued membership in three social clubs which exclude blacks demonstrates his failure to recognize the rights of racial minorities.

ACCEPTS FELLOWSHIP

Ford Plans Sessions At Yale University

WASHINGTON (AP) – President Ford will take part in a series of classes and informal meetings with students and faculty at Yale University early next month, the White House announced Thursday.

A spokesman said Ford, who leaves office a week from today, has accepted a Visiting Chubb Fellowship at the university's Timothy Dwight College and will be on the campus Feb. 6-8.

Ford will participate in a series of meetings with history and law classes, informal sessions with students and discussions with faculty members.

The Chubb Fellowship program, which was established in 1936, is devoted to encouraging and aiding students interested in the operations of government and public service careers.

Previous fellows include President Harry S. Truman, former Secretary of State Dean Acheson and former British Prime Ministers Clement Attlee and Edward Heath.

The White House also announced two other post-presidential plans for Ford.

On Jan. 27 he and Mrs. Ford will attend the seventh annual Vince Lombardi Award dinner in Houston. The dinner is a benefit for the American Cancer Society.

Ford will speak and will present the Lombardi Award honoring the collegiate football lineman of the year.

On Feb. 9 to 13, Ford will play in the annual Bob Hope Desert Golf Classic in Palm Springs, Calif.

Previously it had been announced that Ford will play in two other golf tournaments, the Bing Crosby Classic in Pebble Beach, Calif., next week and the Jackie Gleason tournament in Lauderhill.

Carter Stands Firm On Amnesty

WASHINGTON (AP) – President-elect Carter has told 106 House members that he will not reconsider his pledge to grant a general amnesty to Vietnam-era draft evaders as one of his first actions after becoming President, Rep. Charles Wilson, D-Tex., said Thursday night.

"I appreciate your comments asking me to reconsider my decision to issue a pardon for Vietnam draft evaders and am sorry we disagree on this matter," Wilson quoted Carter as saying in response to a letter from a group of Democratic and Republican representatives.

Rep. G.V. Montgomery, D-Miss., initiated the letter.

CUT YOUR OWN TAXES – 6

Tax Options Vary On Sale Of Homes

By RAY DE CRANE

The gain on the sale of a home by someone under 65 may or may not be immediately taxable. It depends on what you do with the proceeds.

But the loss on a home sale is never deductible on your federal income tax return.

If you purchase a replacement home whose cost is equal to or greater than the adjusted selling price of the home sold, the tax on the gain is deferred. It is not forgiven; it is delayed to a later day.

This, then, calls for a second step. The deferred gain is subtracted from the cost price of the replacement home, producing what is called an adjusted basis.

When that second home is sold for more than the adjusted basis there is a gain. Of course, you can continue stepping up to more expensive housing, pushing ahead further the eventual day of reckoning.

If you sell at a gain and do not buy another home, but, instead, move into rented quarters, the suspense is over. Whatever your gain, over your total investment in the property, it is immediately taxable. If you owned the property for longer than six months, it is treated as a long-term capital gain and only half of it is taxable.

There is also the possibility you sold at a profit and then bought a replacement home whose cost was less than the adjusted selling price of home No. 1.

In this case you could have both an immediate gain and a deferred gain.

The immediate taxable gain is either the actual gain on the sale or, if it produces a smaller amount, the difference between the adjusted selling price of home No. 1 and the cost price of home No. 2.

If there is still gain remaining after subtracting that difference from the gain realized on the sale, it is treated as a deferred gain. Subtract that amount from the cost basis of home No. 2, giving you a different starting point on that home in the event of a future sale.

Correction

In Thursday's tax story, the fourth and fifth paragraphs had words missing. They should have read:

"Let's assume you sold your home for an adjusted selling price of $40,000 and realized a $10,000 profit. How much of that $10,000 is taxable?

"You divide $20,000 by $40,000 and get 50 per cent. So 50 per cent of the $10,000 is free of tax. The other $5,000 is taxable. Since it will be reported on Schedule D as a long-term capital gain only half of the gain, or $2,500, will eventually be taxed."

The Register regrets the error.

Boy Ticking, Not Kidding, Gulped Watch

HENDERSON, Ky. (AP) – After 28½ hours, Chris Cleveland's stomach has quit ticking.

The noise came from a watch which surgeons removed from the 12-year-old youngster on Wednesday.

The watch, minus its band, wouldn't have been there so long if Chris could have convinced his parents, John and Tina Cleveland, that he had swallowed it.

"That boy is just like I am. He's an inveterate joker," said his father, recalling that Chris informed him Tuesday morning "he had swallowed the watch."

Cleveland, thinking his son was joking, took him sledding with a number of other boys in the neighborhood.

That evening, Chris began to feel feverish and managed to persuade his mother that he was telling the truth about the watch, with a diameter the size of a quarter.

FDA Plans To Test 2,100 Food Additives For Safety

WASHINGTON (AP) – The Food and Drug Administration said Thursday it plans to begin testing all 2,100 food additives now on the market to assure their safety. A consumer activist immediately condemned the program as a means for buying time while consumers remain exposed to dangerous chemicals.

Acting FDA Commissioner Sherwin Gardner announced the new tests in testimony to a Senate committee headed by Gaylord Nelson, D-Wis. Nelson has criticized FDA for allowing some chemical food additives to remain on the market after scientists have linked them to cancer and other diseases.

Gardner said all preservatives, colors, flavors and substances that may get into food from packaging will undergo scientific re-evaluation beginning in March. "Science is dynamic and a food additive judged safe by the science of 1970 may very will be suspect by the science of 1977," he said.

He said that profiles on each of the food additives will be established within 18 months and FDA may then restrict use of some additives or remove them from the market.

Nelson did not comment on the announcement, which began on page 21 of Gardner's written testimony. The FDA commissioner had read only 18 pages of his testimony when Nelson asked him to make way for the next witness.

However, the next witness, Dr. Sidney Wolfe, director of Ralph Nader's Health Research Group, attacked the FDA action. "The FDA is buying time and allowing more and more consumption of chemicals that may be dangerous."

He accused the agency of "protecting the food industry, instead of protecting the public" and said chemicals should be taken off the market as soon as there is scientific doubt about their safety.

TO SAVE 70 MILLION LIVES

Nuclear Evacuation Plan Eyed

WASHINGTON (AP) – Federal Civil Defense officials say about 70 million American lives could be saved by evacuating 400 "high-risk" areas before any threatened nuclear missile attack.

Planning for such an emergency evacuation will soon start in all 50 states following completion of pilot projects in eight areas.

Officials of the Pentagon's Civil Preparedness Agency believe that state and local planning, supported by federal funds, can produce a standby evacuation blueprint within five years.

The program is called "crisis relocation." It is based on the premise that the inhabitants of prime target communities can be moved to safer, lightly populated areas during rising international tension expected to precede any outbreak of war.

The 400 high-risk areas are urban-industrial centers and areas around military bases.

Pilot studies were conducted in Utica-Rome, N.Y., Dover, Del., Macon, Ga., Duluth, Minn., Oklahoma City, Colorado Springs, Tucson, Ariz., and Great Falls, Mont.

Officials estimate the planning will cost about $45 million to $50 million. They have no idea of the potential cost of an actual emergency relocation. The states would be expected to share the financial burden.

The Council of State Governments is exploring questions of funding a population evacuation and what new laws and executive orders may be required at the federal and state levels.

According to calculations by federal specialists, about 80 million persons out of a total U.S. population of about 215 million would be likely to survive any Soviet missile attack if there were a civil defense program.

An additional 30 million persons could be saved by taking refuge in nuclear fall-out shelters in the target areas, the specialists say.

Congress alloted $82.5 million for civil defense this year and the Ford administration's final defense budget is expected to propose an increase of only about $5 million next year.

Some Pentagon officials and members of Congress claim that the U.S. civil defense program is too small. They have expressed concern about what they claim is a massive Soviet civil defense effort. In their view, this could leave the U.S. population more vulnerable than the Russian people and undermine mutual deterrence of nuclear attack.

However, Defense Secretary-designate Harold Brown is on record as doubting that the Russians actually are engaged in a large-scale civil defense program. Brown also has indicated he is skeptical that such a program would give the Russians a significant strategic advantage.

FROM MILITARY

Tougher Laws Asked To Curb Gun Thefts

WASHINGTON (AP) – As a Senate subcommittee probing links between drugs and weapons smuggling across the U.S. Mexico border heard secret testimony, a Texas lawmaker called on Thursday for tougher controls to curb the theft of weapons from U.S. military installations.

Sen. Lloyd Bentsen, D-Tex., said there was evidence to indicate that large numbers of arms stolen from the military had been traded for drugs from Mexico.

The Senate investigations subcommittee is looking into possible links between the drug and arms traffic and also is trying to determine whether weapons smuggled from the United States are being delivered to terrorists or revolutionaries.

The heads of three law enforcement agencies, testifying in open session, disagreed about the extent to which the arms traffic might be tied to the flow of narcotics into the United States.

Vernon D. Acree, director of the Customs Service, said his agency had worked with the FBI on the question of military arms thefts and had obtained no "concrete evidence" to show that weapons were being smuggled to Mexico.

But Bentsen said U.S. law enforcement agencies had given him "example after example of cases which smugglers in Mexico have exchanged drugs for stolen U.S. military weapons," and that U.S. agents have documented plans by a subversive Mexican organization to trade marijuana for automatic weapons.

Bentsen cited Pentagon reports that more than 10,000 weapons have been stolen from military installations in the last decade, a loss he said was actually much higher because many thefts are written off as inventory errors without investigation.

The senator proposes a bill to tighten control of weapons by setting up a central Pentagon security office, improving inventory procedures and requiring closer coordination between law enforcement and military officials.

"If stolen arms are being provided revolutionary groups in Mexico – and there is evidence that they are – then it is a threat not only to the people of that country but also to the U.S., and it is a threat we must work together to solve," Bentsen said.

The subcommittee headed by Sen. Sam Nunn, D-Ga., closed its doors after hearing testimony from Acree and the heads of the Drug Enforcement Agency and the Treasury Department's bureau of Alcohol, Tobacco and Firearms.

Those officials were scheduled to testify further in closed session, but committee sources would not divulge any details of their testimony nor that of other witnesses.

The only other witnesses identified as scheduled to appear in the secret session were Lt. Booth Shaw, a Los Angeles police officer who figured in the alleged attempt by narcotics smuggling ring to buy weapons for antigovernment activities in Latin America, and David Williams, identified as a former DEA informer who is now under indictment in New Mexico for bank robbery and murder.

4th Man Given Life Sentence In Slaying Of 2

SANTA ANA – Thomas Frank Dunker, 29, of Long Beach, was sentenced to life in prison Thursday for the double "execution style" slaying of a Sunset Beach couple in November 1975.

He joins three other men already serving life terms for their involvement in the murders of Ronald Cauwels, 27, and Janet Mae Metz.

The couple was gunned down on Nov. 8, 1975 by eight men who stormed into Cauwels' plush apartment. The raid was allegedly to recover $20,000 worth of marijuana which Cauwels reportedly had stolen a week earlier.

Seven other persons drew lighter sentences for their roles in the killings.

Cauwels was killed by a single bullet to the head. Mrs. Metz' body was raked by machine gun fire.

Dunker pleaded guilty to one count of first degree murder, one count of second degree murder and one count of conspiracy to commit armed robbery. Superior Court Judge Robert P. Kneeland ordered that he served all sentences concurrently.

EARLY 'LIVING WILLS' REJECTED

Assemblyman Barry Keene, D-Eureka, who wrote the controversial bill signed three months ago by Gov. Edmund Brown Jr., authored the follow-up bill.

He said "several dozen, perhaps several hundred" persons executed wills between the time Brown signed the measure in October and the effective date Jan. 1. He added they didn't understand the delay before the bill became law.

The law allows persons to write instructions that if they are terminally ill, life-sustaining procedures which artificially keep them alive should be unplugged.

Keene said there are serious legal questions about possible prosecution of a doctor who in good faith followed instructions in a living will that later found to be invalid because it was written before the legislation took effect.

"Anyone who was opposed to the original legislation should be opposed to this," said Assemblyman Alister McAlister, D-San Jose.

Keene's followup bill died on a 37-32 ballot. It requires 54 votes. Keene said he would try to revive the measure next week.

It is AB 14.

Bolles Case Judge Becomes Ill

TUCSON, Ariz. (AP) – Jury selection in the trial of a man charged with killing Arizona Republic reporter Don Bolles was stopped short four jurors short of completion Thursday when the judge became ill.

Pima County Superior Court Judge Ben Birdsall, after interviewing six potential jurors and impaneling four of them, said he had a fever and was going to see a doctor.

Birdsall said he hoped the selection process, which began Dec. 30, would be completed Friday. But he said if he remains ill, he will conduct a Saturday session to finish seating the jury.

The judge has said he wants to start testimony in the case against John Harvey Adamson on Monday. Adamson, 33, is charged with murder in the June car bombing death of Bolles. Among the jurors selected Thursday was the mother of a newspaper reporter who covers superior court here. She said her daughter's occupation would not enter into the verdict.

Others selected were a fire department paramedic, a junior high school teacher and a woman who owns an arts and crafts shop.

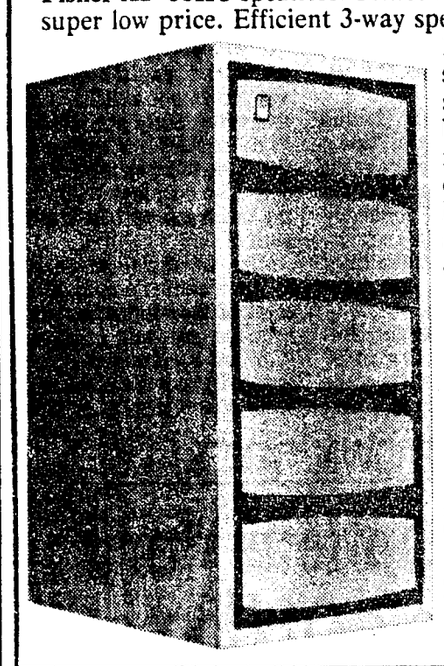

Thirty-seven jurors must be impaneled before the defense and prosecution can eliminate 10 each. That process, expected to take one-half day, will cut the panel to 12 regular jurors and five alternates.

Once testimony begins, the jury will be sequestered for an estimated four weeks while evidence is presented, Birdsall has decided.

Keep Sleepwear Labels For Safety

The U.S. Consumer Product Safety Commission has asked makers of children's sleepwear to stop using coarse or abrasive materials in care labels for these flame-retardant garments.

Concern was voiced that labels which might be irritating to children's skin could lead parents to remove them, thus eliminating manufacturers' instructions, causing the sleepwear to be improperly laundered and to lose its flame-retardancy.

Stout-Hearted Wanted For 'Epic Journey'

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — If you go rubber-legged at the sight of deadly snakes, have trouble dealing with cannibalistic natives or get the shivers at the first frost, Bill Barriere doesn't want you.

He wants 20 stout-hearted people willing to risk their lives on his 13,000-mile "epic journey" from frigid Point Barrow, Alaska, to Punta Arenas, Chile.

And his ads, placed in a number of West Coast newspapers, make no bones about that: "Expedition seeks men for hazardous journey – bitter cold – torrid heat – long months of constant danger – your only consolation, honor and recognition, in case of success."

Barriere, a 40-year-old former Palm Springs waiter, claims 2,500 persons have applied but only four Americans have come up to his standards. The expedition members will need $15,000 in the bank, prior training in jungle and tundra survival and the psychological and physical makeup to handle a seven-month ordeal.

Applicants are screened through a 15-page form that includes some hypothetical questions like:

"Supposing you became lost in the Darien jungle of Panama where malaria is everywhere, bandits abide, smugglers shoot strangers on sight and the jungle is so intense that you may not make more than 500 feet headway a day ... What would you do?"

This grand thinker is 5-5 and 140 pounds and lists among his qualifications wanderings through a dozen countries and tiger hunting in Southeast Asia. He says he has been organizing the journey for 2½ years.

The tangible goals are to be the "first, across the Western Hemisphere by land from top to bottom, using jeeps, dog sleds, canoes; first from the Arctic to the Antarctic Ocean by land; first to cross the Pan American Highway in its entirety...

Barriere said in a recent interview the trek originally was planned as a Bicentennial tribute, but now is planned for September or October.

Insomnia Cause

The insomnia sufferer is usually a person who keeps an emotional problem bottled up during waking hours, according to researchers at the Sleep Research and Treatment Cent, Hershey, Pa.

Funds Urged For 'Citizens' Voice' In Policy

WASHINGTON (AP) – A congressionally chartered committee has recommended that the government subsidize public interest organizations to give citizens a greater voice in making national policy.

"The government should provide direct financial assistance to those groups which cannot afford to participate fully on their own," the Advisory Committee on National Growth Processes said.

The recommendation, one of several being submitted to Congress as the result of a one-year, $250,000 study, drew dissents from four of the committee's 19 members.

John W. Gardner, chairman of the citizen organization Common Cause, said such subsidies "could easily create a class of kept critics."

Other members dissenting were Roger S. Ahlbrandt, chairman of Alleghenyludlum Industries Corp.; Herbert Stein, a professor at the University of Virginia, and Eric A. Walker, president emeritus of Pennsylvania State University.

The committee also recommended:

– Establishing a National Growth and Development Commission empowered to make recommendations to which the president and Congress would be required to respond.

– Expanding the president's annual economic report to include such things as suggestions on how Congress might respond to actions taken by independent regulatory agencies.

– Creating a Center for Statistical Policy and Analysis, with 250 technicians and analysts, to collect and interpret economic data.

– Giving party leaders and caucuses in Congress a larger role in determining the congressional response to proposals by the president.

– Requiring that each bill emerging from a congressional committee carry a statement of its long-range effects, even on "regions or segments of our society that are not explicit objects of the legislation."

– Extending federal budgets over several years instead of one year as they now do.

– Establishing a national grain stockpile to stabilize supplies, assure orderly markets and curb speculation.

The committee's report was submitted to Congress, but only partially endorsed, by its parent group, the National Commission on Supplies and Shortages.

The commission said it had reservations about the proposed National Growth and Development Commission and believed the proposed Center for Statistical and Policy Analysis was not feasible. The commission took no position on the recommendation for subsidies to public interest groups.

Reward Posted To Catch SF Pet Poisoner

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) - A reward is posted for the arrest and conviction of a killer of dogs in "the worst attempt here of mass poisoning of pets that we can remember."

A spokesman for the Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals said this week a search of the the Sunset district uncovered some 30 hamburger patties heavily dosed with deadly strychnine.

Four dogs, a mixed breed, schnauzer, dalmatian and malamute, have suffered horrible deaths from strychnine this week, the SPCA said.

The latest was the mixed breed, a puppy named Baco, whose death Tuesday was mourned by the Rodezno family.

"My son Frank was sick when he heard about it," said Elena Rodezno, his mother. "I cried so much. It was terrible, a horrible death."

The poisoned patties were found in an area bordering Sunset Boulevard and 36th Avenue, the SPCA said, announcing a $250 reward for the arrest and conviction of the poisoner.

SPCA officials said notices of the offer which were pinned up in the neighborhood have been torn down..

"In my experience, there's never been a similar attempt here of mass execution of pets," said Richard Avanzino, local SPCA president.

Some of the dogs killed were on leashes being walked by their owners when the animals found the hamburger. Soon afterward, they showed extreme nervousness, grew stiff, salivated heavily and went into convulsions.

Last September, one dog was killed and 10 others sickened from poisoned meat scattered in the same area.

Avanzino said an anonymous caller telephoned the SPCA, warning that the poisonings would continue if "owners let their dogs run loose."

The time to think at the bridge table is when it is up to you to find the right play and not after you have thrown the contract out the window.

South was delighted with the heart lead and when East let dummy's queen hold, he wasted no time playing a low heart from his own hand. Then he was ready to do his thinking, but it was too late. The contract had found its way to that point in space from which there is no return.

Just a little thought before playing from his own hand at trick one and South would see that if he played his ace of hearts there would be a sure entry to dummy.

Then he could lead the king of diamonds, overtake with dummy's ace and lead the jack of diamonds.

West would win with the queen. He could lead a second heart or a spade or a club. It wouldn't make any difference. South would have time to knock out East's king of hearts and wind up with two spades, two hearts, five diamonds and the smile of a Cheshire cat.

DOES BELIEF IN SANTA HURT LITTLE CHILDREN?

By Abigail Van Buren

© 1977 by Chicago Tribune-N.Y. News Synd. Inc.

DEAR ABBY: Is there a way my child can enjoy the fun of believing in Santa Claus and the Easter Bunny without being lied to?

It doesn't seem fair to tell a trusting child such lies, and yet I hate to deprive him of the pleasure of fantasizing about these make-believe characters.

My son is still a wee baby, and I hate lying to him, knowing that one day he'll learn the truth and wonder how many others things I lied about.

DEBBIE

DEAR DEBBIE: Childhood fantasies are not only fun for children, but also useful aids in developing healthy imaginations and creativity. If you tell your child from the start that Santa, The Easter Bunny (and don't forget the Tooth Fairy) are all make-believe characters, they won't feel deceived when they learn the truth.

The mistake most parents make is to insist that these imaginary characters actually exist after the child has questioned their authenticity.

DEAR ABBY: This may read like a soap opera, but every word is true.

I am 17 and for two years I dated a certain boy. We loved each other very much and even planned to marry some day.

Last spring we had a terrible fight when I discovered he had dated someone behind my back. We said some awful things to each other, and I told him I never wanted to see him again.

Three days later he signed up for the Air Force and started dating another girl. Before leaving for the service they announced their wedding plans. He left without even saying goodby.

Six months later he wrote me, saying that regardless of his plans, he could not forget me or what we meant to each other. (Lord knows, I've never forgotten him!)

I'm heartbroken about his engagement and want so much to write back and tell him so. My friends insist that his is marrying the girl on the rebound. Even his family was stunned by his announcement.

Abby, what should I do? Should I keep quiet and preserve my pride? Or should I speak the truth, even though it may be worth nothing?

TORN

DEAR TORN: Common courtesy demands that you answer the letter. I see no harm in writing truthfully about the depth of your feelings for this "certain boy." But the next move must be his.

DEAR ABBY: Our parents have been asking us what we want for our birthdays. (We're twins.) O.K., you tell them for us, Abby. Other kids might like the same "present."

Dear Mom and Dad: We would like you both to quit smoking, for your sake and ours. Here are our reasons.

First, there's a good chance you'll get cancer, and we love you too much for that. Second, the smoke bothers us, especially when you sit by us watching TV or at the dinner table. Third, nothing in our home smells clean and fresh. The stale scent of smoke is everywhere. Fourth, smoking gives you bad breath, and we find ourselves holding our breaths when we kiss you hello and goodby.

We hope you understand that we love you and are not asking this just for ourselves.

RAPE-KIDNAPING TRIAL

Open Session For Sanity Hearing

BY LARRY WELBORN
Register Staff Writer

SANTA ANA – The long-delayed sanity hearing for Kenneth R. Hulbert, charged with the rape-slaying of a Whittier housewife a year ago, is scheduled to begin Jan. 24 if there are no further problems.

The way was cleared Thursday when the California Supreme Court declined to hear a motion filed by Hulbert's attorney to close the sanity hearing to the public and the press.

Public defender Walter Zech had appealed a decision by Superior Court Judge William S. Lee to keep the hearing open, but his appeals were denied by the 4th District Court of Appeal, and, on Thursday, the Supreme Court.

Zech had claimed that publicity during the sanity hearing would damage Hulbert's right to a fair trial, and would also violate the attorney-client privilege.

Judge Lee, who will preside over what is expected to be a four-to-six week hearing, urged Zech to attempt to begin his case Jan. 17, but the public defender said he needed extra time to contact psychiatrists who have examined the 24-year-old Hulbert.

Lee also indicated there may be problems with the jury, which was originally sworn in late in November. He said at least one juror has asked to be relieved because of a change in job status, and others may also ask to be dismissed because of the many delays.

Lee said his clerk will canvass the jurors today to determine if additional jurers must be selected.

Briseno and Zech said there is a possibility that the entire original jury will be dismissed if enough individual jurors say they cannot serve. Selection of the present jury took approximately one week in mid-November. The possible selection of a second jury may push the trial date back once again.

The two attorneys said there is also the possibility that only one or two new jurors may be selected to fill spots vacated by those asking to be dismissed from the original panel.

The sanity hearing is to determine if Hulbert of Fullerton is mentally able to stand trial. Zech has contended that his client is unable to understand the proceedings and is unable to aid in his own defense.

Hulbert is accused in a 14-count grand jury indictment with rape attacks on three women in December 1975 and January 1976. Those attacks included one against Gina Marie Tisher, 19, of Whittier. Her body was discovered a few days later in the back seat of her car, which was abandoned in a Fullerton apartment parking lot. She had been strangled.

He also is charged with kidnaping, raping, robbing and beating a Fullerton College coed, who was left for dead in a ditch in the south county area. The woman survived.

A Los Angeles Grand Jury also has indicted Hulbert for rape attacks in Los Angeles area on six other women.

Hulbert was arrested Jan. 30, 1976 after Fullerton police were given information by his girl friend. The girl friend later married Hulbert in the Orange County jail.

Carter Choice For HEW Post Abortion Foe

WASHINGTON (AP) – Joseph A. Califano Jr., secretary-designate of Health, Education and Welfare, told the Senate Thursday he believes abortion is wrong and federal funds should not be spent to give women abortions if they want them.

Under pointed questioning by Sen. Bob Packwood, R-Ore., before the Senate Finance Committee, Califano said he would oppose a constitutional amendment to outlaw abortions but would also oppose using Medicaid or National Health Insurance funds to pay for them.

He insisted that despite his personal conviction he would enforce the law on abortion as enacted by Congress or interpreted by the courts.

Dissidents Fare Worse In Russia, Group Says

VIENNA, Austria (AP) – The Soviet Union has convicted at least 90 dissidents since signing the supposedly liberating Helsinki accords in 1975 and is increasingly applying new techniques of political persecution, Amnesty International said Thursday.

The Austrian section of the international human rights organization said the techniques include harassment of political prisoners, reprisals against friends and relatives and false criminal charges lodged in order to bring political cases into criminal courts.

The group's latest report said that in addition to those convicted, at least 15 completely sane persons have been examined in mental hospitals or been declared insane and sent to institutions since the Helsinki agreement was signed on Aug. 1, 1975.

The accords, signed by President Ford and the heads of 34 other nations, were a major step in East-West detente. They ratified the post-World War II boundaries of Europe, tacitly recognizing Soviet control of Eastern Europe, in exchange for nonbinding promises of greater civil liberties for Russians and East Europeans.

The Amnesty International report said the Soviets maintain the convicted dissidents were guilty of "anti-Soviet agitation and propaganda" and spreading slanderous information.

The human rights group said spectacular releases of Soviet dissidents such as that of Vladimir Bukovsky could not change the fact that hundreds of others, gravely ill, were still in jail and thousands more were deprived of their freedom, penalized or harassed because they exercised their constitutional right of freedom of opinion.

Bukovsky, who became known in the West for exposing the Soviet practice of putting dissidents in mental institutions, has criticized the Western policy of detente as "positively murderous" for the human rights movement in the Soviet Union.

"All this East-West trade is paid for in our blood," the 34-year-old biologist reportedly told the London Times last weekend.

Bukovsky was freed from a Soviet prison camp and flown to the West last month in exchange for Chile's release of Communist party chief Luis Corvalan, who is now in the Soviet Union.

Exiled Russian author Alexander Solzhenitsyn has said on British television that detente and the "spirit of Helsinki" have brought more totalitarianism to the Soviet Union.

New Solons Hold Mixed Views On Tax Paid 'Conveniences'

WASHINGTON (AP) – Seventy-seven men and two women are now eligible to borrow tax-nurtured potted plants, receive free outpatient medical care and use a swimming pool in the building where they work.

The reason: they were sworn in last week as members of Congress.

Interviews with a sampling of the freshman lawmakers indicate they have a mixed reaction to the perquisites of a member of Congress, which also include such things as loans of government-owned art reproductions.

Rep. John J. Cavanaugh, D-Neb., sees the taxpayer-supplied favors as "a danger to any person who comes here, and a danger to which many succumb.

"As the pressures mount on your time, these conveniences become necessities and you can come to view it as almost a natural right that you should have a special parking place, a special elevator and be deferred to all the time," said Cavanaugh, a 30-year-old former state legislator. "Unless you are able to keep things in perspective, you can lose sight of the effect of your legislative actions and of inflation on people."

Rep. Robert K. Dornan, R-Calif., also expressed reservations about the fringe benefits of office.

"Congress will never discipline itself, so the president should appoint a no-nonsense committee, which accurately describes to the taxpayers exactly how bad the situation is and then test the constitutionality of an executive order putting a lid on growth of privileges," Dornan said.

But Rep. Norm Dicks, D-Wash., took a different view: "I don't think it's going to change my own perspective or view on things."

Dicks, a former University of Washington football player, especially defended the House and Senate gymnasiums, which are complete with steam rooms, swimming pools and saunas. Women have a separate facility but use the men's pool.

"People who try to stay fit are going to do a better job, and there is a real vacuum of places to get exercise in Washington," Dicks said. "The only thing they've got is a kind of old broken down YMCA."

Tennessee's new Democratic Sen. James Sasser agreed. "I don't think the minor emoluments of office are going to turn my head," he said.

These emoluments include outpatient medical care by Capitol physicians; foreign travel for stated official purposes, with wives often going along for "protocol reasons" and funeral expenses for members who die in office.

Only members of the congressional leadership are entitled to their own chauffeured limousines, but Senate Sergeant-at-Arms Nordy Hoffman told senators-elect at a pre-session meeting to "just call my office" if they needed one.

"We might use it if it is the most expeditious way to get official business done," said Sen. Harrison H. Schmitt, R-N.M. Schmitt, a former astronaut, said officials he knew in the National Aeronautics and Space Administration "used the limousine as a way to get work done away from the telephone."

For some lawmakers who are veterans of public office, coming to Congress will actually mean giving up some of their tax-paid privileges.

Take Democratic Sen. Wendell Anderson for instance. As governor of Minnesota, he had his own chauffeured car and lived in an official residence, all paid for by the state.

By succeeding Vice President-elect Walter Mondale in the Senate, Anderson gave all this up and will have to drive to and from his Washington apartment in his own station wagon.

But Anderson can borrow reproductions from the National Gallery of Art at no cost to hang in his office, get free plants from the U.S. Botanical Gardens for office use and perhaps have his hair cut free.

Senate Secretary Francis Valeo said the long-standing practice of free trims in the Senate barber shop, where each member has his own private shaving mug, may be discontinued. If so, he said, senators will have to pay the going rate.

Under a federal law all members of Congress, regardless of age, are entitled, along with other federal employes, to $45,000 worth of life insurance for $321 per year. They become vested in the federal pension plan after five years.

Both these provisions drew the fire of newly elected Sen. Dennis DeConcini, D-Ariz.

"I am taking advantage of them because they are there, but I would vote to take them away," DeConcini said. He said both programs should be made comparable with those in private industry.

DeConcini also argued that the subsidized Senate dining room should raise its prices and "run on a profit basis or very close to it."

None of the lawmakers contacted, regardless of their views, said they planned to turn any of the benefits down.

"After all," said Cavanaugh, "I would find it difficult not to ride in the members' elevator or not to park in the members' parking lot."

Inflation Impact 'Distorts' Taxes

WASHINGTON (AP) – If your salary is just keeping up with inflation, your spending power actually isn't keeping pace because federal taxes take bigger and bigger bites of your earnings.

That is the conclusion of a new government study which notes that income tends to rise to keep up with inflation. But the bad news is that taxpayers are moved to constantly higher tax brackets while, at the same time, the inflation erodes the real value of tax ex- emptions, credits and standard deductions.

The study said this problem may continue to plague American taxpayers through 1981 if there is no change in tax law and if inflation grows at an annual rate of 5 to 6 per cent between 1977-81 as forecast by the Congressional Budget Office and the executive branch.

The report by the Advisory Commission on Intergovernmental Relations recommends changes in federal and state tax laws to soften this impact. One solution set forth is to tie the amounts allowed for personal exemptions, the standard deduction and some credits directly to each year's rise in the Consumer Price Index, the inflation indicator.

As inflation rose, so would those tax return items that lower a person's taxes.

The report said the country since 1972 has been experiencing an average annual inflation rate of 9.6 per cent, "a clear departure from the historically mild 2-3 per cent for the U.S. since 1950." The rate for 1976 was around 6 per cent.

The report gave this example of how inflation distorts income taxes. A married couple with two children, who file jointly, have an income of $10,000 and take the standard deduction, had a 1975 federal tax bill of $709.

Assuming an annual 7 per cent inflation rate and that the couple's income grew to keep pace, the couple's 1978 income will go up 22.5 per cent to $12,250, but their tax will go up 58.7 per cent to $1,125.

In 1980, with income up 40.3 per cent, their tax bill would be $1,433, an increase of 102 per cent from 1975.

STATE OF UNION

Ford's Address 'His Finest Hour'

WASHINGTON (AP) – Even to those in Congress who had fought him, it was Gerald Ford's finest hour. To his backers, it was a reminder of what might have been.

Following the President's farewell State of the Union address Wednesday night, there was not a discouraging word from the lawmakers, many of whom had fought the 38th President on policy issues.

House Majority Leader Jim Wright, D-Tex., apparently spoke for the bulk of his colleagues in calling the speech "an appropriate valedictory of a thoughtful, good and decent man."

Sen. Charles H. Percy, R-Ill., said that "if he had made that speech during the campaign, he would have won the election."

Sen. Barry Goldwater, R-Ariz., agreed: "If he had been that forceful during the campaign, he would have been better off."

There was widespread approval of Ford's call for continued attention to improved military strength and a warning against cutbacks in weapons and defense spending.

Senate Republican Leader Howard H. Baker of Tennessee, who earlier in the day had attended a congressional leadership meeting to discuss defense policy with President-eiect Carter, said he is heartened by what he saw as considerable similarity between what he heard from Ford and his successor.

Ford's admonition on national security "was the highest responsibility he could discharge," said Baker. "He was heard and understood by the Congress and I think it will have an effect."

The President even got some nods of approval when he criticized the growing cost of running the Congress. "He ought to know – he's one of us," said Baker of the man who spent 25 years in the House.

Rep. Robert McClory, R-Ill., was even kinder than most to his old colleague, comparing the Ford address to George Washington's farewell because "it set forth principles that are to guide us."

House Republican Leader John Rhodes of Arizona called the speech a "benchmark."

Eviction Foes Stage Rally At SF Hotel

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) – As an estimated 2,500 persons crowded the vicinity of the International Hotel, most apparently in support of tenants threatened with eviction, a judge refused to intervene in their favor.

The crowd Wednesday was noisy but orderly as rush-hour traffic streamed up the 800 block of Kearny Street. Marchers filled sidewalks on both sides of the street at one point during the four-hour demonstration.

Sheriff Richard Hongisto, who has been sentenced to jail for contempt of court for failing to evict the 80 elderly tenants, said Wednesday night he had no intention of carrying out the first stage of the evictions he is under court order to perform.

Under court order, businesses in the building could have been evicted any time after 5 p.m. Wednesday. The tenants can be evicted after 5 p.m. Monday.

On Tuesday evening, Hongisto, accompanied by a party of deputies, nailed up a thick wad of eviction notices on the front door of the 70-year-old hotel, and was quoted later as saying he would carry out the evictions.

The sheriff, who has appealed his five-day contempt sentence for failing to carry out earlier court orders to evict the tenants, said the demonstration Wednesday supported his earlier reluctance to try to remove the occupants from the building.

During the day, presiding Superior Court Judge Henry R. Rolph refused to intervene in the court-ordered evictions. But he told lawyers that he will sign an order preventing the owners from demolishing the building prior to a hearing Feb. 1.

Hearing Slated

SAN DIEGO (AP) – A hearing is scheduled Jan. 21 on a preliminary injunction sought by U.S. tuna fishermen against a government ban on killing porpoises.

Britain Gripped By Winter

LONDON (AP) – After the driest summer in five centuries, Britain shivered today in some of its worst winter weather in 14 years, with snowfalls a foot deep in some places.

Maybe that's not unusual in some parts of the world, but for the British it was all very grim, with road, rail, sea and air travel disrupted by snow and freezing fog.

The Royal Automobile Club said that people in the south of England had to struggle to work through "a white hell".

There was no immediate toll of casualties.

Brazilian Farmer Hoards Coffee Beans For Higher Price

(EDITOR'S NOTE – Amid reports of a sharp drop in the world's coffee supply, one farmer who escaped the 1975 frost that killed a large part of the crop in Brazil has more than a million pounds of coffee beans stored in a barn. He has no plans to sell now, even with prices at record-high levels. The following dispatch tells why.

Each bag weighs 60.5 kilograms – 133.1 pounds each or 1,064,800 pounds in all – and at current prices the beans, grown in 1975, are worth about $1.92 million on the world market.

If he sold his coffee, Koguishi would receive $830,400 after taxes, insurance, freight and handling, but not including labor and other costs that run him $71,500 a year.

Koguishi is not selling.

"I'll wait until the price goes up," said the 43-year-old son of Japanese immigrants.

Unlike other farmers in this area, stricken by Brazil's worst frost 18 months ago, Koguishi continues to grow coffee. Other farmers, fearing another frost, have planted wheat and soybeans. The valleys here in Parana State were once the pride of Brazil's coffee industry but there is little coffee now.

"Coffee will come back here some day," Koguishi said. "It will take time but it will come back. It's the only way we Brazilians can make any money."

The Brazilian government says it has no idea how many farmers are holding back coffee as Koguishi is doing. But whenever the tax goes up on coffee exports, as it has in Brazil, more and more farmers hold back supplies to await higher prices, according to trade experts.

Experts in London, a coffee-trading center, say there is a shortage of top-quality coffees such as those grown in Brazil but normal supplies of low-quality types. These experts attribute the upsurge in coffee prices, up to $3 a pound in the United States, to the Brazilian frost that killed 70 per cent of the nation's two billion coffee trees.

Koguishi estimates his average annual gross income over the past 10 years from coffee sales to be $115,500 with a net of $44,000.

What about the $1.92 million worth of coffee in the barn?

Under Brazil's system of coffee export taxes, increased more than 300 per cent since the frost in July 1975, Koguishi is prevented from realizing the full value of the coffee's skyrocketing world price. For every bag he now exports for $240 he must pay the government $100. Before the frost this export tax was only $30.

In addition to the export tax there is a merchandise tax, amounting to $30 a bag, freight and bagging costs of $1.20 per bag, and a social security contribution for rural farm workers of $5 a bag. That leaves Koguishi with $103.80 – less labor and other costs – for each of the bags he has stored in his barn.

He said he thinks they will soon be worth more than the 80 cents or so a pound he now gets after taxes and handling costs.

"There's a world shortage," he added. "Demand is greater than supply and nothing is going to stop that price from going up."

Koguishi sells his coffee through a producer's cooperative here which markets the beans through the offices of several large multinational firms in Londrina, the commercial center 40 miles west of here and 300 miles west of Sao Paulo.

Unlike other plantation owners who live in Londrina and leave operations to managers, Koguishi stays on his land, squeezing every cent out of coffee beans, because he wants to buy more land.

"This area is going to continue to be important in Brazil and it will continue to produce coffee," he said. "I am going to use the money that's left over to buy land."

He pointed to an aerial photograph of his farm. Beyond the farm's boundaries it showed several thousands acres of land planted in soybeans and corn, stretching out toward a range of hills.

"I'd like to see coffee planted there someday," Koguishi said. "That's my ambition."

Tried To Shame Me, Richardson Says Of Nixon

WASHINGTON (AP) – In a footnote to the history of Watergate, Elliot L. Richardson discloses that then-President Richard M. Nixon sought to shame him into abandoning, or delaying, his resignation as attorney general in 1973.

Richardson, who quit office rather than obey Nixon's order to fire Special Watergate Prosecutor Archibald Cox, also says he believes the former president, and his White House staff chief, Gen. Alexander Haig, exaggerated dangers of an American-Soviet military confrontation "to shake my resolve" to quit.

The drama that became known as the "Saturday Night Massacre" was enacted on Oct. 20, 1973, when Arab and Israeli forces were locked in combat and American and Soviet authorities were bracing.

Richardson confirmed in an interview this week that after he refused to fire Cox and instead submitted his resignation, he was asked by Nixon to do one of two things: either, in view of the national emergency then existing, not to resign at all, or to defer his resignation until the emergency with the Soviets had passed.

Richardson related that his meeting that night with Nixon at the White House was low-keyed but tense with a lot left unsaid.

According to one new account, Nixon told him that to delay his resignation would be to serve the national interest. Richardson then replied in so many words: "You, Mr. President, should have thought of that before."

Asked in the interview if this account was accurate Richardson responded: "Well, that's approximately correct."

Richardson, commerce secretary in President Ford's outgoing administration, then went into greater detail: "He (Nixon) said to me in effect he regretted that I did not see fit to put the national interest ahead of my personal commitments.

"I replied to him with some force that I believed that what I was doing was in the national interest."

At this point Richardson recalled that Nixon then remarked: "Evidently we do not perceive the national interest in the same way."

Early that day, Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger had flown secretly to Moscow to confer with Leonid Brezhnev. The Soviet Communist leader and fellow Soviet officials had become acutely concerned at the thrust that took Israeli forces across the Suez Canal into Egypt and on the road to Cairo with a capacity to cut off and destroy an entire Egyptian army.

HAPPY ENDING
Dear Trouble Shooter

Response to the letter you printed about my Christmas card houses has been fantastic. I've been flooded with mail! Packages of cards have been left on my doorstep. I cannot thank people enough.

We are having a fun time sorting, visions of lovely houses floating through our heads. I want to thank everyone for their time and effort. It warms our hearts.

I've had many requests for instructions to make the houses. The directions are all in my head. Trying to explain them is sort of like trying to explain how to pat your head or rub your stomach. I have to get my thinking hat on and my husband and I will try to compile a detailed way to make them, and mail the directions to those who requested the pattern.

Several church groups have asked me to come and show them how to make the Christmas card houses. I plan to help as many of them as I can.

The recent rain was wonderful for sweeping the sky, but my one and only old '60 Comet objected to all the wet. She is not too well, so please tell all the good folks that we will pick up their cards as soon as possible. It may take a couple of months, but please hang onto them!

How much love there is in the world. If only more could share! Something like this is sort of like a smile. It catches on and doesn't cost a thing.

A.A.
Costa Mesa

If you'll furnish the Ol' Trouble Shooter with a copy of your directions for making the Christmas card houses, he'll have it reproduced and send the instructions to anyone interested enough to send him a stamped addressed envelope. This'll save you a lot of time and effort.

Happy that things worked out so well. Reckon things won't be dull around your bunkhouse for some time to come.

YOU HELPED!
Dear Trouble Shooter

It is with tremendous gratitude that I express my appreciation to your readers for their generosity to Orange County foster children served by Operation Santa Claus this year.

The response to my letter in your Dec. 9 column was overwhelming! Because of it, Sergio, Jennifer, Freddie, Sam, Kate and many other children were reassured that Santa had not forgotten them after all.

It is heartwarming that so many people cared enough to give so that children separated from their own parents during the holidays could enjoy a happy Christmas.

To all of them, from all our foster children, I wish a joyous and prosperous year filled with love.

S.A.
Santa Ana

Folks who helped are bound to feel a glow of warm satisfaction in knowing they are responsible for making a passel of young 'uns happy. Thank you for writing.

COYOTE PICNIC
Dear Trouble Shooter

The annual South Dakota Picnic will be held Jan. 30 from 10 a.m. to 3 p.m. in Sycamore Grove, 4600 N. Figueroa, Los Angeles. (Turn off on Avenue 52 from the Pasadena Freeway to Figueroa Street, then turn left (south) four blocks to the picnic grounds.)

Please help us "round up" our former neighbors for this big get-together.

R.E.H.
Orange

Always happy to help round folks up for their hometown picnics, podnah. Hope those of you who hail from the Coyote State have a good time at yours.

CAN YOU HELP?
Dear Trouble Shooter

I have a 15-month-old son I am trying to enroll in a parent-child participation class somewhere in Orange County. We live in Garden Grove. I knew of similar classes in the San Gabriel Valley where we lived until six months ago.

We lost our 11-year-old son in a tragic sea accident 10 days ago, and I feel it is imperative that my baby and I get involved in some sort of activity to try to keep us together, but active.

I don't want somebody to "baby-sit" with him, but am looking for a group of mothers who are involved in child observation and parent-child participation activities.

If some of your readers have information along these lines, I'd appreciate hearing from them.

R.L.
Garden Grove

More than likely there's a cooperative group in your own hometown, Ma'am. Let's ask folks who can put you in contact to give you a jingle at 638-7513.

SHORT ON POISE?
Dear Trouble Shooter

Orange County's Toastmistress Clubs are looking for women and men who wish to gain poise and confidence in everyday conversation, public speaking or club procedures.

Each of our six clubs in this area (Anaheim, Garden Grove, Santa Ana, Laguna Beach, Newport Beach and Huntington Beach) offers a proven non-competitive training program. Each member learns by doing assignments varying in difficulty from leading The Pledge of Allegiance to presiding over meetings. Clubs meet on different days, at different times. Dues vary from club to club. Persons can join the most convenient club, regardless of its location.

Please tell your readers who need more information to call Mary Evelyn Smith at 636-2358 or Benita Kasten at 539-7272.

B.K.
Garden Grove

Happy to oblige.

NOSTALGIA TRIP
Dear Trouble Shooter

While watching the Rose Parade on New Year's Day, our neighbors and friends were wracking their brains trying to recall the name of the legendary character who "attended" every Rose Parade reported by the old Los Angeles Examiner.

If we recall correctly, one year this fictitious character was a dentist from Canton, Ohio. Another year, he suffered a heart attack just as the parade started (after waiting all night beside a campfire) and was carted off to the hospital. Another year, he was the father of 11 children, all of whom were watching the parade with him. Reporters who "covered" the Rose Parade dreamed up this phony character, and he became a traditional "put-on" in The Examiner's story.

Can you come up with his name?

J.H.D.
Costa Mesa

You betcha!

The character's name was "Homer Frisbee", except for one year when he was described as an Australian artillery officer named "H.G.R. Frisbee."

The Trouble Shooter's favorite was the year that Ol' "Frisbee" reportedly saved the day, and the Rose Parade, by lending the battery from his car to operators of a stalled float. Those were the days!

AKC PAPERS
Dear Trouble Shooter

In November 1975, my family moved from Westminster to Norwich, Conn. We left our one-year-old male Irish setter, Casey, with my parents on Arizona Street, and asked them to find a good home for him. This they did.

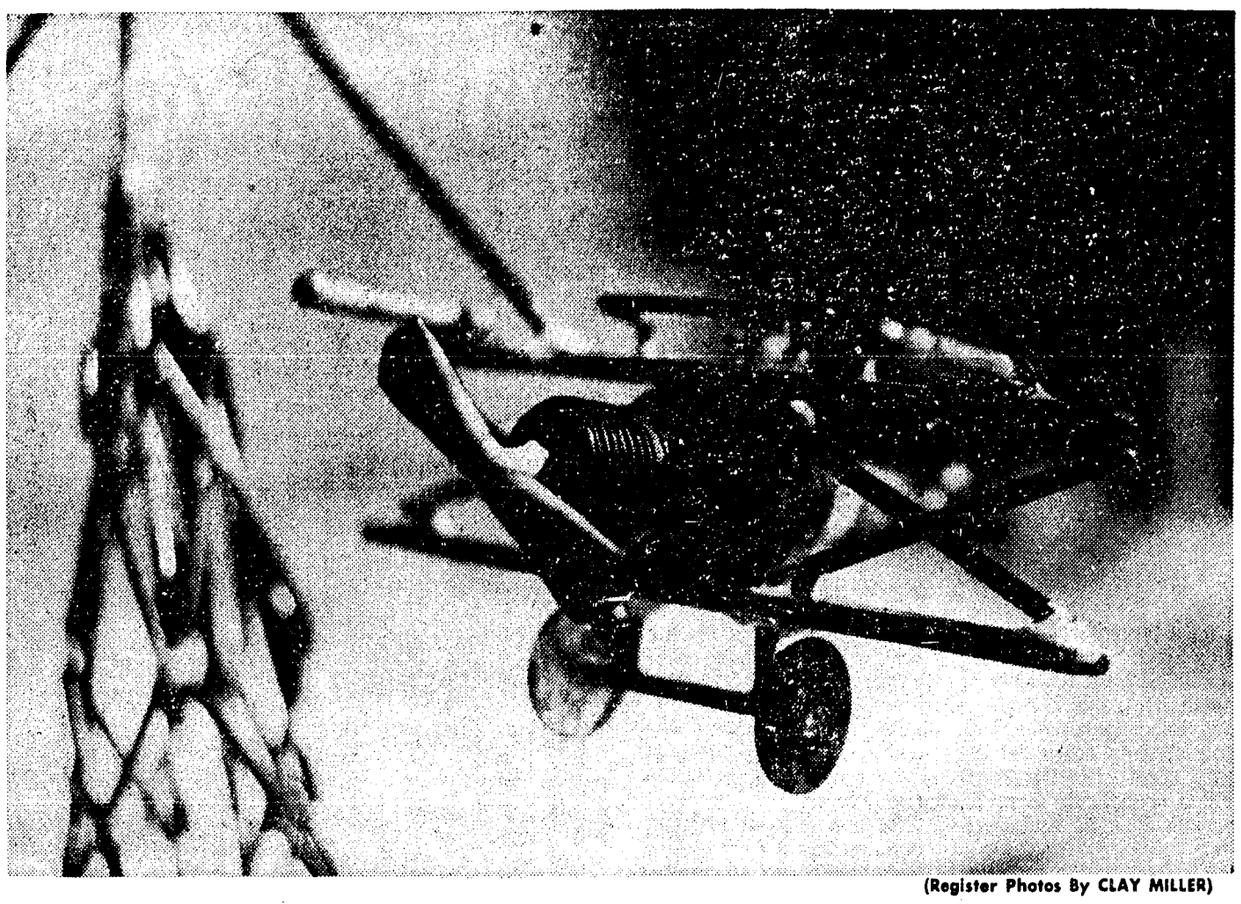

I am now trying to locate Casey's new owners, but I don't know their name. We moved from Connecticut to South Carolina a few months ago. During the move, we ran across Casey's papers and I'd like to send them to the rightful owners.

Will you help me locate them?

D.S.
Moncks Corner, S.C.

Best the Ol' Trouble Shooter can do is suggest that Casey's new owner drop you a note. The address is: Donna Stewart, RR 4, Box 5-B, Moncks Corner, S.C. 29461.

Got a Problem? write The Trouble Shooter, P.O. Box 11626 Santa Ana, Calif., 92711. PLEASE DO NOT TELEPHONE YOUR PROBLEM TO US. ONE OF TWO DELICATELY BALANCED MODEL AIRPLANES BY REID LUNDSTROM

Modelers Let Imagination Soar

By CAROLE KEMP
Register Staff Writer

The Wright brothers wouldn't have believed their eyes if they had seen the fanciful creations made of such unlikely materials as nuts and bolts, bread dough, pink and purple felt, devil's food cake and even a wilted carrot.

Though most of them obviously would never get off the ground, the creations of members of Alpha Signa Chi (air transportation students) at Santa Ana College were model airplanes.

Some entrants in the model plane building contest were promised class credit for participating in the event held this week on the campus.

The 42 entries were judged by representatives from Air California, Continental, American and Western airlines and Stewart Case, community services director.

The grand prize, two round trip tickets to San Francisco, was won by Lisa Holck for her string art project. Wanda Durand won a Hughes Air West beach towel for her imaginative "Wanda's plane-old eggs."

The remaining winners qualified for such prizes as a Hughes Air West tote bag, a free haircut and styling from Hair Happenings, and two free tickets each from Knott's Berry Farm and Movieland Wax Museum.

The smallest was Sherrie Munich's entry made of little rocks, while the largest was a stuffed black and red airplane by Carole Spencer.

Approximately 200 students are enrolled in the air transportation program. It offers pilot ground school as well as flight attendants' training.

CLUB PRESIDENT BRENDA McCOSH

Transit Panel Chief Elected

By CHARLES ROBERTS
Register Staff Writer

SANTA ANA – –Fountain Valley Mayor Al Hollinden was unanimously elected chairman Thursday of the new Orange County Transportation Commission which will have sweeping powers over how federal and state highway and mass transit funds will be spent.

County Supervisor Ralph Diedrich was elected vice-chairman at the commission's founding meeting.

Rounding out the commission membership were Supervisor Ralph Clark and Santa Ana City Councilman David Brandt.

Among the commission's first acts was to begin the search for a fifth member to be chosen from the public at-large. The only stipulation is that the person cannot have been an elected official within the past 10 years.

In other housekeeping chores handled by the commission:

– The second and fourth Mondays of each month at 9 a.m. were selected as regular meeting dates. Meetings will be held in the supervisors' hearing room in the county hall of administration.

– Two committees, of two commissioners each, were created to develop recommendations as to how to acquire interim staff and legal service, and interim office space and financial planning.

The commission was created by AB 1246 which became effective Jan. 1. Authored by Assemblyman Walter Ingalls, D-Riverside, the bill also created commissions in Los Angeles, Riverside and San Bernardino counties.

Each commission will serve as an umbrella agency over each county's transportation planning. Its power will come from its control of the federal and state tax funds that flow to local agencies.

Exactly how the commission may exert that power is left pretty much up to the commissioners to decide, said D.J. Smith, an aide to Ingalls who attended the meeting.

However, he recommended moving swiftly to find a staff to begin reviewing the incoming flood of applications for federal and state funds.

William Ackerman, director of transportation planning for the Southern California Association of Governments (SCAG), a regional clearinghouse for applications for federal grants told commissioners that by July they will need to review the following:

– A 1977-78 Unified Work Program which includes funding for studies and plans requested by Orange County Transit District and the county's multi-model transportation committee.

– A SCAG Regional Transportation Plan which calls for a two-cent a gallon increase in gasoline taxes to be used in local highway improvements and mass transit operations.

– A Federal Aid Urban (FAU) program drafted by the county FAU committee identifying road projects for funding.

– SB325 (state taxes earmarked for transportation) funds which are a principle source of the transit district's finances.

– A priority list of transportation projects throughout the county which involve state and federal funding.

TO FIGHT CONTRACTOR'S $3 MILLION SUIT

Irvine District To Hire Lawyer

By RICH SEELEY
Register Staff Writer

IRVINE – A private attorney will be hired to defend the Irvine Unified School District against a $3 million suit filed by the concrete contractor involved in the construction of Irvine High School.

District trustees this week authorized the administration to find an attorney after the county counsel, the trustees' legal adviser, said his office had too heavy a case load to handle the Superior Court suit.

Once the attorney is hired, a counter claim will be filed against the Olson Construction Company, which filed suit against the district in December, Supt. Stanley Corey said.

The Olson firm alleges that the district owes it over $3 million in damages and construction costs because of delays, interference and added work caused through breach of contract by the district.

The charges and suit result from the trustees refusal to accept as completed the concrete work Olson did last year on the new high school under a $2.5 million contract with the district.

Although Olson said it completed work on the school on June 18, 1976, the district has withheld a final payment of $259,969.30.

The district has refused to approve Olson's work or make the final payment because the color and finish of the outer concrete walls of the school buildings are not acceptable under contract specifications, a district spokesman said.

While Olson has set the $3 million figure for damages, the amount of any award it wins will be determined by the court, according to Oscar F. Irwin, attorney for the construction firm.

District trustees denied Olson's claim for the funds in November.

A district spokesman said the suit might be settled out of court, but so far negotiations between Olson and the district have been "frustrating for both sides."

Irvine High School opened in September to approximately 750 ninth and tenth grade students.

Cabinet work and other finishing work is being done on a few remaining buildings, but most construction work on the high school is finished, the district spokesman said.

Anthony Campaign Took In $288,526

By LARRY PETERSON
Register Staff Writer

SANTA ANA – Philip Anthony received more than three times as much campaign money as his opponent in his successful bid last fall for the first district supervisor slot, figures made public this week indicate.

In the weeks following Anthony's November victory, county developers – all outside Anthony's district – continued their previous role as his most conspicuous campaign bankrollers.

On the surface, a $10,000 donation from Amco Builders supply of Costa Mesa appears to dominate the $122,700 in contributions reported by Anthony since Oct. 19, just before the election.

But that amount is almost equaled by the $3,200 he got from Phillip Reilly, president of the Mission Viejo Co., and the $2,000 each he was given by Hon Development Co. of Laguna Hills, Rancho Mission Viejo and the Presley Co. of Newport Beach.

Anthony got $1,000 from each of more than a dozen other contributors, most of them Newport Beach developers.

His biggest individual contributor was one-time Howard Hughes attorney Frank Waters, a member of the county assessment appeals board. He gave $5,000.

Other major givers were Newport Beach businessman James Roosevelt, $4,000; the locally active Shappell Industries development firm of Beverly Hills, lobbyist Frank Michelena; and the Political Action Committee of Fullerton, $2,750 each.

Contributing $2,500 each were Huntington Beach realtor Harold Morr, Calabasas jeweler Martin Kirschner, the Irvine-based Pension Funds of America, and Land Recovery Systems and Orange County Steel Salvage, both of Anaheim.

Pension Funds of America is owned by onetime organized crime informant Gene Conrad, who has filed a $170 million federal wiretapping suit against the district attorney's office.

If you're an ant it's a huge mural, but for humans it is definitely a "miniature."

Private Water Company Sues City Of Orange

SANTA ANA – A privately owned water company filed suit in Superior Court here Thursday seeking to halt the expansion of city of Orange water service into its area.

Orange Park Acres Mutual Water Co. is seeking $300,000 in damages and in injunction prohibiting the city from future extensions of water service into the east Orange area where it operates.

The suit alleges that the city has constructed water facilities and required property owners and developers in an annexed area to accept city water service.

Orange City Atty. Furman Roberts said the city has not taken away any existing customers of the water company but has only required new housing tracts to connect up to the city's system.

He said the city requires a developer to put in the water line as part of the street construction and then turn over ownership of the streets and pipeline to the city.

Media Blasted For Decline In Tourism In Mexico

By RITA ROBINSON
Register Staff Writer

COSTA MESA – The tourism committee chairman for the Commission of the Californias said Thursday a nationwide news media conspiracy has caused a "drastic decline" in tourists visiting Baja California.

Bernard R. Thompson was the key speaker at a luncheon for members of the commission, a group formed to improve relations between the border states of Mexico and North America. The commission is conducting a three-day convention at South Coast Plaza.

He said Mexico should be booming with tourists because of the devaluation of the peso and the market-place bargains it has produced.

"It is an ideal time for renewed interest in tourism, but there also has been a renewed effort by those responsible for propaganda against Mexico," he said.

Thompson said the conspiracy began shortly after Nov. 19, 1975, the date when then-president Luis Escheverria of Mexico joined with the third world countries at the United Nations and denounced Israel.

He said that since then, there have been exaggerated news accounts of crimes in Mexico against American tourists.

Mexico has received negative publicity, some deserved, some not. Many of the stories, but not all, are factual," he said.

Thompson blamed much of the negative publicity on exaggerated headlines. "The headlines take something minor in the story out of context and blow it up," he said.

He called it taking "editorial liberties."

He also charged that U.S. news media have the habit of taking news from Mexico that is old news and making it a big story at the opportune moment, such as when the peso was devalued.

"It is old news," he said. "It happened weeks before."

He noted an incident that occurred early last year.

At a camp south of Ensenada, a raid by bandits, some in uniform, converged on the campers with guns drawn, robbing them of their money while telling them they were searching for illegal drugs, he said.

The incident has come to be referred to as Punta Banda. Thompson, who is a California member of the commission, admits the incident is true. But, he said, the results have been different from what would have happened in the U.S.

"Those bandits were caught, tried, convicted and are currently serving long prison terms," he said. "I might add that the system here wouldn't work that quickly."

Thompson made an analogy of the overplay of crime stories from Mexico: "It would be the same thing in the U.S. if we printed a story on every mugging in Washington, D.C. or Central Park."

Thompson, who ended his speech to a standing ovation, said it is up to the commission to stop the conspiracy by "stepping forward with the truth."

Day Care Center Gains Irvine Council Support

The city council has decided to co-sponsor the Irvine Community Nursery School whose directors, a group of local mothers, were recently forced to postpone a cooperative day care operation because a city building the group planned to use failed to meet state preschool standards.

The city will provide no tax money for the project.

The school has been in operation for five years. Through most of that time, the school directors had an agreement for use of a local church. That agreement ended Jan. 3 and the 60 parents of the 3- and 4-year-old youngsters had to look for a new location. Since at least one parent of each child is involved in the operation of the school, the parents sought an inexpensive alternative.

City co-sponsorship, the group believes, will add strength to their "low cost" and "high quality teaching" objective, in their attempt to find a location for its three classes.

To use a school site, said Gene Hartline, Irvine Unified School District business superintendant, the group has to meet the criteria as being "non-profit" and has "open enrollment" for residents of the district, which Hartline says the group has done. Tentatively, plans are to let the group begin using the Woodbridge school site Jan. 17, through June 30, said Hartline.

In September, the operation will be shifted to the Greentree Elementary School, 4200 Manzanita, where a kindergarten classroom and play areas will be available, Hartline said.

The cost to the parents will be limited to custodial, maintenance and utility expenses, which will be approximately $150 per month, Hartline said.

Agency Names New Chairman

SANTA ANA – Tustin Councilman Don Saltarelli has been elected chairman of the county Local Agency Formation Commission.

Saltarelli, a three-year veteran on the panel and immediate past vice-chairman, replaces fifth district Supervisor Thomas Riley at the helm of the group. Riley remains a member of the commission.

Recently elected first district Supervisor Philip Anthony was chosen to replace Saltarelli as vice-chairman

Home Builders Crack Down On 'Speculators'

MISSION VIEJO – Two of the largest builders and land developers in south Orange County have announced a crackdown on "housing speculation" aimed at preventing new homebuyers from selling their homes without living in them.

Both the Mission Viejo Company and the Laguna Niguel Realty Company subsidiary of Avco Community Developers Inc., disclosed plans to prevent the immediate resale of new homes by buyers who decide to sell at a profit before the homes clear escrow.

In Mission Viejo a new home purchase policy now limits buyers to one owner-occupied home per customer. In addition, the company will cancel the sale of any home put on the market for speculation. The company will cancel any sale if the new owner tries to list the property for sale or make any agreement to resell the home, rather than occupy it.

The Laguna Niguel company has taken similar steps and, like Mission Viejo, has tightened restrictions on home lotteries or drawings so that title cannot be transferred before the home clears escrow.

Work To Begin On LN Housing Development

LAGUNA NIGUEL – Grading will start next week on a 32.5 acre development near the Orange County regional courthouse with 125 homes to be offered at $80,000 to $100,000.

The $9 million tract will feature a dedicated park and "ocean views" according to a spokesman for the Hollenbeck Development Company of Santa Ana which is developing the tract as a joint venture with Mariners Saving and Loan Association of Newport Beach.

Irvine Board Accepts $3.5 Million Grant For New Woodbridge School

IRVINE — A $3.5 million federal grant for construction of the planned Woodbridge Middle School was officially accepted by Irvine Unified School District trustees this week.

Trustees also authorized the district administration to complete the remaining paperwork required by the Economic Development Administration of the U.S. Department of Commerce before it can officially grant the money.

Final approval is expected within a month, said David E. King, director of facilities planning and development for the district. Under the terms of the grant, construction must begin within 90 days after the district receives the money.

That will be no problem, King said. "We're ready to start construction, right now."

The grant is authorized under the Federal Public Works Act of 1976.

The Woodbridge Middle School is to be located at 3 Lemongrass. Construction is scheduled to be completed in time for school in Sept. 1977, a district spokesman said.

VICTIM OF ATTACK PROTESTS BROWN DEATH PENALTY STAND

By CHERYL PRUETT
Register Staff Writer

ORANGE – Mrs. Mary Campbell has a very personal reason for supporting the death penalty and she's letting Gov. Edmund Brown Jr. know about it.

Mrs. Campbell, a near-murder victim, mailed the governor a letter Thursday concerning the current controversy over the death penalty and its constitutionality, and taking the opposite view from the governor's stated position.

"I'm not one who would wish anyone death, but I think it would prevent these men from committing crimes," said Mrs. Campbell.

On Oct. 31, 1975, Mrs. Campbell was the victim of a brutal assault in which she was left for dead in an orange grove in the El Modena area. She was found with severe cuts on the face and throat, stabbed in the chest and with her left wrist cut nearly to the bone.

The 28-year-old cab driver who attacked her was arrested and convicted of attempted murder. He is now serving a life sentence.

The 45-year-old Mrs. Campbell wrote the governor, "I know it is difficult to make such a decision to put another human to death. I wouldn't want that on my conscience, either, as you have so expressed in the news media...

"But I do believe that the fear of a death sentence would stop an individual who goes out to commit rape, kidnap and torture...

"I am a living example of being a victim of assault with a deadly weapon with an attempt to commit rape and murder."

In her letter Mrs. Campbell described her ordeal and the four-hour operation during which doctors worked to keep her alive. She said she still has very little use of her hand and fingers, is scarred, has a wired breastbone and will require more surgery on her wrist.

"I only hope and pray that you will read this letter and maybe know the fear that I still go through, fear not just for myself, but also for my 12-year-old daughter and other daughters and their mothers and, yes, even their grandmothers...

"If the death penalty had not been vetoed by you the criminals would not feel free to roam the streets...The irony of this whole matter is that the vote of the taxpayers of this state doesn't mean a thing."

California voters approved capital punishment by a 2-1 margin in 1972, but last month the California Supreme Court declared it unconstitutional. Since then three bills have been introduced to re-instate the death penalty. The first hearings are scheduled in one week.

Brown, who has promised to veto death penalty bills "as a matter of conscience," proposed as an alternative a new penalty of life in prison without possibility of parole.

In 1960, Brown, then 22, urged his father, Gov. Edmund Brown Sr., to stay the execution of Caryl Chessman. After eight stays of execution on a 1948 case convicting him of robbery, kidnaping and attempted rape, Chessman was put to death May 2, 1960.

In 1967, the younger Brown picketed outside San Quentin against what has proved to be the last execution in California.

Mrs. Campbell, who said she believes the death penalty will deter criminals, hopes that something will come out of her writing to Gov. Brown and that "maybe other people will write, too."

Barking Dogs Owner Will Get Rude Awakening

ABERDEEN, N.C. (AP) – There is a measure of justice here for people whose night's sleep is broken by a neighbor's barking dog.

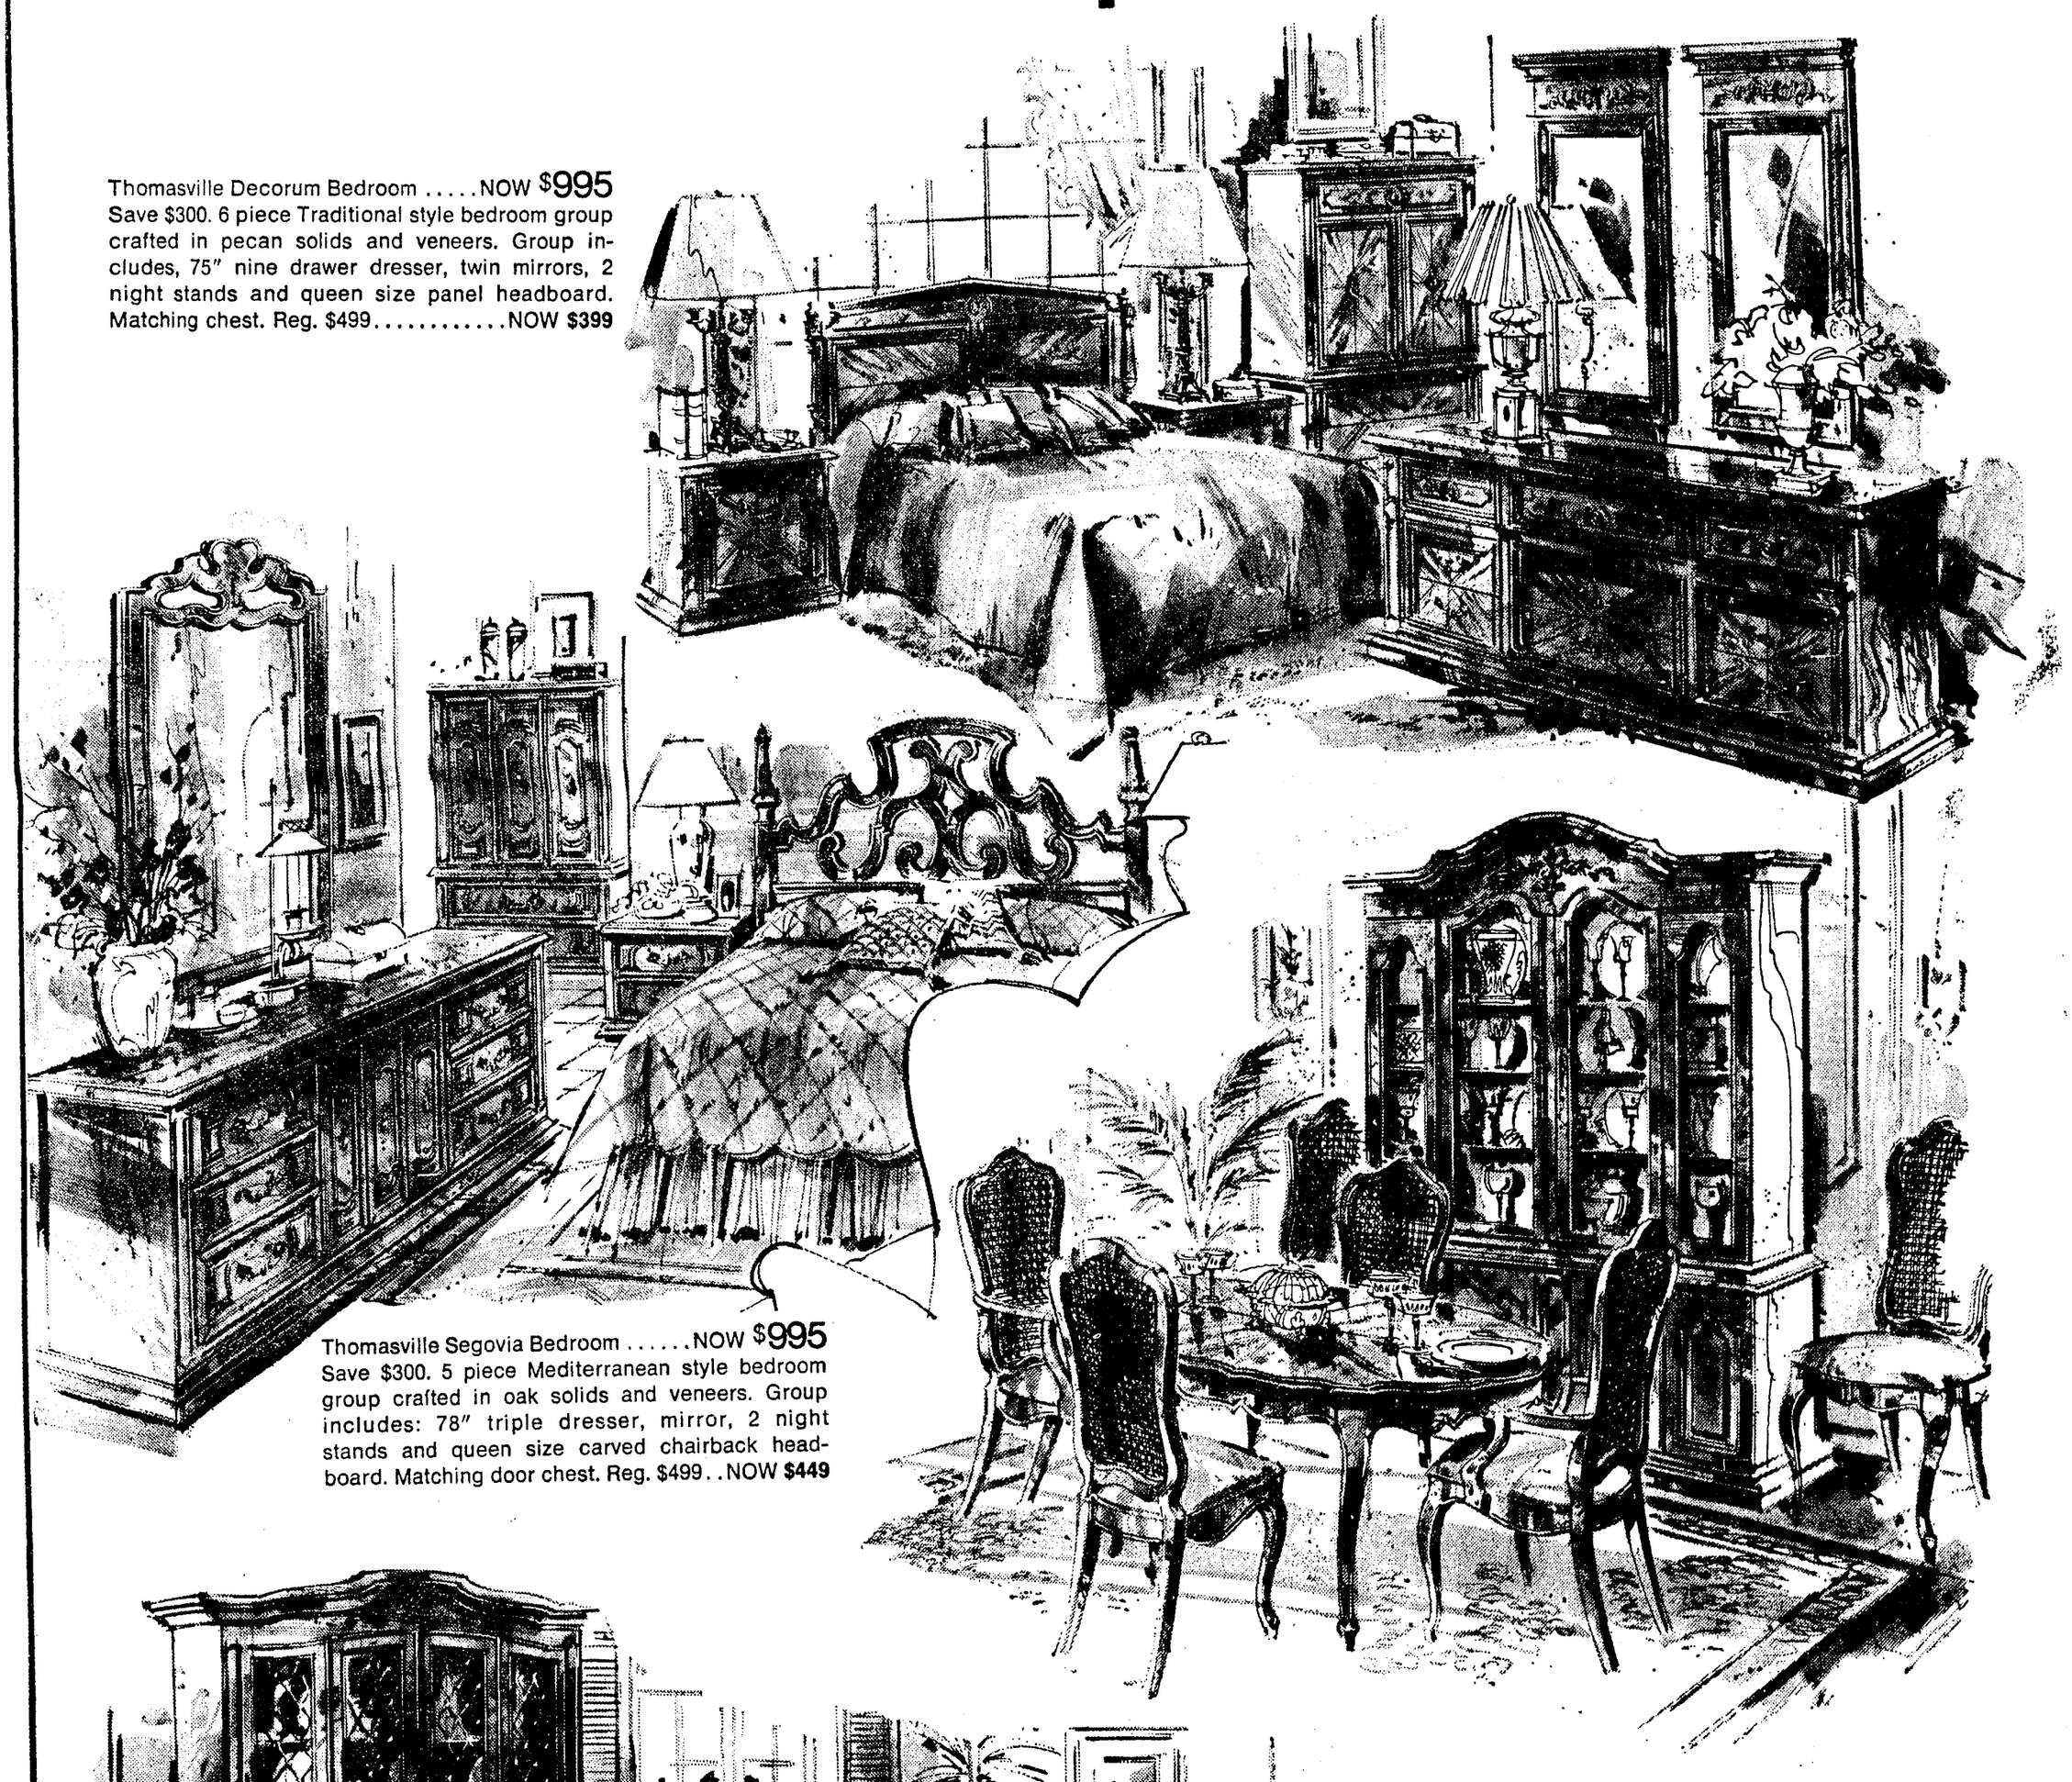

The town board has established an "Awake-the-Owner Program."

All an involuntary insomniac has to do is call the police with the name of a barking dog's owner. Police will wake up the owner too.

The program has gotten mixed reviews. Its founder, Clifton Blue Jr., says it's working. Blue is on the town board, oversees the police department and is managing editor of the Sandhill Citizen.

NB Will Fund Counseling Program

NEWPORT BEACH – A counseling program for juveniles in trouble with the law is expected to receive about $9,000 from the city this year.

Councilmen have decided to contribute $90 for each youth referred to the Assessment Treatment Services Center, where an estimated 100 juveniles from here are expected to be referred.

It marks the first time the city has helped fund the ATSC, which has been financed almost entirely through private donations from individuals, corporations and foundations, an ATSC spokesman said.

Since the counseling center opened two years ago, city officials have turned down funding requests because they said the program should be financed by the county.

But the police department put in a good word for the program, which apparently led to the council's decision this week.

"It's a terrific place. I don't know how we got along without it," said one juvenile officer of the ATSC.

Police claim new legislation that dilutes the authority of law enforcement officers in dealing with truants, incorrigibles, runaways and other status offenders makes the counseling center's program a valuable tool in dealing with difficult family problems.

The counseling center, located at 1640 E. Bristol St. just south of Orange County Airport, has a $70,000 annual operating budget and is staffed by one deputy probation officer and one psychologist. Officials at the center say they have counseled more than 400 families since opening in December 1974.

Their clientele, referred by police departments, come from Irvine, Tustin, Huntington Beach, Costa Mesa and Newport Beach.

Last year, however, Costa Mesa contributed $3,500 to ATSC and will be asked to increase its support this year to help foot the center's operation.

Costa Mesa referred about 40 juveniles to the center last year, and Newport Beach referred about 100, an ATSC spokesman said.

Village Laguna Slates Forum

LAGUNA BEACH – Village Laguna, Inc., is sponsoring a public forum on Laguna Canyon Road at 8 p.m. Jan 17 in city council chambers, 505 Forest Ave.

Fran Engelhardt of Village Laguna, an agency to preserve the city's village atmosphere, said city, county and state officials will discuss proposals to widen the road, install a divider or bus line, or keep it as it is.

Michael Sobley, Laguna Greenbelt executive director will speak against widening. City Councilman Jack McDowell will present pro-widening arguments.

Environmental Law Specialist Named

SANTA ANA — John R. Griset has been named by county Counsel Adrian Kuyper to replace Ralph Benson as the county's environmental law specialist.

Griset, a deputy counsel for eight years, has supervised the county counsel's school law specialists.

Benson quit last month, charging that county supervisors ordered him assigned to other duties because of pressure from developer's lobbyists.

Kutper claimed — and the supervisors denied — that the supervisors made Benson's transfer a condition of retaining Kuyper in his $51,288-a-year post.

Supervisor Laurence Schmit said supervisors asked Kuyper to reassign Benson because he let his "environmentalist" viewpoint affect legal advice he gave the county. Benson denied the charge.

SB Councilman Resigns Post

SEAL BEACH – Veteran councilman Harold Holden, 82, who attempted to resign Dec. 27 provided he could name his successor, made the resignation stick the second time around. He dropped the demand that he name his replacement.

Councilmen were advised by the city attorney that they have 30 days to name a replacement for Holden whose term expires in 1978.

Mini-Skateboard Park Study OKd

LAGUNA BEACH – The city council this week directed its skateboard committee to study the feasibility of a mini-skateboard park behind Riddle softball field.

"I think we all see the need for a small skateboard park operated by the city," vice mayor John Brand said.

Brand said a meeting would be called next month for reports on insurance costs and availability, resurfacing expenses and the possiblity of skateboarders forming a dues-paying association to offset those costs. Insurance was estimated at $3,000 per month.

The skateboard park, however, would not solve the problem of four-wheelers speeding down Laguna streets, an activity that has drawn numerous complaints from motorists and pedestrians in recent months.

Skateboarding enthusiast Ed Gottschlich of Oak Street Inc., surf shop, said skateboarding is becoming an essential mode of transportation. He said the park would be primarily a "service for the kids."

But, said Brand, "Instead of 200 kids in the streets, there may be 100 kids in the streets."

"They'll probably skateboard in the streets to get there," quipped an audience member.

Love Oil Firm Gets Fine For Shortweighing

LOS ANGELES (AP) – A "love oil" distributing firm apparently was operated on the belief that its potion was so potent that not too much was needed.

But a court didn't see things that way.

Municipal Court Commissioner Meyer Newman fined Jefferson Sales Co. $1,000 after the distributor pleaded no contest to two counts of shortweighting. The firm was also placed on two years' probation.

Tustin Sets Special Projects Fund

TUSTIN – A special fund to pay for such projects as parks, street improvements and flood control devices is being set up by the city council, which is adding a safeguard against the money being used for other reasons.

No money is in the capital improvements fund, yet. But under the plan, the revenue will be set aside in an account similar to a trust fund. The money could be derived from such sources as gifts, budget surpluses, or an appropriated amount set aside each year to pay for a future project, said City Administrator Bill Bopf.

But once the money is in the fund, it will take a two-thirds vote of the electorate to withdraw it for uses other than its original purpose, Bopf said. For example, if money was needed to balance the budget or to hire another employe, an election would have to be held to withdraw the money from the special fund.

The special fund will be up for a final vote Monday. It is being pushed through in anticipation of the city's Jan. 26 hearing before the Local Agency Formation Commission for the proposed annexation of 500 acres of Irvine Co. land.

The land, located north of the Santa Ana Freeway and bounded by Browning and Bryan avenues and Myford Road, now is in agricultural preserve but is expected to be developed when that designation expires in seven years. It is in Tustin's sphere of influence.

The council has indicated it wants to put 70 per cent of the general tax revenue it will receive from the land, after it is annexed to the city, into the special fund. In seven years, when the land is apt to be developed, the city then will be prepared to make the necessary improvements, Bopf said.

The city is pre-zoning the land for four planned community residential units per acre, Bopf said.

The mayor also has signed an agreement that the city will cooperate in planning the development of the land, so that the plans can be enacted quickly once the land no longer is in agricultural preserve.

Man Found Guilty In Vandal Attacks

LOS ANGELES – The former business agent of a theater union has been convicted of arranging a series of attacks by vandals at several non-union theaters in Los Angeles and Orange counties, including the Broadway in Santa Ana.

Frank McBryde was found guilty Tuesday of 12 felony charges of conspiracy, arson, grand theft and burglary. He is to be sentenced Feb. 4.

The verdict was returned after three days of deliberations by the Los Angeles Superior Court jury.

McBryde formerly was an official with the International Alliance of Theatrical Stage Employes Theater Projectionists union Local 150.

Another member of the union, Harry Brotton, is to go on trial on similar charges next month, and a third man charged in the case, Merlin Adler, was sentenced to a year in county jail after pleading guilty to conspiracy and burglary in June 1975.

Adler testified as a prosecution witness about stink-bombings, fire-bombings and break-ins at the theaters, and said that McBryde and Brotton used him as a conduit to get money and instructions to young groups of vandals.

The charges against McBryde and Brotton were filed following an 18-month investigation by the organized crime intelligence unit of the Los Angeles County district attorney's office.

Court Impounds Art Treasures

KYOTO, Japan (AP) – A Kyoto district court impounded hundreds of art treasures Thursday from the Higashi Hongwanji temple, one of Japan's major Buddhist temples, for failure to pay off two promissory notes.

The notes, each for about $170,000, were issued by Koyo Otani, 73-year-old chief abbot of the Shinshu sect's Otani school and a brother-in-law of Empress Nagako. The money was used to build a welfare center.

Court officials said the items seized included a scripture written by the sect's 17th Century founder, St. Shinran.

Carter Son Denies Part In Firm Promotion

CHICAGO (AP) – Jack Carter, eldest son of President-elect Jimmy Carter, has denied any intentional use of his family name to promote a Calhoun, Ga., carpet company which he represents as corporate attorney.

"I am the son of the next president of the United States," he said. "If somebody wants to say that, I can't stop them."

But he added, "It's not something I would have done if I was in charge," referring to the use of his family relationship in promoting Commercial Contract Carpet Mill, Inc., a subsidiary of Contract Carpet & Interiors, Inc., of Chicago.

Jack Carter was identified as the son of President-elect Carter in both the release announcing a promotional news conference Wednesday and an invitation for a carpet company reception later Wednesday night.

Carter said, "You can make a story out of just anything. I think this has been blown out of proportion....What I did for this corporation was purely legal business.".

Carter said his father was not aware of the matter, adding, "I never would have thought to talk to Dad about it."

Carter, who works for his father-in-law's law firm, Langford, Pope and Bailey, in Calhoun, said CCM already was represented by the firm when he returned to Georgia and the firm after the presidential campaign.

He said he received approximately $650 in fees for handling initial legal business for CCM and expected to receive between $35 and $40 an hour from the company while representing it Wednesday in Chicago.

"They wanted me to come (to Chicago). I didn't think it was an unfair request," Carter said.

Herb Kraus of Manning, Selvage and Lee, Inc., a public relations firm, said he took responsibility for including Carter's presidential relationship in the initial press release and invitation. "I just put it in to identify who he was," Kraus added.

CCM's parent company, Contract Carpet & Interiors, provides carpeting and design services for government and commercial buildings. It carpeted Chicago's Sears Tower, the nation's largest building, as well as several other major Chicago office buildings.

Plan To Lower Radiation Levels Eyed

WASHINGTON (AP) – The Environmental Protection Agency has proposed lowering the amount of radiation the general public can receive from intentional discharge of radioactive material by nuclear power production.

EPA Administrator Russell E. Train said the new standards would allow about 20 times less permissible exposure than current rules.

"These standards establish an important precedent in radiation protection because they consider the long-term potential buildup of radiation in the environment," Train said in a statement.

"We believe it is essential to deal with this total potential impact because long-lived radionuclides in the environment represent an irreversible exposure to future generations," he said.

Under the new standards, any member of the public would be limited to a maximum annual radiation dose of 25 millirems to the whole body and most internal organs. Current rules put the maximum annual dose at 500 millirems.

Dose limits apply to all sources of radiation except that from medical activities, such as X rays, and natural background radiation already present in the environment.

The EPA also would cut the quantities of long-lived radioactive isotopes and other material allowed to be released throughout the nuclear fuel cycles. This covers fuel operations from the time uranium ore leaves mines, becomes fuel, is used up and eventually is recycled back into the fuel supply, the EPA said.

Long-lived radioactive material, which can remain highly radioactive for thousands of years, included in the new standards are plutonium, krypton-85, iodine-129 and other isotopes from uranium.

The proposed regulations will be published for public comment and implemented afterward after possible revisions.

The WEEDERS GUIDE

By EARL ARONSON
AP Newsfeatures

Apartment dwellers with no land tell me on occasion that I neglect them when it comes to gardening. Well, we spotted an apartment dweller's dream among Ortho's book of "Gardening Shortcuts" that we'd like to pass on to those with an available porch.

It is called "Salad Tree" and can produce lettuce, tomatoes and cucumbers. Here's what you need: A board one inch thick, a foot wide and five feet tall. Fasten two-inch mesh hog wire to the board so that the wire rounds outward. Set the "tree" in a box or big bucket of sphagnum moss and soil on your porch and plant. The secret is the five-foot height. The tomatoes and cucumbers will climb the wire. Plant lettuce at the bottom.

Free Compost Booklet

You can get a free, 20-page booklet written in cooperation with the non-profit Soil Assn. Entitled "A Lot of Rot on Gardens" the booklet explains simply how garden compost can act as a soil conditioner and a fertilizer to improve your flowers and vegetables (without chemical fertilizers).

A compost pile is a man-made device by which the natural process of decomposition is speeded up so that animal and vegetable waste can be used to improve the soil and make plant nutrients more readily available to plants.

"Compost made from a good variety of common ingredients can directly supply your plants with all the nitrogen, phosphorus and potassium they need, as well as many other minerals," says the booklet. Compost can be used as a mulch to establish a weed-free blanket between rows to protect plant roots from drought and cold. Compost is a soil conditioner that encourages earthworms that enrich the ground.

Good composting materials to use from the garden include remains of vegetable crops, weeds, lawn clippings, leaves and hedge trimmings.

From the household add to the compost pile wood ashes, orange peels, egg shells, coffee grounds and scraps of wool and cotton, well mixed and moistened.

The booklet is available through Rotocrop, (58 Buttonwood St., New Hope, Pa.), manufacturers of compost bins.

New Garden Books

Spring will come sooner to those who read "The Language of Flowers," a delightful tiny book that first appeared in 1913 when "Father wanted to give Mother a present on their golden wedding anniversary." The author remains secret. In his little English book, published in a pretty, facsimile edition by Harmony Books (Crown Publishers, New York) "Father" fashioned a dictionary of traditional meanings of more than 700 flowers. The book is handscripted with dainty water colored flowers and plants from abatina (fickleness) to zinnia (thoughts of absent friends).

For those who fancy raising plants in self-contained environments comes a new paperback book, "Terrariums," by Allan A. Swenson, (Fawcett, Greenwich, Conn.), an old acquaintance who has moved to the Maine we left many years ago.

In his own words, "Terrariums" provides just about all you'll need to know about "this wonderful way of raising plants and flowers indoors."

The proper soil mix, light and water, propagating plants, tropical fish and aquatic plants, and where to buy — these are some of the aspects Swenson discusses.

GARDENER'S CALENDAR

1. It pays to buy a good pair of sharp shears to prune trees and shrubs. When thinning never leave stubs long enough to hang your hat on. Cut flush to the limb. When heading back limbs cut to a bud that will grow in the desired direction.

2. Spray for peach leaf curl now. Peach trees and nectarines may suffer the severe fungus attack this spring without it.

3. Watch roses for signs that buds are beginning to swell. When they do, sharpen the pruning shears and go to work.

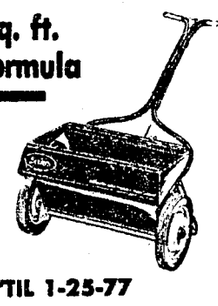

4. Houseplants requiring the most light should be rotated in winter to windows with a southern exposure.

5. Don't neglect watering duties just because it's cold. Container plants especially should be watered during the dry spells between winter rains.

CARING FOR YOUR CAR: TIPS ON BATTERY

By RAY HILL

Sooner or later your battery is going to get tired and expire. With a little planning, you can replace that tired battery with a new one before the old one gives up the ghost. And by installing the new battery yourself, you can save the installation charge, plus check out a few things that your local gas station attendant might miss.

How do you know when your battery is going to that battery hunting ground in the sky? Well, the average battery's life span is four years – if it's taken care of (more on battery care a little later). But it could give up the ghost before then or it might last a little longer.

To keep on top of how your battery is doing, add water to the cells regularly and check the battery with a hydrometer once every couple of months. You can buy a hydrometer yourself – it's only a dollar or two – or you can have the gas station attendant use his. The hydrometer is easy to use, and instructions that come with it tell you how to use it.

Also, every three or four months, and certainly before each winter sets in, have your local gas station attendant or mechanic run a check on your battery with his voltmeter – this is to measure the battery's ability to hold a charge. The test is quick, easy and won't cost anything. If the battery is losing its ability to hold a charge, then replacement time is getting near.

Okay, let's say your old battery isn't cranking the engine over as strongly as it used to, and your local mechanic says it's new battery time. Buy one and take it home.

Next step is to remove the old battery.

First, remove the two battery cables. They may be bolted on to the side of the battery. If so, remove the two bolts and lay the cables off to one side. Others are connected on top of the battery. The terminal connections may be held together by a bolt and nut, or they may be the type that you squeeze apart with pliers.

Regardless of which type of connection you have, remove the ground terminal (that's the post marked with a minus sign) first. That's to keep sparks from flying if you accidentally touch the wrench or pliers against other metal.

Next step is to remove the battery hold-down. That's the strap-like device that runs across the top of the battery or around its top edge and holds it in place. The hold-down is usually held on by a couple of bolts or nuts. Just remove them and lift the hold-down off.

Now the battery can be lifted out of its tray. It's heavy though. So position your legs and back so you've got a good strong stance before you lift it out.

After you've removed the battery, don't immediately put the new one in. Inspect the tray that the battery sets in. If it's badly rusted and looks like it's about to give way at any time, scoot over to your auto parts store and get another one. Letting your battery fall into the fan is a sure way to ruin the battery and do some other expensive damage.

If the tray is rusting, but not severely, remove the rust with a scraper and sandpaper and paint the tray. If you must buy a replacement tray, try to find one that's plastic, then the rust problem is eliminated.

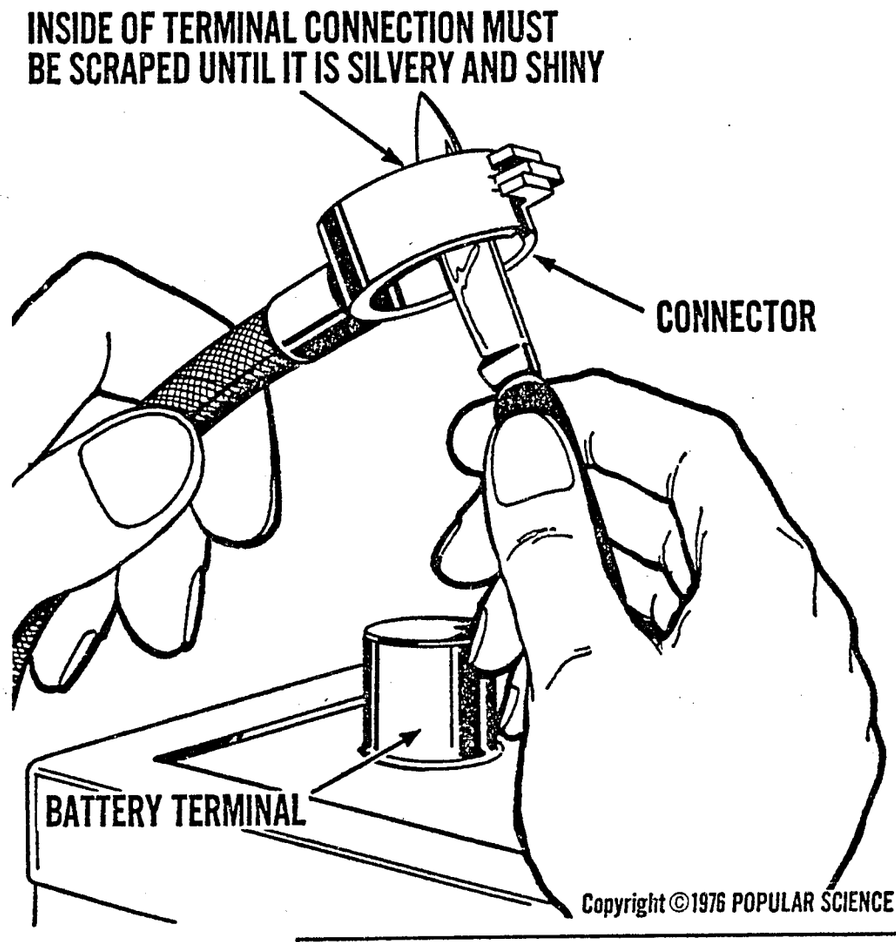

Next, inspect the battery cables throughout their entire length, paying particular attention to the terminal ends where they attach to the battery posts. Cables should not be frayed or nearly broken in two. If they are, replace them.

The cables are easy to replace. Just remove the bolt at the other end of each cable. Be careful, though, that any other wires that may be attached to the cable are reattached when you bolt the new cable on.

Clean any corrosion from the cable ends where they attach to the battery. If you have a terminal cleaner (available at auto-parts stores), use that. If not, use a knife to scrape the corrosion away. Regardless of whether corrosion is present, the inside of each cable terminal where it fits against the battery post should be scraped with a knife until it is bright and shiny. This makes possible a good electrical connection.

Okay, set the new battery in the tray, with the negative and positive posts in the same position as the old battery. Re-install the battery hold-down. Next re-attach the battery cables. Put the plus cable (that's the cable that attaches to the battery post marked with a plus sign), then attach the minus cable. Now your new battery is ready for service.

HIRING-HALL PRACTICES DECLARED ILLEGAL

SC Iron Workers Union Guilty

By JOHN O'DELL
Register Staff Writer

A major Southern California iron workers' union with 800 Orange County members has been found guilty of 76 violations of the National Labor Relations Act because of its hiring-hall practices.

The union, International Association of Bridge, Structural and Ornamental Iron Workers, Local 433, represents 3,250 workers in an area stretching south from Santa Barbara County to San Clemente and east into Las Vegas, Nev.

A federal administrative law judge ruled, in a case brought by a union member, that several business agents of the local were ignoring hiring rules and were illegally giving unqualified friends jobs that should have gone to others.

The union, according to NLRB rules, has until Jan. 21 to appeal the administrative judge's findings to the labor board's appeals hearing group in Washington, D.C.

A spokesman for Local 433 said Thursday the union will appeal the decision.

Richard Taplitz, the administrative law judge who heard the case in seven days of hearings last year, said in his 45-page statement of findings that 76 separate instances of illegal hiring practices by the union were proven by disgruntled union members who testified in the case.

He said several instances in which union business agents beat, seriously injured or threatened to injure or kill members for protesting the illegal practices were substantiated by testimony.

According to the union's contract with dozens of construction firms, all hiring of union-represented ironworkers is to be done exclusively through hiring halls located in various parts of Local 433's vast district.

Hiring, in most cases, is to be based on skill and the amount of time an individual ironworker has been without a job, the rules state.

Workers can be hired directly by an employer only if they have worked for the same employer within the previous 12-month period.

In his decision, Taplitz said he found those rules were ignored in 76 cases. He said, "It is apparent that (the) respondent's (labor union's) business agents divided...jurisdiction into fiefdoms from which they dispensed patronage.

"...applicants for employment (had) a reasonable basis for believing that access to employment depended on securing the good will of the business agents rather than on the objective criteria of the hiring hall."

Taplitz' order — subject to the NLRB if the union appeals — orders the union to pay lost wages to each of the 76 members who lost jobs to business agents' friends.

A spokesman for the NLRB's Los angeles regional office said if Taplitz' order stands, his office would compute the exact amount owed each worker.

Neil Herring, attorney for the employes who brought the action against Local 433, said he believes the union was found guilty of one of the longest lists of labor relations act violations on record.

He said settlement of back wages could amount to "several hundred thousand dollars."

Carter's Labor Choice Differs With New Boss

WASHINGTON (AP) — Labor Secretary-designate Ray Marshall expressed disappointment Thursday with parts of President-elect Carter's program to boost the economy, saying it doesn't provide enough jobs.

"I would have opted for a much larger package of public works and housing than we got in the package," said Marshall, the first of Carter's Cabinet choices to indicate disagreement with their new boss.

The Carter plan is a two-year, $30-billion package of tax cuts and job creation programs.

Sen. Paul Laxalt, R-Nev., said he would oppose the nomination when the committee votes next week because of Marshall's support for legislation that would expand union picketing powers at construction sites and repeal of a controversial provision in the Taft-Hartley Act, section 14-B, which authorizes states to ban union shop agreements.

STATE DENIES EQUIPMENT, MONEY LOSS

SACRAMENTO (AP) — California's top rehabilitation official Thursday denied allegations of lost equipment in the state-run work program for the blind.

But Ed Roberts, director of the Department of Rehabilitation, told a news conference that articles this week in the San Francisco Examiner triggered a stepped-up inventory to verify his belief that every dollar and all equipment can be accounted for.

Roberts said the allegations in the Examiner stories were "outrageous" and blew out of proportion problems that have been solved or are being solved.

Yet he said that after the first article appeared he went to top aides of Gov. Edmund Brown Jr. and beefed up an ongoing inventory with as much effort and expense as it takes to get the job done.

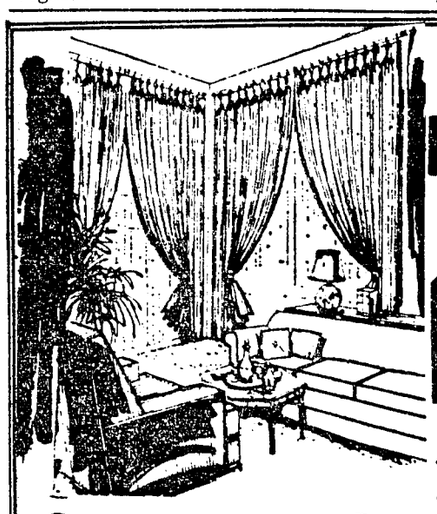

Roberts said the department had been working to correct problems brought out in the Examiner articles, and denied a report the department could not account for $3 million to $5 million in its trust fund for the blind.

Auditor General John Williams, in an interview, said the audit at the order of the Joint Legislative Audit Committee began last week. He said the audit will take about two months.

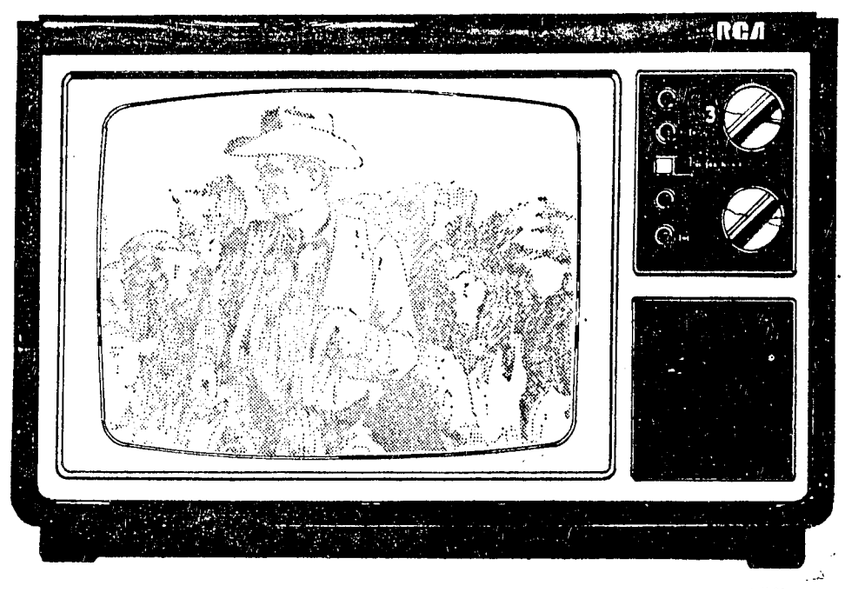

The state-run Business Enterprise Program for the Blind in California has 307 blind operators, employing 770 persons, many also handicapped, and a payroll exceeding $3 million a year, Roberts said. The program involves vending stands in state and federal buildings.

your horoscope

By Jeane Dixon

SATURDAY, JAN. 15

Your birthday today: You're at a pivotal point on the way into a new phase of personal development. Focus on latent potentials, seek effective channels to convert them into tangible achievements. Relationships run to deep involvement or detachment, depending on how your emerging character meshes or clashes with other parties. Today's natives are in professions requiring scholarly talents, seasoned judgment. Those born this year are magnetic, natural leaders of large groups.

Aries [March 21-April 19]: Your personal cycles are overridden by major celestial situations. It's a day for a fresh view, celebration mood, getting right to what interests you most.

Taurus [April 20-May 20]: A stream of family events sweeps you along. If alone, you form a temporary "family" with others in a similar state. Let each carry a fair share of expense.

Gemini [May 21-June 20]: No harm in asking for what you want. The worst that can happen is refusal; you're entitled to know why. Dealing with people in authority is easier.

Cancer [June 21-July 22]: Strong stimuli plunge you into a streak of creative effort. If you can begin a new business venture, make final preparations now to begin next Tuesday.

Leo [July 23-Aug. 22]: Today marks a transition to a different orientation that attracts new people, stirs revelations among old friends. All so natural you wonder why changes weren't made long ago.

Virgo [Aug. 23-Sept. 22]: Reconcile discrepancies, revise group plans. New contacts promise well for important future relationships. Diligence allows time for purely personal affairs.

Libra [Sept. 23-Oct. 22]: Assert your views, be definite about getting in on existing benefits. If you don't, other voices prevail, and you'll have to adapt to another program.

Scorpio [Oct. 23-Nov. 21]: A bright idea forces changes. With so much to do, time so short, you must let some items go, people fend for themselves, risk upsets by your blunt rush.

Sagittarius [Nov. 22-Dec. 21]: Try a direct approach only if tactful effort fails to bring the connection you want. Emotional ties are renewed or come into being where they didn't exist.

Capricorn [Dec. 22-Jan. 19]: Nothing is to be hurried. The emphasis is on savoring fine nuances of experience. If you must work, get it over with. Then share happiness with one who cares.

Aquarius [Jan. 20-Feb. 18]: Today is a broad but subtle turning point. Join friends in their rounds instead of expecting them to help you out. The unattached find new romantic appeal.

Pisces [Feb. 19-March 20]: You have a streak of luck running for you. Give others benefit of any doubt. Organize what's been hanging fire. Get ready for a new business activity next week.

Garcia's Bid To Move Trial To Another County Rejected

SAN FRANCISCO AP – A state appeals court has rejected Inez Garcia's bid to move her second murder trial out of Monterey County.

Mrs. Garcia, accused of killing a man she says held her while another man raped her, is scheduled to be back in Superior Court in Salinas Monday for continued questing of prospective jurors.

The state Court of Appeal declined Wednesday to hear her request for a venue change, which defense attorneys had sought on grounds that pretrial publicity and community prejudice made a fair trial impossible.

Monterey County Asst. Dist. Atty. Arthur Braudrich opposed the venue change, saying a switch to another county would mean added costs and there is "no reason this case should get special attention."

Mrs. Garcia was convicted Oct. 4, 1974, of second-degree murder in the shooting death of Miguel Jiminez. The case was overturned on appeal and a new trial ordered because of improper instructions given by the judge to the jury.

The case has become a cause celebre within the women's movement. Mrs. Garcia is currently free on $5,000 bail after serving 15 months of a five years to life prison sentence ordered before she won a new trial.

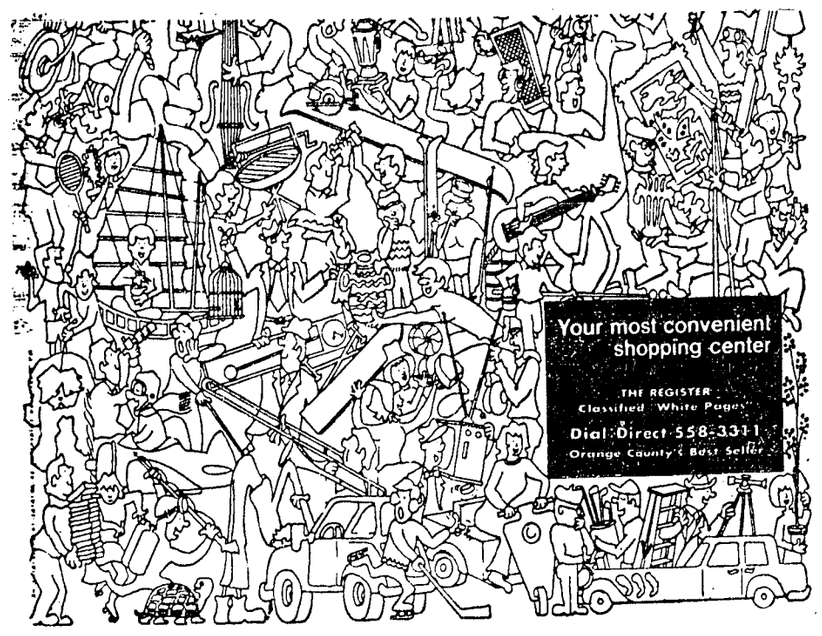

ACLU Legal Chief Gets Ax

NEW YORK (AP) – The American Civil Liberties Union's legal director, Melvin Wulf, has been forced to resign because of what he called "irreconcilable differences" with other ACLU officials over strategy and tactics.

Wulf's resignation was demanded and received by Executive Director Aryeh Neier and Chairman Norman Dorsen. It will be effective Feb. 1.

Wulf, 49, joined the ACLU in 1958 and became its legal director in 1962. Among those whose constitutional rights he has successfully defended before the U.S. Supreme Court were antiwar protestors, the Students for a Democratic Society and a newspaper editor who published an abortion advertisement.

The ACLU's Washington director, Charles Morgan Jr., quit last April and denounced what he called the "arrogance and bigotry often displayed by the Eastern Liberal Establishment."

SEAL BEACH BUZZ CASE TRIAL SET FOR MARCH 2

LONG BEACH – Theodore LaBelle, the 20-year-old Cal State Long Beach student accused of stealing an airplane and buzzing Seal Beach last Nov. 30, will go on trial in Superior Court here March 2.

LaBelle is charged with theft of an aircraft and assault with a deadly weapon after he allegedly tried to ram a police helicopter during the buzzing incident.

Authorities said LaBelle, of Seal Beach, was distraught over a quarrel with his girl friend when he allegedly stole the plane from Long Beach Municipal Airport and repeatedly buzzed her Seal Beach home.

LaBelle finally landed in a field at the Seal Beach Naval Weapons Depot, brandished a shotgun as police approached, then surrendered without a struggle, police said.

He is free on the $10,000 bail he posted four days after the incident.

Monthly School Bus Inspections OKd By Panel

SACRAMENTO (AP) – A compromise school bus inspection program, prompted by a crash that killed 28 Yuba City high school students and a teacher, was approved Thursday by a state school board committee.

The rules would require inspection once a month, or every 2,000 miles if that comes sooner, of bus hoses, belts, hydraulic brake fluid lines and reservoirs, and tank mounting brackets.

Failure of a brake system compressor belt has been blamed for the fatal bus crash on a highway offramp last May 21 near Martinez, east of San Francisco.

Last month the board approved requirements for weekly inspection of bus doors, seats and many other parts, in response to legislation that was passed after the bus crash.

But it put off action on inspection of such parts as belts and hoses because of testimony about the local cost involved.

Aides to state school Supt. Wilson Riles say such inspections once a week would cost about $17.5 million statewide because of the need for lifts and other equipment and the labor involved.

The monthly inspection is a compromise between weekly checks and the system in use now, which varies from district to district. Some areas already have monthly inspections of all parts, but in others it is much less frequent.

There are no estimates of the program's cost, but it is expected to be much less than weekly inspections would be.

The board committee voted to recommend the requirement to the full board meeting Friday despite reservations by committee chairman Michael Kirst.

"I'm still somewhat bothered by imposing costs when we don't know what the costs are," he said. "We've sort of nickeled and dimed the districts into significant costs."

Districts can apply to the state for reimbursement of costs from any program required by the state, but the process is sometimes cumbersome.

BY ATTORNEY GENERAL

Separate Hospital Death Probe Sought

SACRAMENTO (AP) – The state's Little Hoover Commission voted Thursday to ask the state attorney general to conduct a separate investigation of patient deaths at state mental hospitals.

The vote came at a public hearing where a staff doctor at Metropolitan State Hospital in Norwalk accused another doctor at the same hospital of being responsible for patient deaths, and accused other employes of sadistic mistreatment of patients.

Raymond Procunier, who is already heading a probe of the state hospital deaths at Gov. Edmund Brown Jr's request, said he would welcome a second investigation by the attorney general.

Procunier has said he has screened reports on 1,100 deaths at the state hospitals in the last three years, and has determined that 139 of them are highly questionable.

Last week he announced that all 139 cases will be submitted to local district attorneys, although he expected very few to result in criminal prosecutions.

He said that some employes who are cleared by district attorneys will be subject to disciplinary action by the department.

The probe suggestion came from member Sen. Milton Marks, R-San Francisco, who said he didn't believe that people can investigate themselves. Before he started his probe, Procunier, who once headed the state prison system, was named by Brown as chief deputy director of the state Health Department, which operates the hospitals.

The commission also approved another Marks suggestion: that the attorney general investigate charges by Dr. Glenn Wright, a staff doctor at Metropolitan State Hospital, that he has been harassed and threatened with disciplinary action since his testimony before the commission in November in Santa Ana.

At that hearing, and again Thursday, Wright denounced Dr. Alexander Buehler, another Metropolitan psychiatrist, charging him with responsibility for patient deaths.

Wright said that since his Santa Ana testimony he had been put on "administrative leave" with pay.

He also gave the commission and reporters copies of a "peer review," signed by two other Metropolitan doctors, dated Dec. 23, which states that Wright was suffering from "a paranoid state characterized by grandiosity and delusions of persecution."

Procunier told a reporter that Buehler has been on extended sick leave.

He told the commission that he is investigating 15 deaths at Metropolitan, and that five of the cases are set for a coroner's inquest.

Procunier denied Wright's charge that the Metropolitan staff was sadistic. He said there might be an occasional "bad apple," but "I think it's horrible for anyone to say that the staff is sadistic."

Wright countered that Procunier "believes what he wants to believe at the verbal level."

Health Director Jerome Lackner, who was in the audience, told a reporter he also would welcome an attorney general's investigation of the hospitals. But he said he believed local district attorneys would be more objective, since the attorney general is the Health Department's lawyer.

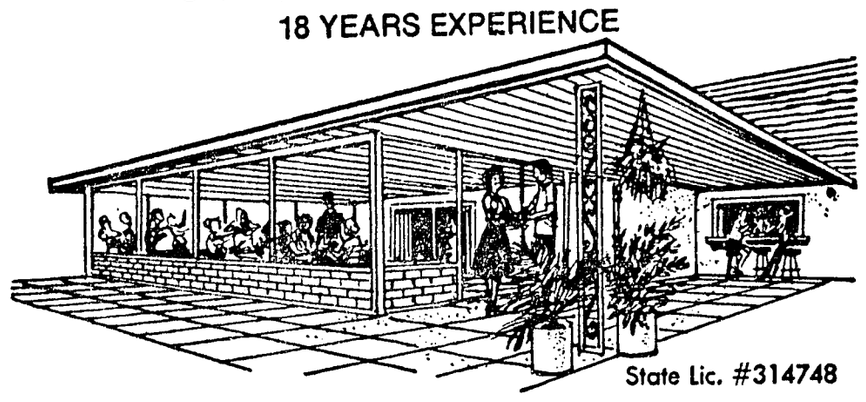

Bergland Policy To Accommodate 'The Inevitable'

WASHINGTON (AP) – Rep. Robert Bergland said Thursday that as secretary of agriculture in the Carter administration he intends to adopt a policy "that accommodates the inevitable" rather than assuming normal weather every year.

The Minnesota Democrat told a news conference that "I intend to be resourceful and try some things we've never tried before." He added that "I am not afraid of consumers and I am not satisfied with the status quo."

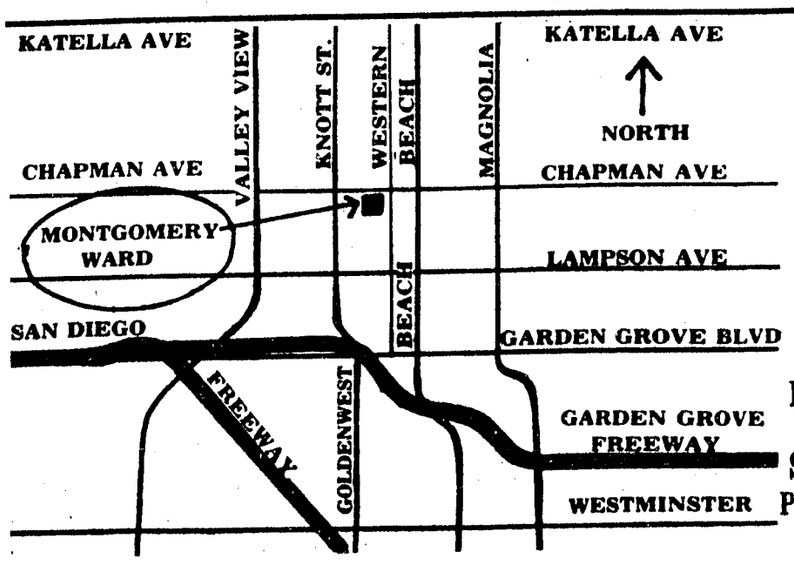

Bergland was endorsed Tuesday for the Carter Cabinet post by the Senate Agriculture Committee and is expected to be confirmed next week. He said he would announce other political appointments in the department then.

PRE-TRIAL VIDEO TAPING OKAYED FOR COURT USE

FRESNO (AP) – Video tapes can be made of depositions or testimony prior to a trial if they also are recorded stenographically, the state's 5th District Court of Appeal has ruled.

The decision, the first of its kind in California, came with Associate Justices Donald R. Franson and Roy J. Gargano in the majority and Presiding Justice George A. Brown dissenting.

The ruling said "writing is defined very broadly to include all forms of tangible expression, including pictures and sound recordings."

However, Brown called the decision "a distressing example of unauthorized judicial legislation." He said the legislature should decide standards for allowing video taping.

The appeal stemmed from a Kern County Superior Court case in which Paul Sherod Bailey contended that Sears, Roebuck and Co. negligently designed and built a radial arm saw.

Four fingers on Bailey's right hand were severed while he was using the saw.

Company attorneys obtained a court order to video tape and stenographically record a reenactment of the saw's operation without the power on, and Bailey appealed.

The appellate decision affirmed a lower court pretrial ruling.

Rejected Nominee Carswell 'Happy' Carpenter

TALLAHASSEE, Fla. (AP) – G. Harrold Carswell, the onetime U.S. Supreme Court nominee who was arrested on a men's room morals charge last June, says he's "just doing fine, thank you," living on a pension, remodeling an old house and mixing in Tallahassee society.

Carswell no longer practices law, however, according to a former law partner.

"When this happened to Harrold, old Tallahassee kind of closed ranks," says Dorothy Clifford, editor of the Tallahassee Democrat's society pages. "It doesn't matter what others think. They think the whole family's been abused, and they're behind them 100 per cent."

Casual friends who talked to Carswell and his wife Virginia at the Colonels Club Christmas Ball and the Cotillion on New Year's Eve say they seemed happy and were in high spirits.

Carswell, then 56, reportedly threatened suicide and underwent extensive psychiatric treatment after he was accused of making a homosexual advance to a vice squad officer whom he met in a shopping mall men's room. The former federal court judge pleaded no contest to a charge of battery and was fined $100 on Oct. 31. A charge of attempting a lewd and lascivious act was dropped.

Carswell was nominated to the Supreme Court by then-president Richard Nixon in 1970, but the U.S. Senate rejected him after it was reported that Carswell had endorsed racial segregation years earlier as a young legislative candidate in Georgia.

His name surfaced again recently in connection with another former judge, Griffin Bell, who is President-elect Carter's attorney general-designate.

Bell's support for Carswell's appointment to the high court is one of the matters on which Bell was expected to face questioning Tuesday from the Senate Judiciary Committee.

Carswell no longer practices law, according to W. Guy McKenzie Jr., his former law partner. McKenzie said he took over the cases Carswell was involved in at the time of his arrest.

A friend said Carswell draws a disability pension based on four years of World War II Navy service, five years as U.S. attorney in Tallahassee and 12 years as a federal court judge.

Carswell devotes much of his time these days to restoring an old house he had moved from the Bainbridge, Ga., area to rural Jefferson County, Fla., about 30 miles east of Tallahassee.

Friends say that remodeling the house with his son, George, is a labor of love for Carswell. The family has been living in a condominium, but friends say they plan to move to the house soon.

Write Of Way

From MRS. GEORGE L. SNIDER, JR., 1501 E. Maple Ave., Orange:

"We are sorry we did not contact you sooner about this. We wrote Mr. Tarkenton at the South Coast Plaza Hotel (where the Minnesota Vikings were in residence the week before the Super Bowl) and also talked to the team's assistant public relations man, but there was a matter of security and time. Anyway, here is the information:

"Craig Snider, 10, has been oil painting since Feb. of '72 (two months shy of his sixth birthday) and has been doing so ever since primarily in the summer months when school is out. He is the youngest student his teacher ever has had.

"He has won a couple of ribbons but the 'best' was last November when he won a first place in the 8-13 category in his teacher's,

CORKY SNIDER....This Viking Won

"His room, as you can see by the enclosed photos, is covered with Viking posters and he not only has a purple Viking shirt but a jersey and pants, helmet, sox, jacket, pajamas, mug and, believe it or not, pillow cases! In his stocking for Christmas was a copy of 'No Time for Losing.'

"Win or lose, Corky, as he prefers to be called, is a loyal fan. (CORKY: Nice going. You are one Viking who won)

From CHARLES WILLIAM RICE, 1011 N. Towner, Santa Ana:

"Would it be possible for you to plug our young men's baseball league? We have participants from Orange, Villa Park, El Modena, Santa Ana and other nearby communities. We've always had good coverage from The Register.

"I hope you can run the fact that signups for the Orange Pony, Colt and Thorobred Leagues will be conducted Saturday (Jan. 15) from 8:30 a.m. to 5 p.m. and on Sunday from 1 p.m. to 5 p.m.

"These signups will be conducted at Serrano elementary school, 1774k Serrano Ave., Villa Park. Age groups are Pony 13-14; Colt 15-16, Thorobreds, 17-20. Those wishing additional information should call 774-3959."

"An item appeared in your column recently which mentioned my most favorite basketball team. Mr. Max P. Sitter of 829 Lemon, Anaheim said, 'The Real Globetrotters are Meadowlark Lemon and his entourage. To watch them we have always had to travel to L.A. The team that visits Anaheim are rated Globetrotters No. 2-3- or is it No. 4 team?'

"I've taken so long to comment on Mr. Sitter's letter because I've been traveling around the country visiting unCalifornia-like places such as Chicago, Pittsburgh, Cincinnati, several cities in Montana, western Canada and the ever popular Emporia, Kansas. Now, on the eve of our 50th birthday I can watch the rain fall and write a letter to an old, old friend of Abe, Morry and the Harlem Globetrotters.

"I wonder how those fellows, who 50 years ago went to Hinckley, Ill. for the first Globetrotter game, would feel about Mr. Sitter's claim that only Meadowlark Lemon and 'his entourage' are the real Globetrotters. Since that first game we've been fortunate enough to have several hundred outstanding athletes wear our familiar red, white and blue uniform. All were real Globetrotters, Eddie.

"This is not to say we are taking anything away from Meadowlark, who is indeed an incredible athlete and performer. But, we do NOT rate our units 1 or 2. We have one team with 20 men under contract to play Harlem Globetrotters-style basketball. These 20 men are divided into two touring units, each as spectacular as the other.

5 UNITS WORK ALTERNATELY

"The fact of the matter is, we have scheduled both units for several years into cities on alternate years, both have played the same city during the same season, and there are places Meadowlark has never been seen in this country. Tonight he is with our National Unit in Murray, Kentucky. Tomorrow he's going to be in Memphis, Saturday Atlanta, Sunday Birmingham and Monday Pine Bluff, Arkansas.

"The International Unit is playing in Sioux City as they head toward the Pacific Northwest and Vancouver, Portland and Seattle. What I'm trying to say is both units play cities large and small throughout the country. Each Unit has its stars and particular talents. Our International

Finley Vs. Kuhn Trial Closes

Judge To Delay Historic Decision

CHICAGO (AP) – The trial in Charles O. Finley's $3.5 million suit against Baseball Commissioner Bowie Kuhn ended Thursday with cross-examination of Kuhn's testimony, but no decision was handed down.

U.S. District Judge Frank J. McGarr gave attorneys for both sides 45 days to file their final briefs on or before Feb. 28 before he reaches a decision as the trial closed on its 15th day.

Finley, owner of the Oakland A's, last June sold pitcher Vida Blue to the New York Yankees for $1.5 million and outfielder Joe Rudi and pitcher Rollie Fingers to the Boston Red Sox for a million dollars each.

Kuhn negated the deals as "not in the best interests of baseball" and Finley followed with his suit.

McGarr repeatedly said the issue before him was whether Kuhn had the power and authority to void the deals. The judge also dismissed the Boston Red Sox and the New York Yankees from the suit and said it was clearly an issue between Finley and Kuhn.

Finley's chief counsel, Neil Papiano, cross-examined Kuhn in the trial's final hours with Kuhn admitting that none of the major league clubs complained to him about disrupting competitive balance in baseball because of Finley's sales.

The defense repeatedly has argued about competitive balance and of richer clubs gaining star players in Finley's mode of operation.

Kuhn, asked if there were any restrictions against richer clubs outbidding the poorer clubs, said no.

When asked if he realized that three months after he voided the deals both Rudi and Fingers, who had played out their options, would be available to richer clubs, he replied, "I wouldn't put it that way, no."

Q–Did you know any way that the Oakland club could recoup its investments in Rudi and Fingers other than sales?

A–He (Finley) already had the players for many years and it is safe to say he had recouped his investments.

Kuhn also admitted that Rudi and Fingers had substantial value.

"One million dollars each?" asked Papiano.

"I wouldn't put a price on it," said Kuhn, "But the fact the Boston club would pay one million dollars for each is some indication."

Kuhn insisted that Finley's conduct was inconsistent with policy set through the Players' Relations Committee and that his disapproval of the sales would help develop the re-entry system "That would help preserve competitive balance."

Papiano asked if there was any reason Kuhn singled out the Oakland club and Kuhn said, "It made the unprecedented deal. No one else had."

Kuhn, asked if he were aware that other clubs were having difficulty signing players, said yes.

"Was Oakland having the most difficulties?"

"I don't know," said Kuhn. "Boston...Baltimore."

"On June 15, 1976," asked Papiano.

"I would surmise Oakland," said Kuhn.

Papiano also brought up the deal in which Curt Flood was sent from St. Louis to Philadelphia and Flood had asked Kuhn to void the deal but Kuhn had written back to Flood that he could see no specific objections and couldn't take any action.

Asked if he had unilateral power to create, adopt or revoke contract assignments, Kuhn said, "Create or adopt, no. Revoke, yes, under the best interest clause."

Kuhn also admitted that at a hearing he called last June 17 before voiding the deals, the New York Yankees felt he did not have the authority to void the transactions.

Kuhn also used the term "cannibalizing his team" when he asked Lee MacPhail, president of the American League, to talk Finley out of making the sales. He said MacPhail's response was, "'I can't, he hung up on me.'"

Both sides seemed confident at the end of the trial and McGarr, who has been hearing the case before "full houses," commended attorneys on both sides for conducting a fine trial "which I enjoyed," then made a reference to "popcorn concessions."

Greenwood Hits 34 To Power UCLA

BERKELEY, Calif. (AP) – UCLA forward David Greenwood scored a career-high 34 points and teammate Marques Johnson added 20 as the 12th ranked Bruins defeated California 82-74 in a Pacific-8 basketball game Thursday night.

The 6-foot-9 Greenwood, a sophomore, also grabbed 15 rebounds and Johnson, a 6-7 senior, had 8 rebounds to dominate the UCLA offense.

Ray Murry had a career-high 29 points for the Bears, hitting 12 of 18 shots from the floor and all of his five free throws.

Gene Ransom was credited with 11 assists, a Cal single-game record, and 17 points.

UCLA moved to an early lead, hitting its first nine shots from the field and was never headed. The Bruins led 47-35 at halftime, including 17 points by Greenwood.

Midway through the second half the Bears began chipping away at the UCLA lead, hitting six straight points to within seven points with 8:51 remaining.

With just over two minutes to play, UCLA's lead was down to 76-72. Then the Bruins' guards went into ball control with 6-foot-2 Roy Hamilton scoring the next four points for UCLA and an 80-73 advantage with 1:12 to play.

Nater Lost For Month, Or Is He?

MILWAUKEE (AP) – Center Sven Nater of the Milwaukee Bucks of the National Basketball Association said Thursday he plans to be back in action shortly despite concern about an ankle he sprained in practice Monday.

A Bucks spokesman said rookie Lloyd Walton, whom they had considered activating in time for Friday's game with Houston, was still being held in reserve while physicians keep an eye on Nater's sprain.

Wayne Embry, general manager of the Bucks, had said Nater might be sidelined for a month.

Pro Bowl Defections Blasted

"His not being here is like a slap in the face to every player taking part in this game," St. Louis Cardinals quarterback Jim Hart said at Thursday's workout.

Hart is closer to the situation than anyone else. He would not be a part of it, if Tarkenton, the quarterback of the Minnesota Vikings, had not decided to skip Monday night's game in Seattle.

Tarkenton claims an injury suffered about four weeks ago in the opening round of the National Football League playoffs is forcing him out of this annual all-star game–this, though he never reported any after-effects from that game when he played in the National Conference championships and in the Super Bowl.

"It's not the first time he's pulled this," Hart said of Tarkenton's withdrawal. "Personally, I couldn't be happier. It gives me a chance to play in a game that only a few players get a chance to play in. I'm absolutley delighted to be here. Listen, it's more than just another game. It's an honor."

Tarkenton, it must be noted, is not the only Pro Bowl selection pulling out of this meeting of American and National Conference stars. Five others have done the same–but that hasn't stilled the criticism of Tarkenton.

"If a guy's chosen to play in a game like this," said Hart, "he should have the decency to be a part of it. It's not asking too much."

Tarkenton has now been selected to four Pro Bowls. But he has appeared in only one, in 1971. This makes the third straight year he is by-passing this game, which follows the Super Bowl by one week.

"His excuses are wearing a little thin, don't you think?" said Roger Staubach of Dallas, elevated to the NFC starting quarterback job by Tarkenton's absence. "I think what he's doing is disgraceful."

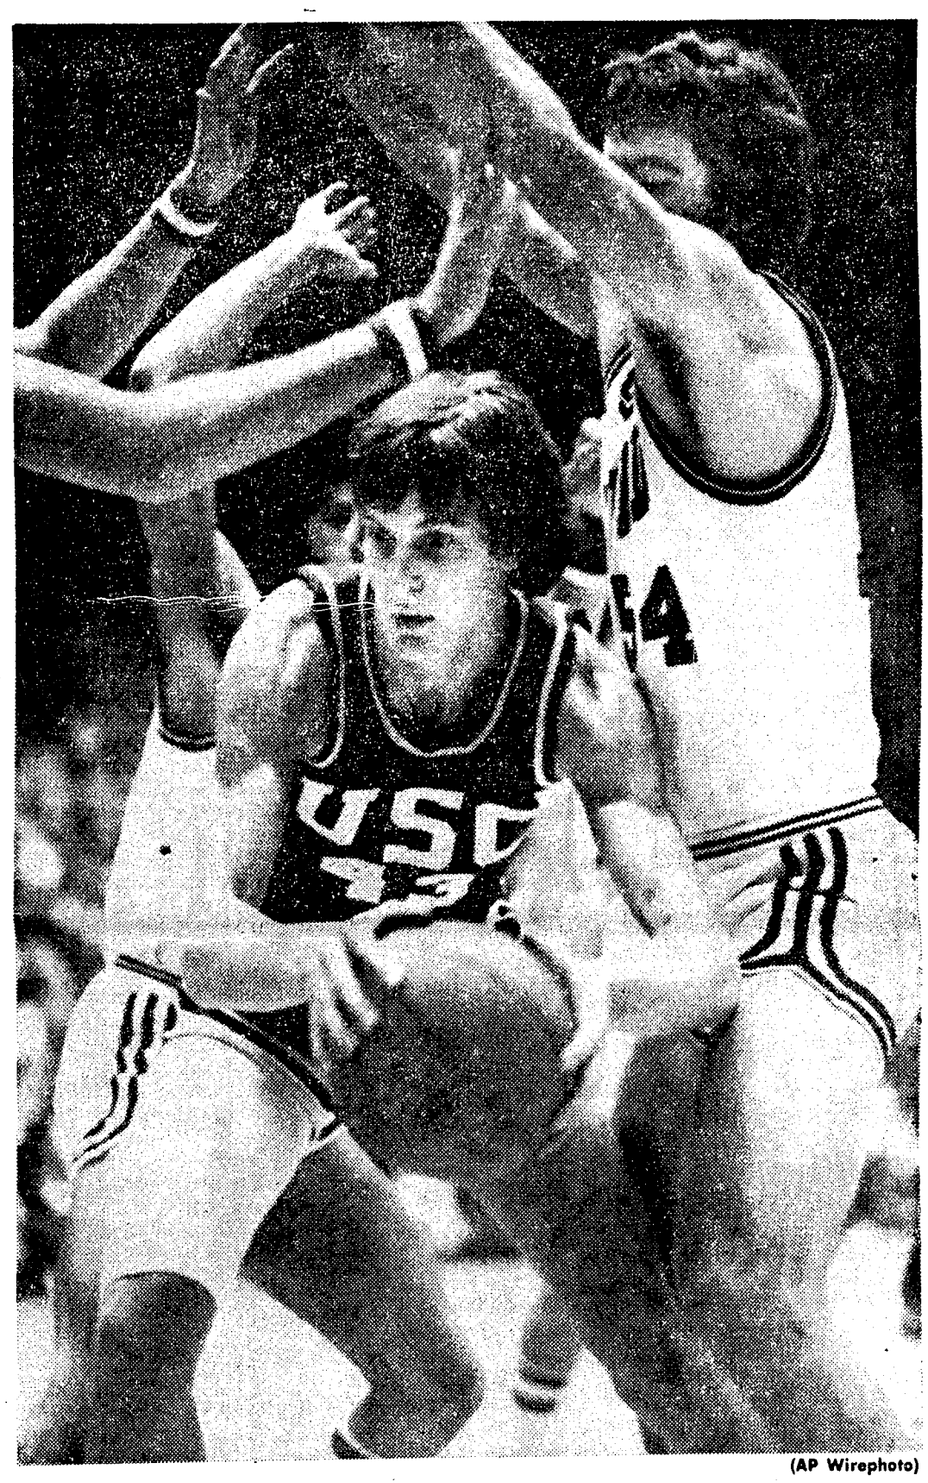

Even one of Tarkenton's teammates, rookie wide receiver Sammy White, was critical of his quarterback.

"If it was really a bad injury that was keeping him out, like Franco (Harris of the Pittsburgh Steelers), I could see it," White said. "But from what's being said, I just don't know.

"This is my first game, so I'm all excited about it. Maybe if I'd been picked for a lot of them, I'd feel different–but I hope not. I mean, the fans are paying to see the best players in the game. That's what they deserve. That's what they should be seeing."

Chuck Knox of the Los Angeles Rams, coach of the NFC team, didn't comment on Tarkenton's absence. But AFC Coach Chuck Noll of Pittsburgh, while not mentioning the Minnesota veteran by name, had some strong words for disappearing players.

"There are plenty of guys around this league who would give an arm to play in this game, to know they are good enough to be rated with the best," Noll said. "When one or two players who do rate pull something like this, it reflects badly on the whole game."

STANFORD, Calif. (AP) – Senior guard Mike Bratz scored 21 points, including 15 in the second half, to lead Stanford to a 68-64 Pacific-8 basketball win over Southern California Thursday night.

With the score tied 58-58 and three minutes remaining, Stanford scored six straight points on lay-ups to take an insurmountable 64-58 lead.

BOSTON (AP) — Earl Anderson, who sat out most of last season with a leg injury, scored his sixth goal in 12 games early in the third period Thursday night to propel the Boston Bruins to a 4-3 victory in over the Los Angeles Kings in a National Hockey League game.

Veteran winger Frank St. Marseille had two goals for the Kings, who dropped their fifth game in six on their current road trip.

Marcel Dionne popped in the first goal, his 24th, with only 13 seconds gone in the first period. But Terry O'Reilly matched it on a backhander with Dave Hutchison draped over his at 4:45.

St. Marseille got the first of his par at 11:28 with a drive that bounced in off Brad Park. But Johnny Bucyk scored his 15th of the season on a power play at 15:17 to even it.

Cuba Offered $1 Million For Spinks-Teofilo Bout

NEW YORK (AP) – A $1 million bid has been made to the Cuban government in an effort to match Olympic heavyweight champion Teofilo Stevenson with Leon Spinks of the United States, the light heavyweight gold medalist, it was announced Thursday.

Promoter Bob Arum of Top Rank, Inc., made the offer to Cuban Premier Fidel Castro in a letter delivered to the Cuban mission to the United Nations. Arum said the $1 million purse would be posted in New York next week.

Spinks, discharged from the Marines last month, will make his professional debut Saturday at Las Vegas in a nationally televised (CBS) bout against Lightning Bob Smith.

Arum's proposal would pay the $1 million to the Cuban government, allowing Stevenson to maintain his amateur status. Top Rank would like to stage the 10-round fight in Kingston, Jamaica with Lucien Chen as co-promoter.

Quick Whistles Stir Boo-Birds

By CARL SAWYER

Blake Taylor did it again the other night at Long Beach Sports Arena. He dribbled the basketball across the top of the key, executed a miraculous U-turn in midair, then twisted toward the basket for a stuff shot.

An official blew his whistle, claiming Taylor had taken steps, disallowing the basket. The call was met by a chorus of booos from the stands.

Taylor executed the same fantastic move last March in the semi-finals of the Sunkist-State JC Tournament at Fresno when he led Santa Ana College against Compton College. Again, an official refused to believe that a 6-2 player of Taylor's dimensions could make such a move.

Good officials outnumber bad officials, so most of Taylor's fantastic moves with the basketball are not halted by knowledgeable officials who recognize a great offensive player when they see one.

A JC All-American in his only season with the Dons, Taylor now is exciting crowds which watch Arizona State play basketball. Taylor's latest heroics came at the expense of Long Beach State.

Taylor scored seven points in the final three minutes to lead the Sun Devils to a 79-78 victory over the 49ers. He made a three-point play, stole a pass for a driving slam dunk and then sank two free throws with 11 seconds left to put the win in escrow for Arizona State.

He finished with 17 points in only 20 minutes of action.

Community college basketball coaches are reluctant to berate officials who work their games, but most agree that many of the bad calls seen on the JC level spring from officials who work more prep games than college contests, so aren't prepared to believe that today's JC cagers can execute such spectacular and perfectly legal offensive moves.

Anticipation Causes Problems

Orange County's rapid rise in the development of high school basketball talent also has been marked by improvement in the officiating ranks, but fans and coaches still become infuriated on occasions by some officials who are guilty of anticipating infractions that never occur.

There are high school players in Orange County today able to make unbelievable offensive moves that some officials refuse to believe are possible. A whistle toot by an unknowing official quickly erases many great moves seen on the high school courts and it follows then, that the problem is transferred to the JC level when those same officials work community college games.

Thankfully, Orange County is far ahead of other areas in insuring the best officiating possible. Officials working games in this area are more knowledgeable of rules and regulations than other spots because they work at it harder.

It's always popular to put the knock on officials working basketball games, but it should be pointed out that a lot of great players have managed to sparkle and move to the major college level regardless of the caliber of officiating they encountered along the way.

Taylor isn't the only JC phenom from Orange County and the surrounding area who now makes headlines on the major college level.

Santa Ana College probably has the most standouts in the collegiate ranks because of the success of the Don program over the past six years, but there are many others from other schools also doing well.

The list of ex-Dons in college basketball is impressive when you consider Taylor at Arizona State, Jim Cunningham at Portland State, George Weaver at University of New Orleans, Steve Snodgress at Occidental, Paul Stewart and Gregg Green at Los Angeles State, Barrie Elliott at Point Loma College and Bart Penfold at Cal Poly of San Luis Obispo.

Lovelace Helps Hilo Win

Bob Holgate, out of Fullerton College, is one of Weber State's best shooters, Paul Schilleci from Golden West College is at Washington State and ex-Rustler Jack Fletcher is at Tulane, ex-Mt. San Antonio stars George Schrader is at Stanford, Kirk Christ is at UC Irvine, and Gary Malugin and Duaine Harding are at Chico State.

Saddleback College is represented by Mark Lovelace at University of Hawaii at Hilo, Mike Bokosky at Fort Lewis in Colorado and Dave Maze at Chapman College. Lovelace has been a key factor in Hawaii-Hilo being the surprise team of the college season with a 9-1 record following impressive wins over New Mexico and Nebraska.

Hawaii-Hilo's only loss was to the University of North Carolina at Charlotte, the runnerup to champion Kentucky in the National Invitational Tournament at Madison Square Garden.

And don't forget Willie Howard from Cerritos College who now sparkles at University of New Mexico. Cypress College has eight ex-Chargers active with Rick Quinn at San Jose State, Jeff Jones at Lewis and Clark, Pat Barrett at Southern Cal College, John J. Moore at Redlands, John E. Moore at Westmont, and the threesome of Randy Forgette, Phil Brake and Steve Jesser at Fresno-Pacific.

There are more where these collegians came from. They are now performing on your local high school and JC basketball courts.

Grandmother Wants A Score

Freeway Deadlock To End

By DAVID OSTERMAN

A first place deadlock in the Freeway League basketball race is on the line tonight as Lowell High and Sunny Hills High meet at the Lancer gym for an 8 p.m. game.

The two teams are both 3-0 in the loop race and Lowell coach Barry Gottula is expecting a fast and furious game for the showdown.

"Sunny Hills plays a pressure type defense which constantly attacks the ball," said Gottula, who coached at Sunny Hills before coming to Lowell. "We play a pressure defense, too, but not quite as hard as they do.

"We've also been running more since league play began," said Gottula, "but we're not the run and gun team Sunny Hills has been this year."

The two teams are both averaging over 60 points a game and Lowell is averaging 72 in league play. The big scorer for Sunny Hills has been 6-0 guard Sloan Carlson, who is averaging a 16 points game, while the brother act of Ron and Gary Heil has averaged 14.9 and 13.7, respectively, for Lowell.

In other key contests in Orange County tonight, Costa Mesa tries to get back into the South Coast race when the Mustangs invade Corona del Mar for an 8 p.m. game. The Mustangs are 1-2 in league play while the Sea Kings are 3-0. The game should be a battle of the front lines with Corona del Mar depending on 6-7 Alex Black and 6-6 Jack Tuz, while Costa Mesa looks to forward Steve Parrino and Gary Wills. All four players are averaging over 15 points a game.

In the Century League, Santa Ana invades Estancia in a battle for second place. The Saints and Estancia are both 10-4 on the year and a game behind 3-0 Santa Ana Valley in the league. Tustin, also 2-1 in league, meets Orange while Valley hosts Villa Park in other league games. All contests start at 8 p.m.

El Dorado, a surprise leader in the Orange League, invades Valencia for a 7:30 game. The Hawks were only 6-5 in preleague but are 3-0 in the loop. The Tigers are 10-4 on the year, but two of the losses have been in league. La Habra, 2-1 in league play, hosts Canyon in another key game.

Mater Dei and Servite also begin league wars as the Angelus League opens its 1977 season.

Mater Dei, with an impressive 12-4 mark, invades Pius X. Jim Schultz of Mater Dei needs only eight assists in the game to become the all-time CIF career leader in that category.

Servite hosts St. Paul in its league opener. The Friars are off to their best start in recent years, with an 8-4 mark.

St. Anthony travels to Bishop Amat in the other Angelus League game. All three games start at 7:30.

Biola Stops Vanguards

By CHUCK ABAIR

Biola College came from six points behind with an 11-2 spree starting the second half and lead the rest of the way to gain a 71-61 basketball triumph at Southern California College Thursday night.

The streaking Eagles made their record 11-4 and dropped the shorthanded Vanguards to 5-6.

SCC was playing without suspended No. 2 scorer Tom McCourt with veteran guard Fred Glaster ineligible temporarily.

Reserve Tim Siefkin scored 14 points in the second half for Biola to take game honors with 18. He didn't miss a shot in the last 20 minutes hitting five field goals and four fouls.

Neither team shot well as halftime records of 14-37 for the losers and 13-36 for Biola indicated. Then after the rest period the home team could make just one of its next seven shots as the La Mirada cagers jumped out in front.

After dominating the early play and leading by eight, Biola trailed 34-42 before going on a 10-point streak to apparently break it open. Southern Cal narrowed the gap to six and the visitors went into a delay game.

It was 62-54 with 3:33 to play when the Vanguards committed two straight turnovers and then Biola made one. Trailing by eight, SCC came up with two steals and hit three ensuing free throws to make it 64-59, but get no closer.

BIOLA (71) — Warkentin 6, Bunn 13, Newkirk 6, Parker 8, Flentge 7, Hoffman 9, Cole 4, Siefkin 18.
SO. CAL COL. (61) — Bergerson 15, Malstead 14, Adams 10, Barron 12, Brunk 8, Clayton 2.

CORVALLIS, Ore. (AP) – Rocky Smith's basket with 3:15 left gave Oregon State the lead for keeps as the Beavers posted a 61-58 Pacific-8 Conference victory over Washington State Thursday night.

A successful free throw by Stuart House cut the 59-57 advantage that Smith's field goal gave the Beavers, but George Tucker hit two free throws with 25 seconds remaining to complete the scoring.

County Girls Win In Field Hockey

Six Orange County teams won opening round matches in the CIF girls' field hockey playoffs Thursday afternoon with top-seeded La Habra High getting a scare.

La Habra and Claremont battled to a scoreless tie with the Highlanders advancing due to 100 seconds of penetration time more than Claremont.

Among the county teams advancing, Edison stopped Kennedy, 4-0, University blanked La Quinta, 3-0, Foothill edged Westminster, 1-0, and Sonora handled neighborhood rival Lowell, 4-0.

Garden Grove and Buena Park battled to a 1-1 tie in a contest in which the offenses dominated. Buena Park scored in the first half on a goal but Garden Grove bounced back with five minutes gone in the second half on Sue Doser's goal. Buena Park had two corner kicks against Garden Grove in the finals two minutes but goalie Sue Mercado turned back the attack. Lori Mitani and Nancy Mercado also stars for Garden Grove which had nearly eight minutes penetration time to 6 1/4 for Buena Park to pick up the win.

Shelly Holman scored just before halftime to give Edison a 1-0 lead and the Chargers scored three times in the second half to put the game out of reach. Randean Rona scored two goals and Tracy Hanlon scored on in the second half for the Sunset League champs.

Carol Gilliland scored early in the contest and the Foothill defense made the goal stand up in defeating Westminster. Ande Valle and Connie George helped to pace the defense.

University (13-0-1) remained undefeated as the young team, the CIF runnerup last year, blanked La Quinta. Grace McCarley scored two goals for University, one in each half while Sue Walker added a goal in the second half for University.

Unit features Marques Haynes, the world's greatest dribbler and Geese Ausbie, a man who has made millions laugh around the world.

"I can't fault anyone for having their favorites, as I've enjoyed many Globetrotters. My first game was watching Goose Tatum, Bobby Milton, Marques Haynes, Josh Grider and Pop Gates at the Coliseum in Baltimore, Maryland. What a night that was! The Coliseum, which was torn down many years ago, could hold perhaps 3000. Instead of risers for the floor seats, folding chairs were precariously perched on wooden soda pop cases.

"After that I marvelled at the ball-handling of J. C. Gipson, Showboat Hall, Rookie Brown and so many other outstanding Trotters. You can imagine how I felt eight years ago when offered the opportunity to work for this incredible floating basketball game!

"I guess I have to smile at those who think only one person represents 'the real Harlem Globetrotters.' I've traveled around the world seeing the joy in so many eyes as our magicians display their magic. I've watched a section of stands filled with children from a hospital for the blind 'watching' our team with unequaled glee. There's something special for me when I hear Sweet Georgia Brown and watch these fantastic black men play a brand of basketball that for years was considered hotdogging and undesireable by more orthodox exponents of the sport.

"I'm not writing to get anything off my chest, merely passing along a thought or two a few hours before our Golden Day. By the way, playing with the Harlem Globetrotters at the Anaheim Convention Center on February 2 will be Nate Branch from the University of Nebraska, Jackie Jackson of Virginia Union, Edmond Lawrence (a seven-foot rookie who was the second center to be drafted by the NBA last spring-from McNeese State College); Robert Paige-another seven-foot rookie from Houston Baptist University; Larry Rivers, an outstanding dribbler from Missouri Western; Dallas Thornton from the NAIA champion Kentucky Wesleyan Panthers, Jerry Venable of Kansas State, Curly Neal and Twiggy Sanders from Johnson C. Smith University and Meadowlark Lemon."

(All this and Meadowlark too?)

UCI Sizzles

Leading most of the way, UC Irvine shot 59.2 per cent from the floor Thursday night to hand Missouri of Kansas City a 79-69 defeat at Crawford Hall.

Lou Stephens sparked UCI's sixth win in 14 games with 27 points – 19 in the second half. Scott Jenkins added 15 while Frank Chandler paced a 32-25 rebound advantage with nine to go with nine points.

Mike Jones hit 25 as the visitors dropped to 9-4.

The Anteaters, who are now 5-2 at home, were behind three times in the first half, but went ahead to stay at 28-27 and were in front 34-31 at the intermission.

Then Stephens, who made 12 of 18 field attempts, got hot while the losers were hitting just 37.2 per cent.

Irvine continues a homestand Saturday night against Northern Colorado.

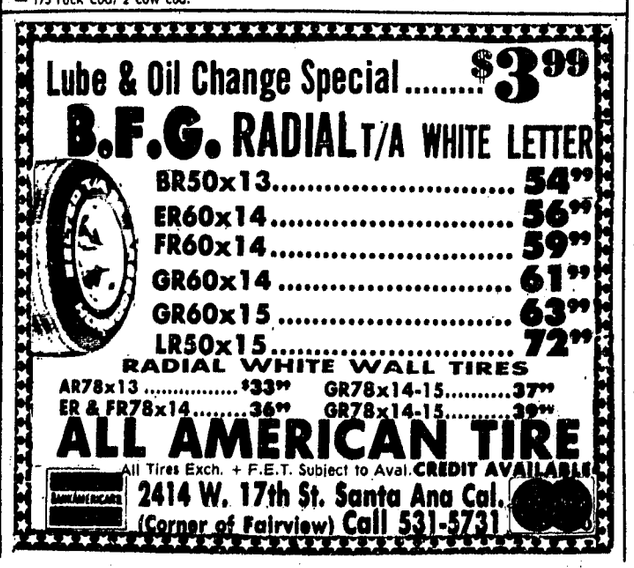

MISSOURI (KC) (69) – W. Jones 5, M. Jones 25, Nickols 12, Bryant 6, Hatfield 2, R. Jenkins 10, Trigg 5, Demaio 4.

UC IRVINE (79) – Jenkins 15, Rodgers 4, Chandler 9, Tivenan 10, Stephens 27, Lovingier 2, Gonzalez 7, Carson 2, Christ 1, Knudsen 2.

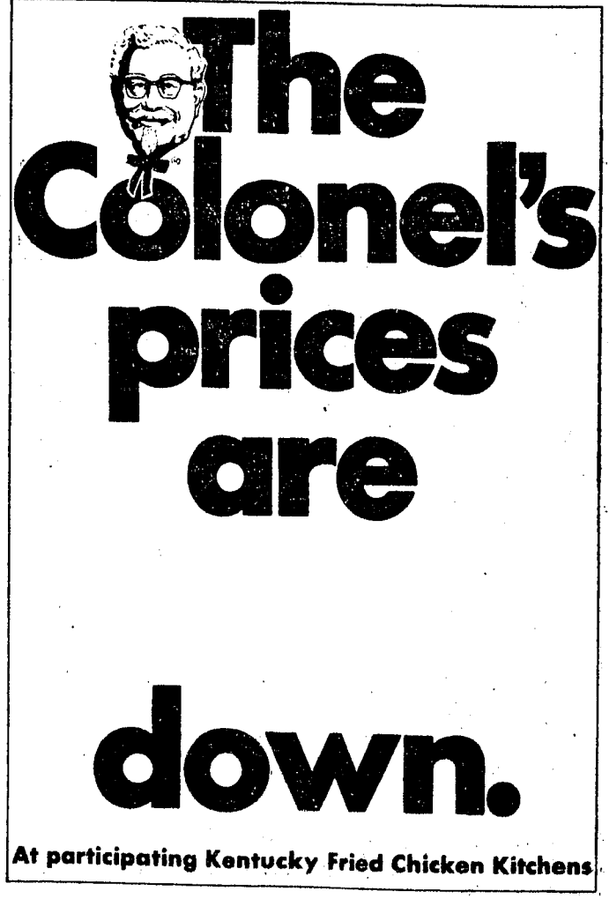

Fouled out – W. Jones.
Halftime score – UCI 34, Missouri 31.

Auto Racing Needs Education – Petty

RIVERSIDE – Richard Petty, the ordained king of the good ole boys, doesn't operate out of the back of a medicine wagon but he is nonetheless constantly involved in the hard sell.

"Maybe educate is a better word," Petty says. "We need more people so we had better work at getting 'em educated."

Petty's game is stock car racing, like the one at Riverside Raceway this weekend. Upwards of 40,000 will attend whereas if the thing were held in the South (where stock car racing is the national pastime) upwards of 100,000 would purchase tickets.

"That's what I mean about educating 'em," says Petty, known as The King.

I, for one, have never felt that learning was all that essential. You go to a stock car race and eyeball the broads in tight jeans and halters and read the inspirational messages written on the backs of the guys' T shirts. Then you watch the cars ride around the track.

Heavy Stuff

I know, some guys can tell you about carburators and fuel injection and manifolds. Some even lay on you the heavy stuff such as one mile is 1.60934 kilometers. Or, if you prefer, one kilometer is 0.62237 mile which makes the Riverside race 500 kilometers or 310 miles.

But all this knowledge hardly seems necessary. After all, a stock car is the same as we all drive to work except that it doesn't have any accessories and the driver gets in through the window.

"We need new people," Richard Petty insists. "There's hard core racing fans who come to the track just because you hold a race and racing is living off 'em.

"What we got to do is reach out to those folks who ain't never been to an auto race and educate 'em."

Petty is told that other sports have entertained similar notions and found it isn't easy.

Racing authorities fear the old horse players are dying off and new ones are not being born and therefore must be made. The equine operators have tried everything from rock and roll bands to wine tasting but progress has been slow, albeit sure.

Soccer is another sport which has launched a giant educational drive in this country. Often, the promoters are confused by the results of their efforts.

For instance, Pele, the most celebrated star in the history of the game , was brought to our town. His reception was cordial, but mild.

Then they brought in a sodden English lout with a reputation for staying up all night and chasing skirts. The press and public loved the guy and would not have noticed if he never scored a goal.

Richard Petty brings up the most abused word in sports, "promotion." One of the greatest drawbacks of the word is that nobody really knows what it means. Still, whenever a sports franchise suffers from ill attendance, thousands of experts emerge from the woodwork analyzing the trouble as promotion, or lack of it.

Buzzie Expansive

When Buzzie Bavasi was enduring terrible agonies in San Diego, he received a hundred such calls a day and invited the callers to come down and explain exactly what he was doing wrong. The only one who showed up was a guy who wanted to go underground at second base and set a new record for length of time buried alive.

"I often wonder why race promoters do things the same way every time," Richard Petty says. "They seem hard to put to try new or different stuff. It's like those cats all belong to the same family. I do believe they are all reading from the same book."

Petty doesn't suggest he knows all the answers but insists education is one of them.

Still, if you have sufficient moxie to study the tight jeans and T shirts, what else should you have to know?

"There are lots of things people can learn," Richard Petty says. "Engines, safety, techniques, gravity, fuel ... all sorts of things."

Me? I'll settle for tight jeans and T shirts lest I learn more about stock car racing than I care to know.

Drake Joins Bronco Staff

Bill Drake, a former linebacker coach at Colorado, Washington and both Nevada schools, will be the defensive and recruiting coordinator and linebacker coach under new Cal Poly Pomona head man Jim Jones.

Now 26, Drake played for Jones at South Hills High School before starting three years at Colorado.

Moving from South Hills as offensive line coach is Bob Green, who previously was head coach at Workman High and played spring football in 1959 at Pomona, but was injured when the season rolled around.

He had played at Modesto JC where present CPP Athletic Director Don Warhurst and physical education instructor Barney Anooshian once coached.

Brooks Anxious To Get Back On County Job

SAN DIEGO (AP) – Last week, Larry Brooks went back to learning the banking business, a bit burned out on football. Now, he's geared up for the sport as he looks to the Pro Bowl.

"An awful lot of players would love to have this chance, but all they get to do is watch it on television," said the Los Angeles Rams' defensive tackle following a Pro Bowl practice.

The all-stars from both National Football League conferences work out under San Diego's sunny skies until Departure Saturday for Seattle and Monday's game in the Kingdome.

Brooks admits he wanted to erase thoughts of football after the bitter defeat the Rams took in the National Conference championship game against Minnesota. It was his third year on a Rams team which came within a step of the Super Bowl.

He said his desire was to get back to his banking career in California's Orange County. He figured the next time he'd face an offensive lineman would be when training camp opened in July.

But then, Defensive tackle Alan Page of the Vikings begged off the ProBowl roster because of law school exams in Minneapolis.

Brooks, as first alternate, was tapped to fill the vacuum on the 40-man National Conference squad chosen by the National Football League's head coaches.

"It's an honor for me to be here," said Brooks, who adds he doesn't mind being a substitute.

The 6-foot-3, 260-pounder from Virginia State said he is surprised teammate Merlin Olsen wasn't in the Pro Bowl picks after being in the game every year since his rookie season in 1962.

"The only thing I can think is that people didn't want him to get hurt in his final game of football," Brooks said of the retiring Olsen.

As a first-timer in the Pro Bowl, Brooks doesn't see how the game can lack intensity, as some players claim.

"I don't know how to play 'soft shoulder' or 'powder puff' football when two people start hitting each other." he said.

And, of the training sessions, he said: "I like the atmosphere here. I'm finding that people I play against during the regular season and never get to know are just ordinary guys."

'Funny Cars' To Lift Lid At Raceway

A big field of drag racing's most popular vehicles, Funny Cars, is set to open the Orange County International Raceway '77 season Saturday night.

"With the majority of the nation in a deep freeze, it's this time of year we can offer our fans an exceptional lineup of top names at a reasonable admission price," explains OCIR promoter Steve Evans.

The only man to beat Don Prudhomme during 1976, Orange County's own Gary Burgin, crashed his brand new "Orange Baron" car testing at Irwindale Raceway last Friday. "Gary escaped without injuries and will be here Saturday night with the same Mustang II that carried him to th WHRA U.S. Nationals title in '76," says Evans.

Out to stop Burgin on his home court will be the sport's master showman from Pennsylvania, "Jungle Jim" Liberman, along with '75 national champ out of Dallas, Raymond Beadle and the "Blue Max," fellow Texan Billy Meyer, former actor and Mouseketeer "TV Tommy,"Ivo from Burbank, Ed (Ace) McCulloch out of Fresno and many more. All in all, 16 of the flip top fiberglass creations will go to it at 7 p.m.

Orange County Raceway is located at the Sand Canyon exit of the Santa Ana Freeway or the Moulton Parkway exit of the San Diego Freeway.

Chargers Raise Ticket Prices

SAN DIEGO (AP) – The team with the poorest attendance in the National Football League raised the price of tickets today.

The price of general admission tickets for home games of the San Diego Chargers went from $4 to $5. The $7 seats went to $8.50, with $8.50 tickets to $10 and $13 seats to $15.

Five-Way Scramble For Tucson Lead

TUCSON, Ariz. (AP) – Tom Watson made a scrambling par on the final hole just before darkness halted play Thursday and joined four others tied for the lead at 67 in the uncompleted first round of the $200,000 Joe Garagiola-Tucson Open Golf Tournament.

Tied with Watson at five under par were non-winners Dr. Gil Morgan, Gary McCord, Alan Tapie and Andy North, who held the lead alone until he bogeyed his last hole.

The start of play was delayed more than one-half hour by frost and frozen greens and 24 of the 153 players were unable to complete their round before darkness fell. They will complete play Friday morning.

None of those stranded on the course appeared to have a shot at the lead.

Johnny Miller, the British Open champion and winner of this event the last three years, continued to have his putting problems and went to a 74, seven shots back.

Rustlers, Cypress Clash

Sedan and Jim Sargent.

Depth and height give Golden West an edge in any conference matchup, but Golden West has a few guns of its own in John Hirschler, Todd Zirbel, Tom Rowan, Darryl Briggs, Dan Bush and Gary Sanders.

The Rustlers have a good thing going when they get the tempo going in their favor, a run-and-shoot atmosphere that drains the lungs and tires the legs.

Hirschler, a 6-9 sophomore at center, blocks shots with the best, then feeds to Zirbel and other Rustlers when Golden West gets control of a contest.

Harbor, problemed by a rash of ineligibilities, will try to stay in the race at Rio Hondo where coach Bob Bland's Roadrunners are languishing with a 1-2 conference record after a great pre-conference season.

Four key players were dumped from the Harbor squad by coach Jim White who runs one of the firmest ships in JC basketball, but there are enough talented Seahawks left to make Harbor a threat each outing.

"So far, my players have had a tough season," said White, "but they are reacting well under pressure."

All Sports Clinic Open To Public

Headliners scheduled to speak at the seventh annual All Sports Clinic at Anaheim Convention Center Jan. 22 and 23 have stirred so much interest from the general public that director Jack Stovall has decided to open it for the first time to the public.

Football coaches Johnny Majors of Pittsburg, Johnny Robinson of USC, Terry Donahue of UCLA, Vince Dooley of Georgia and Joe Restic of Harvard give Stovall's all Sports Clinic an all-star lineup.

"We've had so many inquiries from the public that we've decided the general public deserves an opportunity to hear these fine coaches," said John Coury, manager of Inn of Tomorrow, the clinic headquarters. All persons interested in attending clinic sessions should contact the Inn of Tomorrow in Anaheim, 1110 West Katella Avenue.

Pearson Fastest At Riverside

RIVERSIDE (AP) – David Pearson, winner of the last two stock car races at Riverside International Raceway, turned in the fastest practice lap Thursday as the road course opened officially for the Winston Western 500 Sunday.

Pearson's Wood Brothers Mercury was clocked at 1:24.716 on the 2.62-mile a 6-5 All-State prep at Alter High in Dayton before joining the Flyers. The Santa Ana grandmother is just as proud of her son James, the father of the Dayton sophomore. He's now an insurance executive in Dayton following a professional basketball career with the Lakers when the NBA franchise was in Minneapolis and later with the Cincinnati Royals .... Frosh recruit Dusty Dvorak, a prep All-American at Laguna Beach High, is the key to USC's volleyball success this season in the estimation of Trojan coach Ernie Hix. Dvorak has the ability to become "the best setter this country has ever produced," says Hix. Dvorak was a member of the U.S. junior national volleyball team last summer. Hix says he's extremely cool and experienced for his age and plans to use him as the hub of a 5-1 Trojan attack.

Dull Writers, Dull Coverage

One of the world's great newspapers sent its usual crew to cover the Super Bowl and the guy who wrote the lead story came back from Pasadena and reported, "Can anybody think of a way to bar the Minnesota Vikings from the Super Bowl? For the fourth time in eight winters, they proved Sunday that they don't belong in this company, blowing Super Bowl XI to the Oakland Raiders, 32-14." Really. Doesn't the writer remember that Minnesota earned the right to the Super Bowl by winning its division championship by eliminating his beloved Los Angeles Rams? Twenty-six NFL teams sat home on Super Sunday and watched Minnesota play the Oakland Raiders. None of them deserved to be in the Super Bowl ahead of Minnesota and Oakland because the Vikings and Raiders qualified with division titles. In its rush to get all of the cute sayings and play on words into print before Sports Illustrated each week, one of the world's great newspapers is doing its readers a great disservice and only adds to the growing belief that Los Angeles is major league in every department except for its sports coverage by the metropolitan press .... A final note on Super Bowl XI shows that on the combined rosters, there were 17 Pacific 8 Conference graduates, eight with the Vikings, nine with the Raiders. The Pac 8 outnumbered all other conferences represented followed by the Big Ten with 12 players, Big 8 with nine, Southeast with four and the WAC with three. What state produced the most players in Super Bowl XI? California of course with 15 players picking up Super Bowl checks.

Raiders beat Steelers up front

By Murray Olderman

The tipoff:

There's another side to Al Davis, the intense managing general partner of the Oakland Raiders, that the public doesn't see. While his team was preparing for the Super Bowl, just before New Year's, Davis took a "red-eye" special from Oakland to New York, flying all night, just to be on hand for the funeral ceremonies of the late Phil Iselin, president of the New York Jets. Then he turned right around, completing a 6,000-mile jaunt in less than 24 hours, to be back with his family on New Year's eve.

Q. Aren't they just a bunch of cry-babies, the guys who say the Pittsburgh Steelers didn't make the Super Bowl because Franco Harris was hurt? What do you think? Would the Oakland Raiders have beaten them anyhow? — P.T., Oakland.

Obviously, having Franco out hurt the Steelers' offensive concept. I'm critical of Chuck Noll for trying to put in a new offense in the 22nd week of the season. The Steelers looked raggedy and uncertain with the new formations. But the Raiders really beat them up front, in the offensive and defensive lines, and therefore shouldn't have to apologize for beating a less than healthy team. It is Al Davis' contention that the Raiders are the one team in football who can intimidate the Steelers.

Q. This year the extra point was very important in the final outcome of several games. The kicker is so close to the line a single defense man who evades his blocker often deflects the ball, or it's kicked on so low a trajectory the tall defensive line knocks it down. Why don't the kicker and holder of the ball move back three or four yards to give more room for the kick, thus avoiding the rush and giving a higher trajectory to the ball? — O.B. Savely, Joplin, Mo.

Sounds logical, but it doesn't work that way. Important thing is to avoid giving the defense a good angle at the kicker. Put the kicker back further and it reduces the angle of the rush, giving the defender a better shot at the ball. It also takes a fraction of a second longer for the ball to get to the holder and be spotted. Kicking teams work on the premise that everyone does his job — under those conditions, a kicker has enough time to get the ball off.

Q. Was Rocky Marciano the only heavyweight champion of the world to retire undefeated? If so, could you explain why Gene Tunney is not listed as undefeated, since he retired as champion and never was beaten as a heavyweight? — Farris Dodson, North College Hill, Ohio.

Rocky Marciano is the only heavyweight champion who ever went through his entire professional career (49 bouts) without a loss or a draw. It's true Tunney never was beaten as a heavyweight, but he lost a 15-round bout to Harry Greb on May 23, 1922, for the American light heavyweight title. It was his only loss. He beat Greb the next year.

Q. The game with the Rams and Dallas ended with a safety as time ran out. Question: If more time remained in the game, which team would kick or receive, and from what point on the field would the kick be made? — Al Master, Anaheim,

The same rules would have pertained as on any safety. The ball is taken out to the 20-yard line, and the team against whom the safety was committed has the option of kicking from placement or punting. The team that scores the safety always receives.

Q. Is it legal for the kicker to drop-kick the ball for the point after touchdown, or must someone hold it for him? Is the dropkick still legal in the NFL? — Norman Haggard, Covington, Ky.

The dropkick is within the realm of possibility on any level of football — that is, it's perfectly legal. The dropkick vogue became extinct after the football was tapered down to very pointed extremities, making the art of dropping the ball and getting a toe into it at the right spot very difficult. However, there are some dropkick aficionados who profess to seeing a return of the art, claiming that even the slimmed down ball can be manipulated, and pointing out that the dropkick frees an extra man for blocking purposes.

Parting shot:

The NFL has to change its rule about giving 30,000 tickets to the city which hosts the Super Bowl game — it was patently unfair for Oakland rooters, within reach of the game, to have only half that many available.

Got a tough question about sports and the people who play them? All you got to do is ask Murray Olderman. Write him care of this newspaper. The most interesting questions will be answered in this column. Olderman regrets that he cannot write personal answers to all questions.

Jockeys Day, Saint-Martin Depart 'Anita

Jockey Pat Day, a late arrival on the Santa Anita riding scene only days prior to the Dec. 28 opening had his final three mounts on Thurday's program after returning to Aqueduct to resume his profession.

"I came out here at the last moment with some friends and realized before too long that was the wrong way to go about it when you're competing against the likes of Shoemaker and Pincay," Day stated. "I'm going back to New York to regroup and make some money before coming back because I really love it out here. Next time I'll be prepared."

Day will return for selected stakes engagements, most likely to handle Great Contractor, for whom he has become the regular rider after guiding the son of Selari to victory in the Jockey Club Gold Cup late last fall at Belmont Park.

French champion jockey Yves Saint-Martin has had a change of plans and will not compete at the Santa Anita meeting.

Saint-Martin, originally slated to ride yesterday in the sixth race canceled his southland stay to fulfill an obligation to ride for trainer Angel Penna in South Africa.

Seabass, Yellowtail Spice Sea Action

A few white seabass and yellow tail are showing at the Coronado Islands and highlighting the very limited fishing now available off the southland coast.

Catches of the two species haven't been high – with the exception of one day recently – but landing officials at Point Loma Sportfishing and Fisherman's Landing say the yellowtail are ranging from 18 to 22 pounds and the white seabass are in the 25-to nearly 40-pound class.

Live squid has been the key to success and during the few days that squid isn't obtained, catches usually fall off and produce bonito and rockfish. The best day during the past week saw 12 fishermen on the boat New Lo-An account for 32 white seabass, topped by a 37-pound lunker landed by Violante Marcello of Coronado. On most days, however, catches of the two species are less than a fish per rod.

On Wednesday, Point Loma Sportfishing reported 34 passengers on the New Lo-An took five yellowtail, six white seabass, two halibut and 169 rockfish.

Locally, Davey's Locker Sportfishing official Robbie Robinson says the boat Matt Walsh has been sampling the 14-Mile Bank and finding a six to 10 fish-per-average for a mixture of salmon grouper, chilipeppers and miscellaneous bottom fish. Top day recently reported was 216 rockfish, one ling cod and one cow cod sacked by 27 fishermen on the boat.

Davey's Locker, by the way, is now operating whale watching trips each weekend through February. Trips leave at 9 a.m. and 1 p.m. on both Saturdays and Sundays, says landing spokesman Lee Clark, and reservations are required.

Art Gronsky at Art's Landing, Newport Harbor, says Santa Barbara Island continues to produce good fishing for anglers on the all-day boat Channel Isle. Rex Hunt of Huntington Beach topped catches in the past few days by decking an 18-pound ling cod at the isle.

Elsewhere along the coast, rockfish are supplying the bulk of the catch.

Hidden Reef, off Santa Barbara Island, has been a good bet for fishermen riding boats out of Queen's Wharf Sportfishing in Long Beach. The boat California is making the run.

To the north, CISCO Landing (Oxnard) owner Jack Ward says Harrison's Reef is a reliable producer of mixed rockfish and the heaviest sacks are weighing up to 70 pounds per fisherman.

Rincon Reef catches break down to about 50 per cent salmon grouper, 25 per cent chilipeppers and 25 per cent reds, cowdod and lingcod, says Bob Gendron at Ventura Sportfishing. He says the best action has been at the 600-foot level.

GOOD MUNCHIN'— Walter Munch of Pico Rivera will have some good table fare with these five rainbow trout caught recently at Irvine Lake in Orange County. The fish are typical of the average size trout being taken at the popular reservoir, although a few 4 to 5-pounders are being caught. Munch managed this limit in Sierra Cove, using live nightcrawlers for bait.

Fishing License Increase Looks Like Certainty

California's fishing license fees may have to be increased to help bail out the inflation-squeezed Department of Fish and Game, the head of the state Resources Agency says.

Claire Dedrick said in an interview while commenting on the 1977-78 proposed state budget that increasing the $4 fishing license fee may "be something we'll want to do, in fact I think it is" in the coming fiscal year.

If new sources of revenue aren't found, the 1,400-employe department may have to cut 60 jobs in 1978, said DFG Director E.C. Fullerton.

Fishing and hunting license fees, increased three times since 1971 after a 13-year stretch of no boost, provide the bulk of the Fish and Game Preservation Fund, $29.75 million, in the proposed state budget released today for 1977-78.

Lake Skinner Gets Trout Transfusion

By CHUCK GARRISON
Register Outdoor Writer

The future of Lake Skinner in Riverside County as a rainbow trout fishery has been enhanced by the signing of a cooperative trout stocking agreement between the Department of Fish and Game and Riverside County, according to DFG officials.

Under terms of the agreement, the state and county will stock catchable size rainbows in the lake on a matching basis throughout the winter and spring months when water conditions and temperatures are suitable.

The cooperative stocking program will begin this month, says Bill Richardson, DFG fisheries management supervisor. The DFG made a preliminary plant of catchable size rainbow trout in the lake around the first of December.

Trout stocked by the state comes from DFG hatcheries. Trout stocked by the county will be purchased from commercial trout farms.

To finance its share of the program, the Riverside County Parks Department, which operates the lake's recreational facilities, raised the entrance fee on Jan. 1 from $1.25 per car to $1.25 per person

The county program and the method of funding it were authorized by the Riverside County Board of Supervisors.

Present DFG plans call for planting a minimum of 20,000 pounds of catchable size trout in Lake Skinner this year. County plants are expected to at least equal and probably exceed that figure, Richardson says.

The Old Days

Dick Westermann of La Mirada recalled this week in Western Outdoor News some of his opening day specials when he first started his Sierra Sport Shoppe (no longer in existence) in Compton. That was on February 3, 1940 and some of the bargains included Winchester Model 12 shotguns at $29.95 each, Winchester 30-30 carbines for $24.95 and .22 long rifle ammunition at 17 cents a box or $1.60 for a small case of 500 shells.

Westermann says 12 gauge dove and quail shotshells went for 75 cents a box; a Penn No. 85 reel sold for only $2.85 and a 100-yard spool of Cortland Cuttyhunk line was priced at 25 cents.

Fishing trips at that time, he says, included local deep sea trips for $2.00 per passenger or runs to Catalina Island for $3.50 a ticket.

Anchovy Decision

The California Fish and Game Commission is meeting today to decide whether to grant the commercial fishing industry an increase in the seasoal tonnage of anchovies allowed for reduction purposes. The request, supported by the California Department of Fish and Game, calls for the current 100,000 tons per season in the southern permit zone to be increased to 200,000 tons.

Sportfishing interests have vigorously opposed any increase in the reduction anchovy quota, and have also asked the Commission to provide an anchovy sanctuary area extending from Point Dume to Catalina Island and from Catalina Island to Dana Point. Under the sportfishing request, DFG observers would also be placed on commercial reduction boats to monitor the fishery.

The Department of Fish and Game contends that a current abundance of anchovies warrants the 100,000-ton increase, yet sportfishing groups say that live bait has been difficult to catch and the current unharvested anchovy resource is needed to provide forage for game fish.

Pheasant Hunts

The general pheasant hunting season in California is now over, but there's plenty of pheasant hunting still available with Linc Raahauge's Pheasant Hunting Club open until March 15, according to club manager Mike Raahauge. "This season, since October 1, we've had our very best shooting results with a harvest rate of 85 percent of all pheasants stocked in the fields," Raahauge reports. "The recent rains helped, too, since guys with dogs can now pick up the scent of the birds easier. Anyone who shoots well usually has no problem getting birds."

Ringneck pheasants – both hens and cocks – are stocked at Raahauge's and the basic hunting fee is $60 for six birds planted. One guest is allowed on each of two hunts.

Linc Raahauge's Pheasant Hunting Club is located just off the Riverside Freeway in Corona, consisting of 1000 acres of land behind Prado Dam. More information may be obtained by phoning (714) 735-2361 or (714) 735-3461.

Trout Plants

The following lakes and streams, listed by county, are scheduled for restocking this week with catchable-size rainbow trout from Department of Fish and Game hatcheries:

SAN DIEGO – Santee Park Lakes.

SANTA BARBARA – Cachuma Lake.

VENTURA – Casitas Lake.

All scheduled stocking will be made if weather and road conditions permit.

Stripers Hitting At Lake Havasu

Striped bass are providing good fishing at Lake Havasu this week, notes Loran Perry at Black Meadow Landing and officials at Lake Havasu Marina. Catches have been coming in from all sections of the lake, from Parker Dam north to Lake Havasu City.

Fred Kunkle of Havasu Landing topped recent catches with a 28-pound striper taken near the Bill Williams delta area. Three-fish limits were taken by several residents of Black Meadow Landing: Jess Stone (to 13 1/2 pounds), Dan Wheeler (to 9 pounds), Jim Hogan (to 13 pounds) and John Curly (to 8 pounds).

Perry says most of the fish are ranging from 35 to 50 feet deep and are hitting silver spoons jigged up and down off the bottom.

Lunker size trout evaded hooks at Irvine Lake the past few days, but shore fishermen working the west bank and boat anglers fishing in Sierra Cove took some limits of 1/2 - to 2- pound rainbows. Joe DePriest and his son, James, both of Santa Ana, teamed up to take two limits of trout with Joe's catch averaging 2 pounds per fish. Scott Silvey of Anaheim, 3, caught a 2-pounder off the west shore.

Lake Sherwood in Los Angeles County opens its 1977 season on Jan. 20, according to lake manager Doug Collins. Approximately 1000 pounds of trout will be stocked prior to the opener. For information, phone (805) 495-2512.

Other reports and big fish catches follow:

LAKE CACHUMA – Fair to good for trout, with some limits of 1/2 – to 3/4 – pound trout taken in Cachuma Bay, Martini Hollow and Santa Cruz Bay. Bass fishing improving slightly. About 30 per cent of the bass taken have been smallmouths.

LAKE CASITAS – Fair for trout, with only a few fishermen doing well for bass. A few channel catfish hitting. George Carey, Ventura, 4-8 trout; Orin Chappell, Oak View, 5-8 bass; George Colier, Port Hueneme, 23-0 catfish.

CASTAIC LAKE – Trout fishing improving. Bass fishermen working 30 to 50 feet down for fish taken on jigs and spoons. Best trout catches made near Gam on eggs, cheese and worms. Joe Hansel and George Abbee, Sylmar, six bass to 3-0. Frank Hardin, Los Angeles, 5-12 catfish.

BULLHEAD CITY – (Colorado River) Fair for trout below Davis Dam. Most rainbows pan-sized. Rosie and Ray Herberger, Old Station, 6-0 and 5-4 trout.

SAN ANTONIO LAKE – Fair for experienced bass fishermen. Bluegill and redear sunfish hitting worms in 20 to 30 feet of water near brush.

LAKE HENSHAW – Fair for trout. Slow for other species.

SALTON SEA – Light fishing pressure. Fair for corvina in deep water, where hula-skirted jigs or spoons are working best. A few sargo and croaker taken off State Park area on cut baits.

LAKE MIRAMAR – Fair for trout. Alto Jerkins, San Diego, 4-2 trout; Heinz Paegert, San Diego, 3-8 trout.

More Salmon Plants For Southland

An estimated 25,000 yearling silver salmon were planted in the lagoon of the Santa Margarita River in northern San Diego County Thursday as the California Fish and Game continued a marine sportfishing improvement program begun in 1974.

A Backpacker's Progress

Last Saturday in this space we burlesqued a militant friend of the Earth, who, spending a weekend in the undefiled wilds, defiled them. He came equipped with the latest camping gear and apparel, all of it innovated and sold at a profit by enemy industrialists. He left the campsite smoldering and littered, backpacking home just in time to catch a Monday night lecturer haranguing industrialists who rape Mother Nature. He listened enraptured.

Was the scenario exaggerated? Well, burlesques are supposed to be exaggerated. Even so, we have witnessed some people whose countryside habits and political beliefs run awfully close to that hypocritical cycle. But we're not M. Palin of Huntington Beach or David Bolland of Fullerton, who, in their own trips to the pristine woods, have Seen No Evil. Not from their fellow backpackers, in any case.

Readers Palin and Bolland write in today's Clearinghouse that our editorial was a "cheap attempt to label a few ignorant and destructive fools as concerned people" and that we "owe an apology to all those who have responsibly enjoyed the wilderness" etc., etc. We urge you to read their complaints.

M. Palin even suggests that we would deny environmentalists the right to express their views and champion their ludicrous causes. How that kind of censoriousness was derived from a perfectly libertarian editorial escapes us. We allow a wide variety of opinion to be expressed, in the Clearinghouse.

Palin gets to meatier stuff, however. He suspects that our editorial staff accepts passively as "sacred truth" anything the business and industrial community produces. We do not; never have. We advocate the market economy, not because what it produces is always right for society, but because it is unabolishable. No legislature, however animated by enviromentalist ardor, can alter the human tendency to pull a profit.

You cannot "balance the profit-only motive...with some values for environment protection" precisely because there is no such schism between economy and ecology that too many "environmentalists" imagine. This is an important point, which too many militants miss: here are environmentalist profits as well as industrialist profits. Often the two are the same; in a free market competition provides, does not destroy, natural balance.

Take for instance the problem of preserving natural "parks." Few would argue that the places selected by legislatures, however wonderful in natural beauty, were the best such examples; they were merely the plots the legislatures managed at the time to seize. The legislatures then declared such land open to all; the places were "owned" publicly.

So indeed the masses, no single member of which was actually self-responsible for the parks, trudged into these "public" places. Admission fees were either non-existent or minimal, so there was no way to regulate the flow of tourists and industrialism-bedecked campers. Government bureaucracy then invaded the places, paving footpaths and highways over meadows, franchising inn-keepers, curio shops and snack bars. The National Park Service freely admits the tourist-camper flood is one of their largest headaches.

On the other hand, private resorts regulate the numbers of visitors with a perfectly just market mechanism: price. There are room rates, meals, equipment rentals and so on; some places impose high admission fees so that the landscape might be able to breathe free of boobies who think they, the "public," own the place.

Private resorts ruin the environment too, you say? OK, but not any more than the national parks. There are also privately-held plots – the Irvine Co., for one huge example – which sustain natural habitats untouched. Enough said.

Do not think for a moment the "environmentalist" movement enjoys no sense of profit. There are legitimate ways to profit (you will notice the cleanest drinking water is sold by private bottlers). And there are illegitimate ways to profit (how many "environmentalists," well-intentioned or not, push legislation in order to get the bureaucratic environmental protection jobs?) Profit, like the earth itself, is neither moral nor immoral. It is.

We're confident Palin and Bolland, if they explore their reverence for nature sincerely and fully, one day will see our point. They may even want to burlesque the hypocrites themselves – if the truth doesn't hurt – and unapologetically.

Computers And Cash Registers

Those postage stamp-sized patches of lines that appear on more and more supermarket items, to hear some unionists tell it, are like the mark of Cain on the brow of your hair spray can.

The unionists, all in the name of "consumerism" of course, want a law passed to keep prices attached to shelf items. The patches of lines render traditional price stamps unnecessary because, as more cash registers computerize, the lines will ring up prices automatically without the checker punching numbered keys.

Consumers will be protected, contend the unionists, because prices will be displayed, in Arabic numerals, on the packages. Nonsense. The prices will stay displayed on the shelves, because it is commonsensical for store managers to serve customers.

What the unionists really are protecting is jobs; more to the point, they don't want to lose dues-paying members.

If it is uneconomic to employ people to stand in the aisles and produce rooms stamping prices – which, given newer technology, it is – then consumers ought not be required to pay the cost.

Properly perceived, the computer price registration is a gift to consumers. It will save an enormous amount of dollars.

Today In History

By The Associated Press

Today is Friday, Jan. 14, the 14th day of 1977. There are 351 days left in the year.

Today's highlight in history:

On this date in 1784, the United States ratified a peace treaty with England, formally ending the American Revolution.

On this date –

In 1914, Henry Ford's first assembly line went into operation, vastly reducing the time it took to manufacture a car.

In 1965, the prime ministers of Ireland and Northern Ireland met. It was the first meeting between the two country's heads of government in 43 years.

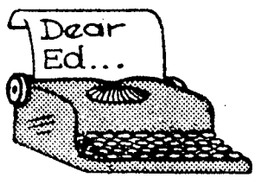

Ten years ago: A West German-French summit meeting in Paris improved relations between the two countries, but they retained their differences over the American role in Europe.

One year ago: The Spanish government drafted several thousand postal workers into the army in an effort to stem labor agitation which had idled 150,000 workers in the Madrid area alone.

Today's birthdays: Actress Faye Dunaway is 36. Choreographer Gerald Peter Arpino is 49.

Thought for today: "Music is the universal language of mankind." – Henry Wadsworth Longfellow, American poet, 1807-1882.

Questions, Questions

Don't get me wrong. I love this country and have a fine son in the U.S. Navy.

1 – I want to know why I must speak Spanish in order to qualify for many top-level jobs. My father was an immigrant who came to this country when he was 18, fought in WWI, learned a trade, the language and even changed his name to become "more American." Now it seems that we native-born Americans must learn Spanish.

2 – I wonder what Earl Butz thinks of our freedom of speech and how we "defend to our death his right to say it."

3 – After we voted to reinstate capital punishment, why is the governor and the Supreme Court allowed to state that it is unconstitutional and cruel and unusual punishment? Were they not cruel and unusual crimes? Is this government of the people?

4 – Why are they restricting only Mexican immigration? Why not other nations as well? This is unfair.

5 – Why on New Year's eve do we see only New York's celebration. Why not spots all over America?

6 – Why TV re-runs in January?

Wrong Slant

A recent editorial in The Register, entitled "Weekend Spoilers", was supposedly to show the hypocrisy of a "typical nature-loving militant" in spending a weekend backpacking in a wilderness area. Instead, the editorial is rather confused statement illustrating the ignorance of the particular writer concerning wilderness use by backpackers.

The only valid viewpoint present in this editorial is so obvious that it hardly bears the constant repetition given it. No one, no matter how militant, is seriously advocating the immediate and total shut-down of all business and industry precisely because of the point the editorial runs into the ground, namely, that American society is dependent upon the business and industrial community for its way of life.

However, this does not mean that all must passively accept every idea and act that this community produces as sacred truth (which the editorial staff sometimes seems to do) simply because it has provided many good developments. Those who criticize business and industry as exploiting nature are only trying to balance the profit-only motive of this community with some values for environment protection, and are completely within their rights to do so (as is the editorial staff when publishing their views).

The legality of the editorial is unimportant when considering the real insult of it, which comes with an attempt to attack backpackers as destructive forces within wilderness areas (which are, for the most part, protected from commercial interests) and, thereby, associate them with the environmental destruction of the business and industrial communities. "Typical" backpackers throw cigarette butts on the ground, build campfires, and most certainly "leave a campsite strewn with cans, plus other assorted litter" when visiting a wilderness area. To represent them in such a way is to disregard the basic wilderness axiom: you packed it in, you pack it out. The individual writer and entire editorial staff owe an apology to all those who have responsibly enjoyed the wilderness for this very poor effort to ridicule their experiences and beliefs.

I'm sure the main point in "Weekend Spoilers" (Jan.8) was the hypocrisy practiced by environmentalists. Being one, this problem has dawned on me before. Living in compromised American society, we must compromise our ideals somewhat.

As for the slovenly "nature lover" depicted, he is not an environmentalist. The editorial was a cheap attempt to label a few ignorant and destructive fools as concerned people. I have spent some time myself packing out trash from the back country in order to improve conditions.

There are surely problems in practice of what one preaches, but if we all are concerned and interested in keeping beauty for the future unpillaged, we must quit calling names (i.e. business and environment values) and work toward that goal of balance in the use of our land. The damage has been done and there is only so much left. We should all help to assure the best use of those few remaining resources.

Progeny Get Breaks

I am writing regarding "Doctor Speaks Up" by Graham Gilmer, Jr., M.D.

Having been employed as a medical secretary for many years I found his article amusing to say the least. Dr. Gilmer's sons might not have been as fortunate as are many other progeny of the medical hierarchy, but they would definitely be in the minority rather than majority.

While in the employ of a local medical group it was one of my duties to type correspondence directed to board members requesting them to use their influence in the acceptance of one of the doctor's sons, after quotas were filled. He was accepted shortly thereafter. Let's face it — it's not what you know but who you know to play the med school game.

Also, it is quite common to have offspring of various doctors observe in the office and at the hospital, so they can get the jump on other students in their classes at college.

It is hardly the same to compare children of the ministry with children of doctors, first, because of the lack of competition in training for the ministry and secondly, the financial aspect involved. Try comparing a protestant minister's income with that of a surgeon.

One more small item — I for one would take that 3 a.m. call Dr. Graham referred to if I was paid what that "poor" doctor was, to let him get some sleep.

Political Suicide

Can there be anyone who still believes he (or she) really has anything to say about whether of not we are a representative government? Gov. Brown's intimidating remarks regarding what he would do with any bill which requires a death penalty ought to have removed all doubt.

Somewhere, sometime, perhaps a long time ago, I remember hearing something about our government being one "of the people, by the people, and for the people" but evidently that is all outdated stuff now.

This might be one time a politician has committed political suicide, I hope.

BRUDNOY'S COMPLAINT

Those New Year's Resolutions Blues

By DAVID BRUDNOY

On the first day post-Christmas my resolution read: send no more Christmas cards evermore.

On the second day post-Christmas my resolutions read: curse at no callers, and send no more Christmas cards evermore.

On the third day post-Christmas my resolutions read: don't buy the New York Times, think kindly of Carter, curse at no callers, and send no more Christmas cards evermore.

On ths fifth day post-Christmas my resolutions read: don't smo-o-o-ke next year, don't buy the New York Times, think kindly of Carter, curse at no callers, and send no more Christmas cards evermore.

On the sixth day post-Christmas my resolutions read: don't speed while driving, don't smo-o-o-ke next year, don't buy the New York Times, think kindly of Carter, curse at no callers, and send no more Christmas cards evermore.

On the first day of New Year's my resolutions read: give the Guv a break, don't speed while driving, don't smo-o-o-ke this year, don't buy the New York Times, think kindly of Carter, curse at no callers, and send no more Christmas cards evermore.

On the second day of New Year's my resolutions read: read that dreary textbook, give the Guv a break, don't speed while driving, don't smo-o-o-ke this year, don't buy the New York Times, think kindly of Carter, curse at no callers, and send no more Christmas cards evermore.

On the third day of New Year's my resolutions read: go on a diet, read that dreary textbook, give the Guv a break, don't speed while driving, don't smo-o-o-ke this year, don't buy the New York Times, think kindly of Carter, curse at no callers, and send no more Christmas cards evermore.

On the fourth day of New Year's my resolutions read: learn to like disco music, go on a diet, read that dreary textbook, give the Guv a break, don't speed while driving, don't smo-o-o-ke this year, don't buy the New York Times, think kindly of Carter, curse at no callers, and send no more Christmas cards evermore.

On the fifth day of New Year's my resolutions read: give up martinis, learn to like disco music, go on a diet, read that dreary textbook, give the Guv a break, don't speed while driving, don't smo-o-o-ke this year, don't buy the New York Times, think kindly of Carter, curse at no calles, and send no more Christmas cards evermore.

On the sixth day of New Year's my resolutions read: use the metric system, give up martinis, learn to like disco music, go on a diet, read that dreary textbook, give the Guv a break, don't speed while driving, don't smo-o-o-ke this year, don't buy the New York Times, think kindly of Carter, curse at no callers, and send no more Christmas cards evermore.

On the seventh day of New Year's (which is also the thirteenth day post-Christmas), mislaying my New Year's resolutions, I abandoned the metric system once more; had an extra-dry Beefeaters on the rocks with a twist, and a dash of vermouth; stormed out of a discotheque swearing never to endure that unbearable noise again; treated myself to a triple-scoop chocolate sunday with butterscotch topping, laced with almonds, drowned in whipped cream, with a maraschino cherry on the thing for color; threw out the dreary textbook and started the last opus by Irving Wallace; publicly accused the Guv of plotting to lay more taxes on the people; got stopped by a cop for doing 65 in a 55 mph highway speed trap; bought a new meerschaum pipe and two pounds of hideously expensive tobacco, and a new lighter, and puffed away all day; clipped fourteen articles from the New York Times and waited eagerly for tomorow's edition; suggested in none too polite terms that the president-elect would ruin the economy within a year; blew up at a lady who called the radio program suggesting that I was tempermental; and bought 300 Christmas cards on sale.

Well, there's always 1978. . .

INSIDE WASHINGTON

Mansfield As China Envoy?

By ROBERT S. ALLEN

WASHINGTON – Former Senate Democratic leader Mike Mansfield may have the opportunity to utilize his signal expertise on China in a historic role.

Long in favor of establishing full diplomatic relations with Peking, the veteran Montana legislator will be offered appointment as envoy there by President-elect Carter – who holds similar views.

The matter has been discussed, but no decision reached pending developments, particularly in China where new Communist party chairman Hua Kuo-feng is leaning heavily on the army and senior military commanders to suppress radical elements seeking to take over following the death of Mao Tse-tung.

Aside from the question of policy, naming Mansfield as ambassador to China could be a political and diplomatic ten-strike.

Widely esteemed and influential in the Democratic party and Congress, he was for years chairman of the Far Eastern Affairs Subcommittee. On China he is without peer in firsthand knowledge and personal contacts there.

His experience goes back to World War I, when he was a youthful Marine (enlisting at age 14) and was stationed in China. Since then he has been there six times, the last three following former President Nixon's eventful trip and agreement to exchange official representatives. During these visits Mansfield conferred with top leaders, including Mao and Chou En-lai, late powerful premier.

Most recent Mansfield visit was last September-October at the invitation of the Chinese people's institute of foreign affairs, when he was extended unusual privileges, including touring Sinkiang, Kiangsu and Kwangtung provinces from which Americans had been barred since 1949, when the Communists captured control.

As required when a new president takes office, current Ambassador Thomas Gates has submitted his resignation. The one-time secretary of defense in the Eisenhower administration has been asked to continue in Peking until the Carter transition is completed – which may take some time, especially in the replacement of diplomats.

Key Problem

If Mansfield is appointed envoy to Peking, there will be no doubts or ambiguity about his views and position.

They are fully and clearly spelled out in a 158-page report, titled "China Enters the Post-Mao Era," published by the Senate Foreign Realtions Committee of which he was ranking member. While largely ignored, it is a penetrating study, particularly of the key problem of U.S.-Peking relations – Taiwan.

While Mansfield admittedly favors establishment of full diplomatic relations with Peking, he does not hold this should be done quickly or at the expense of breaking ties with Nationlist China.

On the "basis of my conversations" with leading Peking authorities, whom Mansfield names, he "believes satisfactory arrangements can be worked out concerning the handling of our relations with Taiwan." Just how or other pertinent details are carefully not mentioned.

But Mansfield pointedly stresses that Japan and other U.S. allies have successfully overcome this dilemma and expresses confidence that in time the U.S. can too. Argues Mansfield:

"All of the NATO allies, not to speak of dozens of other nations, have recognized the reality that the People's Republic is the rightful sovereign of all China, at no loss of their prestige in the world. There is not likely to be official collaboration with China on matters involving stability in the Pacific, disarmament or other major world issues as long as the present state of affairs exists."

No Rush — But

Mansfield goes out of his way to take a caustic slap at "China experts."

Their record "leaves much to be desired." Also he bluntly warns that China must not be "judged by American standards." Chinese society is rigidly disciplined, with the masses "subjected to unremitting propaganda from an all-pervasive government apparatus."

Soundly and realistically to weigh U.S. - Chinese relations, we must look at common interests, not differences. These interests are fatefully momentous.

"We are both greatly concerned about the Soviet Union and its intentions," says Mansfield. "We have a common interest in the moderation of tensions in Asia and in seeing that the nations in that region remain free of domination by outside powers. We both desire a viable Japan free of the menace of militarism."

Mansfield reached three basic conclusions on this trip:

(1) For the foreseeable future it is highly unlikely it will be of significance who controls China as far as relations with the U.S. are concerned. (2) What is of real consequence to the U.S. is not the makeup of the leadership, but that the system Mao established continues and works. (3) America can and should come to terms "with the realities of China without delay."

"Further delays," maintains Mansfield, "could well prove to be another in a long series of disastrous miscalculations that have afflicted U.S. foreign policy in Asia since World War II. If we act more wisely than in the past, we will act now, not on the basis of emotional catch phrases. But on the basis of rational contemporary American interests in the Western Pacific.

THE REAL THING

By Barbara Taylor
Register Real Estate Editor

Success Follows Hard Work

From picker to packer to checker to real estate commissions of $85,000 in 1976.

"Never, never give up.

"If there is one piece of advice I would give anyone, that's it." Chris Diaz told The Register. And for someone who as a child worked in the fields harvesting crops, that philosophy has written a success story.

Determination, plus a combination of joy for work, joy of life, a positive outlook and a friendliness towards and understanding of people are what she claims is reponsible for her meteoric success in real estate sales.

CHRIS DIAZ

During her first year – she made $18,000 and topped that last year with commissions on sales of $4.5 million.

Her story is more impressive when one starts at the beginning. One of six children to Mexican immigrants, her mother died in 1941 when Chris was 11. Her father, worried about leaving the children unattended took the children to the fields to work alongside him.

"Many of the orchards had small trees then and my father would tell the owner he would care for the orchard in exchange for the privilege of growing crops between the trees," she said.

It was there in those fields that she acquired character attributes which have stayed with her through the years. "My father still prospects for gold," she said, "But what he taught me instilled in me the things that have so enriched my life and been golden to me."

SEVEN-DAY WEEK

"He would say, 'We will work until we can't see,' and 'If you (want to) eat you work.'" Work she does – seven days a week.

Today some think that I am money hungry, but that's not true. I love my work and there is one thing I have found. If you work hard, success has to follow."

"I love to help people. My father used to say 'cada cabazo es un mundo' (each head is a world). When I was young, I did not understand that but through the years working with people, I now know what he meant. You have to treat each one as an individual. Everyone has his own thoughts."

It is this understanding of individuals that she says helps her most in helping people fill their individual housing needs. "One thing I do stress," she said, "is that people not wait to buy their 'dream house'. Buy what you can afford now. Build equity. Maybe it isn't really what you want, but if you can afford it, at least it is a start."

For the Diaz family that start commenced when Chris, as a bride of 21, and her husband started looking for a home.

"I was packing oranges then," she said. "I did not want to live in the barrio. I'll never forget the salesman. Everything he showed me was where I did not want to live. When I would ask to see houses in other areas, he would say they didn't want Mexicans living there.

One day as we turned down Lyon Street in Santa Ana, I saw this little house. That's it, I said. They wanted $4,000 and $900 down. We bought it without looking at the inside," she said.

In a short time the Diaz' had the home paid off and borrowed against it to buy other property and today have parlayed their real estate into sizable holdings with an income of several thousand dollars per month.

Chris left the packing house to become a checker with Alpha Beta and at one time she and her husband owned a small grocery store. They also became the proud parents of five children including a set of twins.

Selling Career

In retrospect she sees all of her life's experiences as preparing her for what she does today. "The children I used to sell candy to in our store are now buying houses through me," she said.

Of her own children, she and her husband demand the same work ethic. "If you help them too much or give them too much, you make them weak," she said.

Two other keys to her success are a value of time and appreciation of information.

Last year she hired a secretary who relieves her of many time-consumming details and frees her to devote productive time to selling and new business – an idea Realtors might find to their advantage.

She now is considering hiring a second person to handle the paperwork. "Business continues to be great," she said. "I had eight sales during the first week of January and I do about 15 market evaluations per week.

A market evaluation is done when a homeowner calls and asks her to look at his property, she said. She goes armed with information garnered from a title search and all the comparative information she can obtain on the property prior to the visit.

"I know what they paid for it when they bought it and what homes nearby have been selling for," she said. "With this information lising prices are more realistic. In some cases, the buyer has no idea how much his property is worth and would not have asked enough."

This procedure of going armed with information has been an aid in getting new listings, she said.

One of the most highly awarded persons in the real estate field, Mrs. Diaz had qualified for the fourth year by April, 1976, for Forest Olson's Million Dollar Club.

Cocoa Following Coffee

NEW YORK (AP) – Pity the inveterate nibbler who is hooked on a daily habit of one or two chocolate bars and several cups of coffee.

Already being asked to swallow higher coffee prices for some time to come, he now is being warned that cocoa prices are soaring.

Bad weather is generally blamed for a tripling of the futures prices of both commodities in the past 18 months.

And retail prices of both coffee and chocolate have gone up steadily.

One dealer said the cocoa situation would "make coffee look like a kid's game."

The price of the March 1977 cocoa contract on the New York Cocoa Exchange has jumped more than 16 cents to a record $1.61½ a pound in just six days of trading ending on Thursday. A price of $2 a pound in the near future would not be far-fetched, analysts say.

The price of coffee for the same contract month on the New York Coffee and Sugar Exchange has similarly shot upward in recent days, closing at $2.21¼ a pound Thursday.

The July 1975 frost in Brazil, which severely damaged the crop of the world's largest coffee producer, is considered the single most important reason for today's high coffee prices.

Bad weather also is blamed for a reduction in cocoa-bean crops in West Africa for two consecutive seasons. Because of tight supplies, analysts say some cocoa producers are holding out for still higher prices.

The impact of higher cocoa prices is expected to be more widespread than the impact of higher coffee prices because cocoa is used in so many more ways. But so far there is no indication of a reduction in demand from consuming nations, analysts say.

Phosphate Find In Michigan

By The Associated Press

Rocks rich in a high-grade phosphate mineral used to make fertilizer have been discovered in the Upper Peninsula.

David Snider of the Michigan Department of Natural Resources said it was not yet clear whether the phosphate rock is worth mining, but said, "The potential looks real good."

The deposits are located about 40 miles northwest of Marquette.

The U.S. Geological Survey (USGS) said the newly discovered deposits are about two billion years old and appear to be some of the oldest and richest sedimentary deposits of phosphates known in the United States.

"We don't know yet how extensive the phosphate deposits are because the area is covered by thick layers of rock debris deposited by glaciers and glacial streams during the last Ice Age," said William Cannon, USGS geologist at the Survey's National Center in Reston, Va. "As a result, the older phosphate rocks are left exposed in only a few locations."

Cannon said more testing would be needed to find out if the minerals could be mined. But, he added, "The fact that we actually found phosphate minerals in five locations during a cursory examination suggests that phosphate-bearing rocks may be fairly common and widespread in the area."

He said researchers were working on a geological map and weren't looking for phosphates during their original fieldwork. They found the rocks had mineral value "almost by accident" in later laboratory tests.

Snider said the phosphate-containing rock is a black pebble conglomerate in the rough. He said similar mineral deposits already are being mined in the Southeast, especially Florida and North Carolina.

A deposit of phosphate in the U.P. could be most valuable as a fertilizer source for local farmers. Snider said the U.S. has plenty of phosphate and the rock is heavy and expensive to transport.

NEW GM – Dr. Lester R. McNall has been promoted to General Manager of the Leffingwell Divison of Thompson-Hayward Chemical Company. Dr. McNall will be responsible for the sales, marketing, manufacturing, and research efforts for Leffingwell.

Dollar Drops Against Pound

LONDON (AP) – The dollar declined againts the British pound Thursday but strengthened slightly against other major European currencies.

The price of gold went up in both Zurich and London, the two major European centers.

In London, the pound gained a fraction on the dollar, closing at $1.7105, up from Wednesday's closing of $1.7069.

Dealers said there were two reasons for the upward movement of sterling:

The state-run Bank of England found itself strong enough in funds to return $1.36 billion to other banks which they were compulsorily forced to deposit as an inflation-curbing move. A call for a further $680 million which was scheduled to be deposited at the end of this month was canceled.

Second, a miners' threat to strike over a claim for early retirement was settled Wednesday night.

The price of an ounce of gold in Zurich moved up $2 to $132.375 an ounce. In London the price rose $1.75 an ounce to $132.125.

Other closing exchange rates for the dollar:

–Paris, 4.9805 French francs, up from 4.9710 Wednesday.

Hayden Stone Seeks Merger With Orion

NEW YORK (AP) – Shearson, Hayden Stone Inc., the large securities firm, said Thursday it has proposed a merger with Orion Capital Corp., the successor to the scandal-ridden Equity Funding Corp. of America.

Under the proposed merger offer, each Shearson holder would receive one share of the holding company. Each holder of stock in Orion, an insurance holding company, would receive .55 of a share of the new company and a preferred issue paying an annual 9 per cent dividend.

Shearson said the board of the merged company would initially be drawn from Shearson directors, but that present Orion directors would be represented on the new board "to a lesser extent" than Shearson's.

Shearson currently owns 527,171 Orion shares, or about 7 per cent of the stocks outstanding. It bought the shares in the open market during November and December.

Shearson said the proposed merger would require approval of directors and holders of both concerns.

Orion owns the Bankers National Life Insurance Co. and the Northern Life Insurance Co.

Its present name was adopted as part of the Chapter 10 bankruptcy proceedings involving the collapse of Equity Funding.

At Shearson, Chairman Sanford I. Weill said the merger would combine "the expertise and products of Orion's insurance subsidiaries (and) Shearson's products and sales force."

The combination would "offer significant potential advantages to both companies."

Intermedco Maps Merger – Cash Deal

HOUSTON (BW) – Intermedco Inc. announced it has concluded an agreement in principle with Thomas Tilling Ltd., under which Tilling will acquire Intermedco in a cash merger where each outstanding Intermedco share would be converted into $7.50 in cash.

Thomas Tilling Ltd. is a London-based holding company listed on the London Stock Exchange.

The transaction, which involves the total price of about $15 million, has been given preliminary approval by the respective boars.

METRIC TON $9,222.50

Tin Stock Gone, Prices

LONDON (AP) – The price of tin for delivery in three months jumped $93.50 a metric ton Thursday after the International Tin Council's secretariat announced its buffer stock has been exhausted.

The price of the metal rose to $9,222.50 a metric ton at the close, compared with the preannouncement midday close of $9,137.50. A metric ton is equivalent to about 2,200 pounds.

A year ago, three-month tin sold for around $6,200.

The buffer stock, a reserve held by the Tin Council, buys the metal when prices fall and sells when prices rise in order to prevent excessive price fluctuations on the market.

On Sept. 30, the buffer stock held 1,898 metric tons of tin, just under 1 per cent of a year's world production. Three months before, on June 30, the stock held 2,822 metric tons.

In addition, the tin metal stockpile held in London Metal Exchange warehouses in Britain and northern Europe has shrunk to less than 6,000 metric tons.

The world is going through an acute tin-production shortage and prices have been spiraling as a result. Consequently, the Tin Council buffer stock manager has been persistently selling from his holdings. They ran out without effectively being able to halt the price rise.

Despite the slow economic recovery around the world and reduced demand for tin, the busy Japanese tin plating industry has consistently been taking the metal off the Far Eastern market, sources said.

The crisis in the tin mining industry is due to the high cost of capital investment needed either for deep mining in Bolivia and Malaysia or for offshore dredging operations in eastern Malaysia and Indonesia.

Producers continually have complained that the price of tin was too low to allow such investment. A dredger able to mine about 2,000 metric tons of tin a year now costs around $70 million.

The producers also complain that the price of heavy fuel oil, needed to keep the hundreds of pumps going around the clock in deep tin mines, is contributing to the high cost of mining.

There is, however, no danger of shortage for the United States. The government's General Services Administration (GSA) recently announced it had a surplus in its strategic stockpile of 200,000 metric tons, more than the world's tin mining industry can produce in a year.

Current world production runs below 180,000 metric tons a year and demand is around 190,000. The gap so far has been plugged by releases from the GSA or by sales from mainland China.

Retail Car Deliveries Increase 21 Per Cent

DETROIT (AP) – The pace of domestic car sales during the first 10 days of 1977 got off to its quickest start in four years, with retail deliveries rising 21 per cent from the year before.

The percentage increase is based on the daily rate because there was one less selling day in the 1977 period.

The daily rate of 20,539 – compared with 17,001 at the start of 1976 – was the highest since the record year of 1973, when the tempo was 23,602. The period record of nearly 29,000 cars was set in 1966.

Ford Motor Co., which suffered sales declines last fall due to a four-week strike, showed the sharpest gain at the start of 1977, with a 34 per cent jump on a daily rate basis.

Chrysler Corp. sales rose 22 per cent and General Motors Corp. posted a 17 per cent improvement. However, small-car specialist American Motors Corp., beset by a severe slump for more than two years, remained in a downslide with a 17 per cent decline.

Ford Vice President Bennett E. Bidwell said the industry's sharp sales gains from a year ago reflected "increased post-strike availability, continuing strong customer interest in larger cars and a general market upturn for new vehicles."

GM sold 78,392 cars in the period this year, up from 76,695 a year ago; Ford sold 42,806, up from 36,438; Chrysler sold 18,556, up from 17,372, and AMC sold 4,017, down from 5,503.

New Oil Field

CARACAS, Venezuela (AP) – Lagoven, the largest of Venezuela's state-owned oil companies, has announced a major oil discovery in Lake Maracaibo with an estimated production capacity of 5,308 barrels daily.

Brigido Natera, production manager for Lagoven, said the find is one of Venezuela's biggest in recent times. He said his company made the discovery after drilling to some 16,940 feet.

Most Futures Prices Dip

CHICAGO (AP) – Most farm commodity futures closed lower on the nation's major exchanges Thursday.

The selloff was led by old crop soybeans, which fell 7 cents a bushel. New crop, or deferred options, were up 7½ cents. Soybean meal was down about $3.50 a ton but soy oil gained up to 25 points.

Wheat, oats and corn futures all closed from 2¼ to 4 cents lower. Iced broilers were as much as ½ cent a pound lower in deferred contracts, but the expiring January had a small gain.

Live cattle futures fell 60 cents per hundredweight, while live hogs were down 20 cents. Pork belly futures lost 62 points. Shell egg futures moved higher, independent of the market, and the spot month closed the limit of 200 points higher.

It was expected that the market would open higher. There still was a good demand for soybeans and meal abroad at higher prices, the weather was conducive to expanded usage of feed grains, soybeans and meal, and there was some constructive export business negotiated.

Despite these factors, prices were largely mixed, then fell when commercial support eased. There were several attempts to rally the market, but they failed.

There was some liquidation of spreads involving the sale of meal and purchases of oil, reversing the procedure when the spreads were installed and the activity produced a sharp loss in meal and a gain in oil. New crop beans were bought by some spreaders and nearby, old crop months, were sold, also in spreading fashion.

Trade was mixed, but commercial and commission house involvement after the opening was very thin. Wheat, corn and oats trade appeared to depend mostly on activity in the soybean complex.

At the close of grain trade, soybeans were 7 cents a bushel lower to 7½ higher, January 7.13; wheat was 2¾ to 4 lower, March 2.79; corn was 1½ to 2¼ lower, March 2.62; and oats were 2 to 3 lower, March 1.73¾.

Lower carcass beef prices and increasing slaughterings were the principal factors in the early selloff in live cattle futures. Lower grain prices and a forecast of some moderating weather also tended to work prices lower.

The prospect of increased marketings with moderate weather and some trade belief of a loss in retail sales because of the recent weather tended to influence sellers of live hog futures. Pork belly selling was attributed to a larger than expected hog slaughter and an uneven cash market.

Stock Prices Rebound

NEW YORK (AP) – The stock market rebounded from its early-1977 slide Thursday with a broad advance sparked by a buying spree in oil and gas issues.

The Dow Jones average of 30 industrial stocks climbed 7.90 to 976.15 for its best single-session showing so far in the new year.

Big Board volume reached 24.78 million shares, up from 22.67 million on Wednesday.

The Dow had fallen more than 18 points in the two previous sessions and more than 36 since New Year's.

After such a steep drop in only eight trading days, analysts said, buyers moved in Thursday morning to look for bargains and cover previous short sales. Once the upswing was established, additional buying appeared in the afternoon.

A swarm of independent oil and gas stocks made the active list at the NYSE close.

Texas International, the volume leader, added 7/8 to 11⅛. Amerada Hess gained 15/8 to 33¾; Buttes Gas & Oil jumped 3 to 22; Reserve Oil & Gas was up 1½ at 20½, and Tesoro Petroleum picked up 1 to 16¾.

At the American Stock Exchange, nine of the 10 most active issues were from the oil and gas group.

Analysts said recent activity in such stocks had been prompted by severe winter cold in many parts of the country, as well as the belief that President-elect Carter will move quickly to establish new energy programs.

"This group has been providing some action while most stocks haven't done much of anything lately," observed Eldon A. Grimm at Birr, Wilson & Co. "So it's getting the speculative play."

The larger, international oils also did well during the day. Exxon, Mobil, Texaco and Standard Oil of California all advanced fractionally.

Santa Fe International jumped 4 7/8 to 48. The company reported a successful test on a North Sea oil well, and projected record earnings for 1977 and 1978.

Pacific Tin Consolidated jumped 1 7/8 to 12¾ with tin prices climbing in London.

Kennecott Copper, subject of a bullish analysis in Business Week magazine, tacked on 1 to 29⅛.

Several stocks responded to bright earnings news, among them J.P. Morgan, up 1¾ at 55 3/8; Union Camp, ahead 1¾ at 61¼, and Louisiana-Pacific, ahead ½ at 16 7/8.

Elsewhere, the Amex market value index jumped 1.02 to 110.63.

Aussie Wool Exports Heading For Record

As a result of devaluation, Australian wool export earnings are likely to at least equal wool income during the 1950-51 Korean War boom and wool again to regain its position as Australia's premier export commodity.

Gross value of wool production in the year ending June 1977 was expected to rise 29 per cent to $1.42 billion as against a predevaluation forecast of a 4.5 per cent increase.

If the Australian Wool Corp. continued selling wool from its stock, export receipts should reach a new record of $1,630 million, the bureau said.

It said the gross value of wheat production should total $1.09 billion, 19 per cent less than the previous year. The drop is due to a fall in output and lower export prices resulting from a record world wheat crop of about 410 million tons.

The gross value of cattle and calves slaughtered was estimated to rise by more than 30 per cent to $974 million with saleyard prices for cattle estimated to average 35 per cent more than the depressed levels of 1975-76.

The bureau said increased exports of beef and veal are expected following sharp increases in sales to the Soviet Union and Eastern Europe, an enlarged voluntary restraint level for the United States and an increase in shipments to the Common Market.

Colorful Silver Lake Area Has Just About Everything

By BOB KIRKPATRICK
Register Staff Writer

Silverwood Lake, some 30 miles north of San Bernardino, is another attractive recreation area within easy driving distance of Orange County.

The highest reservoir found in the State Water Project's aqueduct system, Silverwood is 3,355 feet above sea level, contains some 976 acres of water surface, and is rimmed by 13 miles of shoreline.

The impoundment's water is held by the Cedar Springs Dam in an area familiar to the early Indians who made this an important water stop on the ancient Mohave trail. Lake Silverwood can be reached by taking the Riverside Freeway north to Interstate Route 15 as far as Cajon Junction, then proceeding east on Route 138.

For a panoramic view of the lake, travelers can easily reach two vantage points: one is from atop Cedar Springs Dam at the north end of the lake on Highway 173, while the other is from the view point on the lake's west side on Highway 138.

Some 2,400 acres of recreation land surrounds the lake. The major recreational facilities developed so far by the state are located in the Sawpit Canyon area, on the south shore, and in the Cleghorn Cove area on the southwest arm of the lake. These facilities include scenic picnic sites with potable water, sanitary facilities, swimming beaches, a six-lane launching ramp, parking for 828 single cars and 206 cars with trailers, recreational paths, a marina, equipment rental facilities, fishing areas, and concessionaire-operated snack bars.

In addition, boat-in picnic areas have been developed at the Chamise, Sycamore Landing and Live Oak areas on the lake's east and west shores.

Still under development, the lake will acquire additional day-use facilities early this year: picnic areas, swimming beaches and recreational paths in the Miller Canyon area.

Group camping and day-use accommodations are being developed at the West Fork area, and a camp ground and campfire center is scheduled for completion at the Lower Mesa area.

Also slated for completion this year is an 8-mile bicycle and hiking trail to connect the Serrano Beach and Cleghorn Cove areas.

Moviegoers Line Up For 'Noah's Ark'

LOS ANGELES – Sun Classic Pictures of Los Angeles, producers of family-oriented films, has released "In Search of Noah's Ark," in the Los Angeles-Orange County area. And they claim it's breaking box office records.

Sun Classic has produced a number of successful general audience films, such as "Chariots of the Gods," and "The Life and Times of Grizzly Adams," but until now had not attempted to do one strictly religious in nature.

"There are very few forums for this kind of material," said Charles E. Sellier Jr., a film producer for Sun. "No major movie studio would have done this film on the first and greatest of all disasters.

But when material was gathered for the book, written by Costa Mesan Dave, Balsiger, a Christian of evangelical leaning, and the company saw movie-making potential.

What the producers decided to do was present the film in what they call a "docu-drama" format, broken into four parts: dramatic reenactments, interviews with scientists, laboratory tests, and eyewitness accounts. Biblical scenes were dramatized, backed with modern-day scientific evaluation.

Additionally, the company unleashed an elaborate advertising campaign in areas the film is showing, using television coverage as the major vehicle, supplemented by radio and newspapers.

"Boxoffice" magazine, which rates the success of all commercial films, rated "In Search of Noah's Ark" number seven nationally on Aug. 30.

Another gauge to determine the success of a film is the opening week grosses at the theater box offices. Hollywood's Daily Variety performs this survey and according to them, "In Search of Noah's Ark" opened number one in Denver, Portland and San Francisco while opening in the number two position in New York City, Seattle and New Orleans.

The "Boxoffice Barometer" showed that in New Orleans the film grossed 725 per cent. One hundred per cent is considered a normal gross.

Reviews of the film, however, weren't always so flattering. Newpaper film critic Dave Deneui said, "There Sun Classic pictures usually receive negative reviews, including from this corner, but it's not difficult to see that they're very popular with a large segment of viewers."

Why? Dr. Richard D. Mudd, a Saginaw, Mich., medical doctor who also holds a doctorate in history, said, "It was superb. I was amazed at the ingenuity in which scripture was presented. All of my friends got the same impression. Filmmakers are making a mistake by not having more of these kinds of things."

Those representing religious groups had the same opiinions. Steve Shakarian, a director for the worldwide Full Gospel Business Men's Fellowship International, says he was not only impressed with the film's production quality but "was glad to see an honest effort made to get to the facts concerning the biblical ark. Seeing the story presented as historical fact was exciting to me."

The movie received praise as wholesome family entertainment.

RETURN ENGAGEMENT — "Up With People," the international educational-entertainment program, is performing in Orange County this weekend. The 50 young entertainers were scheduled to do a benefit show at Mission Viejo High School this afternoon and are scheduled to perform at 7:30 p.m. today in the Laguna Hills Mall. The group, one of five Up With People casts currently on tour, will do its third show at 7:30 p.m. Saturday in the Laguna Hills Leisure World Clubhouse, but it is not open to the public. "The big show," according to the group's publicist, will be staged in the Mission Viejo High School gym at 8 p.m. Sunday. Tickets may be purhased at most banks in the Mission Viejo area and at the school today. They also will be available at the door prior to showtime. This will be the third straight year that the group has appeared in Orange County.

Music-Maker Welk Speaks His Mind To Young People: Work, Work, Work

By ELIZABETH DUFF
Knight News Wire

There's a tremor in his hands and a quiver in his voice. He coughs. And the lines in his face run deep.

But he still wears powder-blue suits and blue suede shoes and asks everyone he meets if they want a souvenir penknife. Engraved.

He's an old man with a skip and a polka — Lawrence Welk.

But Welk, 73, is demanding to be taken seriously now. In his latest book "My America, Your America" ($7.95 Prentice-Hall) he warns against sinister forces eroding the foundations of democracy and free enterprise. He also gives a solution! Abolish child-labor laws.

He urges action in the strongest terms. "At this very moment we're at the point of no return," he writes. We either climb on up to the top of the mountain — or we fall into the waiting hands of some power structure ready to take over our lives."

Privately, he confesses that this is a softened version. "I had a much more severe statement in the book, but my wife was afraid they'd kill me, so I had to take it out," he says, chuckling and shrugging his shoulders.

Turning serious, he explains that the leviathan power structure threatening us is already in place. It consists, he says, of big government and powerful unions that together are strangling businessmen like Welk and, through child-labor laws, are destroying America's youth.

LAWRENCE WELK

It's this last that Welk finds particularly nefarious. "Child-labor laws close the door to young people," he says growing visibly angry. "The young folks never learn to work before you learn by doing. . .and that's the reason if you ask young people today what they want today they say 'I don't know.' "

He says this "having that love for the younger generation that I do."

All this falls under Welk's broad philosophy, which is: "You can't 'give' life to anyone. It has to be earned." And Welk is his own best example. Until he was 21 he worked for his father, a German immigrant, on the family farm near Strasbury, N.D. A sickly child, he left school after the fourth grade.

He rarely vacations and to this day he works incessantly. Painfully shy and admittedly limited musically, Welk nonetheless accumulated a large fortune, rich friends, an elaborate dressing room and shrewd real estate investments.

Throughout he writes, "I can honestly and truly say I've never thought about money."

SOMETHING TO SPOUT ABOUT

Boats For Whale Watchers

In December, January and February, gray whales, pilot whales and dolphin cross the shoreline of Orange County.

They are headed for Baja California. There they loll around the lagoons for two months. Females give birth to their young. In early April, they begin the northward trip to the Bering Sea where they feast on huge quantities of plankton that lie north of Alaska.

During the eight months they are en route and while in southern waters, the sea animals eat almost nothing, being able to survive on stored body fat.

The gray whale can grow to 50 feet in length, but the average is around 45. Females are slightly larger than males. The adult weighs between 35 and 40 tons. During migration they travel at four knots for 15 to 20 hours a day. A single leg of the journey runs 6,000 to 7,000 miles.

Sunday at 1 p.m., the Youth Science Center of North Orange County will sponsor four whale-watcher boats out of Dana Point. Reservations for the excursions can be made by calling the YSC office. Members of the public are welcome.

Other excursions are scheduled for 1 p.m. Jan. 22 and 9 a.m. and 1 p.m. Feb. 26. Reservations may also be made by writing to Youth Science Center, 301 N. Pomona Ave., Fullerton.

The whale-watching vessels are 65-foot, diesel-powered craft equipped with electronic and safety equipment. An instructor will explain the ecology and natural history of the marine environment.

Youth Science Center was organized in 1962. It offers privately supported classes three semesters a year in science-related subjects for groups that range in age from four years to 17 years.

'Non-Traditional' Photo Show Set In GG

GARDEN GROVE – It's billed as a photography show. But don't go looking for Polaroid-type shots of Aunt Esther staring down a hog at the county fair.

At first glance, in fact, the uninitiated probably won't recognize a number of the pieces on display as photographic processes at all.

"It's non-traditional. It's not the black-and-white photography that most people are used to," said Judy Rosenfeld, curator of the Orange Coast College photography show which starts Saturday and runs through February at Mills House, the City of Garden Grove art gallery. The gallery is located at 12732 Main St.

"What you can do artistically with photographic processes has no limit other than the imagination, and that's the purpose of the show," she said.

"Some of the processes people will be seeing simply evolved by accident. Many are not used on the production or commercial levels. They are used on the art level. Yet many of the processes demonstrated are not new. They're just being used in new ways."

One of the show pieces is a pillow covered with material that has been photographically silkscreened. Other pieces employ a method called cyanotype.

More commonly known as "blue print," the process involves treating paper or cloth with light sensitive iron compounds which, when processed, yields a blue image. Some of the cyanotypes on cloth have been mounted, stuffed and stitched to give a three dimensional appearance.

Other processes used for pieces in the show include collage, solarization, chemical staining, inko dye, photogramming, negative printing, Kodalith and silver and non-silver printing.

Altogether, more than 50 pieces of work will be on display. Hours for the show are noon to 4 p.m. Thursday through Monday. Tours by appointment will be conducted for groups of 20 or less people on Tuesdays and Wednesdays.

Tallman Busy Flying In New 'Hughes' Film

Hollywood's keeping Frank Tallman and his stable of crack stunt pilots busier than ever these days. In contrast to most assignments, Tallman's working on his home grounds this week, winding up shooting for the TV flick "Howard: The Amazing Mr. Hughes" at Orange County Airport. The CBS film is due for network release early this spring.

A few days ago, oldtimers around the airport could have sworn they were back in the days of World War II for a few flashing moments as a P-38 roared over the area on pass after pass, working to get the scene letter perfect.

Old time residents can remember back when the last group of fighter planes stationed at the Santa Ana Army Air Base in 1945, near what is today the county airport, were the twin-tailed P-38s.

The antics of those pilots, particularly the wild mock dog fights with Marine fighters down the road at El Toro are legendary.

It was in a P-38 that a young Howard Hughes crashed just after the war, nearly doing himself in. The county airport sequences lead to that crash that will be filmed in a studio lot using a model plane and all the boom boom stuff that goes with it.

A great deal of the footage for "Hughes" was shot at old Flabob Field near Riverside where Hughes personally directed the flying scenes for his famed 1928 film classic "Hell's Angel's".

The choice of ole Flabob was a natural, studio execs told me. Seems the owners of the air field down through the years have succeeded in preserving it just as it was 49 years ago when Hughes made the film there.

Tallman wanted to fly in those recreated combat shots, but injured his bad leg in a freak fall just before filming. He watched on crutches as Art Scholl of Riverside, another of Tallman's famed stunt pilots, stepped in and performed in his place.

Also working in the film are local pilots Frank Pine, Bob Appleby and Tom Mooney. Mooney long ago fought with Pappy Boyington's Black Sheep squadron in the Solomons, in 1942-43.

The film will also show Hughes breaking the world's speed record over the long-gone beet fields of South Santa Ana in 1935. Hughes cracked up that time too, but walked away.

The final "Hughes" footage was still being shot here when Tallman hopped into an old B-25 (a left over from "Catch 22") Tuesday and headed for Seattle to begin shooting "The Other Side of the Mountain" for 20th Century Fox. The man's always on the go.

One last footnote on "Hughes." Observers who knew the billionaire way back when he was only a little old millionaire say Tommy Lee Jones, late of "Jackson County Jail," does a thoroughly professional job portraying Hughes right up to the end of his life. He also bears a striking resemblance to The Man.

Look for Hughes films to tumble out of Hollywood by the truckload after this one. CBS just got there first.

RANDOM RAMBLINGS: At the Beach Ball on the waterfront near the Newport Beach Pier, comedian Denny Johnston, a young up and comer who's appeared with Mike Douglas, Merv Griffin and other top talkies, has the gig this Monday night at 11. Owner Bill Wastek brings in top young comics every Monday and they pack the place.

Regular entertaimment fare has Tony Wayne Monday tnrougn Wednesday and late Sunday, Stan Orlow on guitar Thursday through Saturday and early Monday, and Bob Gulley, a real crowd pleaser, on guitar (oldies but goodies to acid rock) on the early shift Wednesday through Sunday. Wastek would like to get Gulley on the late shift, he's that good but the guy doesn't like to work past 9:30.

Your agent's nomination for the most politically aware musical group in Orange County – the Grand Jury Probes. Honest it's a jazz group. How "current" can you get? But discount those rumors that their theme song is "Jail House Blues."

George Pirker co-owner and manager of the old Marseille Inn on North Main in Orange, whose "Pappa" whipped up those fabulous menues, standing in as a temporary manager at the Le Mer in nearby Town and Country. Just thought all of George's old friends out there, and they're legion, might want to know where he is and drop by.

Diners Given The Bird...And They Like It

Basketball Now A TV Highlight

Super Bowl is gone.

Football fans will be completely lost this weekend, as there's nothing to look forward to except Monday night's Pro Bowl game up in Seattle's Kingdome. Then it's wait until July, or is it June now when the pro teams start up again?

TV logs for tonight, Saturday and Sunday reflect only the normal fare, with little of a blockbuster nature on the schedule for any of the networks.

Sonny and Cher do show up at 9 tonight on CBS for their regular weekly show and will make Friday their "home" night from now on.

The UCLA and USC basketball teams are up in Northern California, with telecasts scheduled Saturday, and the Lakers are on the tube tonight with another NBC game Sunday.

Otherwise the sports fans have a relatively quiet weekend ahead.

Good time for all to look for other worlds of entertainment, either elsewhere on this page, in Leisuretime Magazine, or other pages of The Register.

ABC Shoots At Reducing Reruns In The Springtime

By LARRY DISTEL
Register TV Editor

Don't look now but those new programs announced by ABC just might turn out to be something in the way of answers to those who complain because of the growing length of the annual rerun season.

The first announcement said the five shows listed so far would be added to the ABC schedule "sometime in March." Now, in clarification, the network said the three announced this week, two announced earlier and one yet to be announced will premiere about the time the rerun season normally would start.

Here is a case of a network already romping along in front of the pack in the ratings taking a strong step to consolidate its position. The move would seem to be the sort of thing to be expected from a network seeking to make a comeback, to recapture an old spot at the top.

Television's record over the years has been one that reflects a gradual reduction in the amount of first-run programming through a season. At one time there were 39 new episodes, with time off for a light-viewing summer of some repeats.

This gradually dropped to fewer first runs, and more reruns, until in recent years most of the prime-time series were made up of from 22 to 24 first-runs, varying numbers of reruns, and a mixture of reruns and new "light" entertainment for the summer.

ABC's announcement now seems to indicate about six months of first-runs on its regular prime-time programs, another three months of prime-time quality first-runs of new shows, and possibly the same mixture of reruns and "light" entertainment during the summer.

The difference could be that many summer reruns of prime-time shows might be first time reruns, and wouldn't resolve into reruns of reruns as has been so often the case.

There is another angle to all this that could work to the advantage of the network, at least in the field of relations with the viewers.

When the new shows come on in March, it will not be following "cancellation" of the series they will replace, the network says. It is entirely possible, says ABC, that the shows replaced and their replacements all might show up on regular prime-time schedules in the fall.

The point is that the Captain and Tennille, for instance, will be making way for one of the new entries, but will not be "cancelled" as such, but will merely be taking a rest for possible return to the schedule in the fall.

This could be a matter of semantics, but it also could prevent heavy complaints from fans of that particular show if it is clear the show well might be back on the schedule.

Incidentally, "Eight Is Enough" is the comedy drama that will move into the Captain and Tennille time slot at 8 p.m. Mondays, when all this takes effect.

And at 10 p.m. on Tuesdays it will be the new "Westside Medical" taking the place of "Family," another show which probably will be back on the fall schedule.

"Future Cop," the third show announced this week, hasn't been tagged for any particular time, but will be shown in six episodes this spring, running as specials.

"Feather and Father" and "Dog and Cat," previously announced by the network, are both involved in program shifting following the closeout of the Monday night football season, with no indication of what happens when in relation to the baseball season.

ABC has announced also one new comedy will be added to its spring schedule under the same new series replaces old series temporarily programming.

Obviously all this doesn't involved ABC's entire schedule. It would seem it's an experimental move to see what happens to brand new series added to the schedule in early spring, at a time when normality has called for almost all reruns.

The intricacies of the television business could get very involved in all this. Ratings seasons traditionally have run from the start of a new season in the fall through the close of the recognized first-run season, usually around March or April.

Now along comes a front-running network with new shows to run through those spring months. Ratings-wise, first-run shows usually have an edge on the reruns. Does this mean ABC again has set itself up for a surge that will consolidate its ratings position?

I have a feeling the other networks are apt to push for a ratings "year" ending with prime-time first runs, or else ABC is likely to wind up with the biggest entire season ratings lead anyone has chalked up yet.

Of course, it's always possible NBC and CBS might retaliate with some first-run product of their own in an attempt to match ABC, but we'll just have to wait and see about that.

John Soukeras has a nice way of giving his customers the bird at his Pirates Inn in Corona del Mar. But it's hitting him in the pocketbook.

When a patron's ready to pay up, a waitress winds up a mechanical bird in a cage and puts it on the customer's table where the little chirper sings away, then coughs up the tab.

Trouble is, John's customers are so enthralled with the contraptions they've been pirating them away and at $100 a pop — it's got to stop, says John. He's lost six of the gadgets already. Others have been broken.

"If I catch anyone taking, them, I'll put THEM in a cage and hand THEM the bill," said John presumably referring to possible slammer time for the light fingered. He's made one change. He's now buying Japanese-made birds for $35 per.

Music-Maker Speaks Mind

And yet money or the lack of it is at the heart of his solution for America, his "system."

By paying workers as little as possible Welk figures they will give their utmost for those little extras, like bonuses. He would eliminate all contracts.

Children would start working early, for little or no money, in jobs "as lowly as possible; having them get coffee or tea or sweep the floor or something," Welk explains. This would teach them the nature of work and discipline.

Employers would become father-figures, treating their employes like children. They would be guided by God's laws, and if they failed to carry out a "holy" directive adequately, then and only then, would unions or the state interfere.

This is the system Welk uses as much as possible, with his own employes.

He points proudly to the Semonski Sisters as exampls of how the system works for children. The parents, ambitious for their six daughters, uprooted them from Florida and moved them to California on the off chance that Welk could use them. Welk moved them into a trailer park that he operates in Escondido Calif., gave the older girls jobs as waitresses and cashiers, and put them through a rigorous training program on the off-chance that they might be useful.

"We try to do something a little extra like that with all our people," he explains.

After a couple of years and several misfires the Semonskis finally got their act together. But it was a near thing, and at no time did Welk promise them a job. They wouldn't have worked as hard if he had, he explains.

Then there's the case of Barney Liddell — to Welk a story of how his system acts as incentive. Liddell, a 24-year orchestra veteran who is "like a kid brother" to Welk, was gaining weight. Welk told him to lose some. He didn't. So Welk fired him.

AID TO ECONOMY

WASHINGTON (AP) — Washington National Airport contributes $348 million a year to the economy of the nation's capital area, according to the Air Transport Assn.

It says, "The direct economic impact of payrolls and expenditures generated by the airport comes to $174 million. Following the standard economic rule that each dollar spent creates another dollar in the economy, the total impact of the airport is $348 million."

Royal Shakespeare Troupe Masterful

By BERNIE WEINER

The past week five members of the Royal Shakespeare Company of Great Britain were in residency at the University of California at Irvine. They gave six master classes and staged two different evening productions at the campus theater.

This reviewer was present for the first performance: "Lovers and Madmen: A Shakespearean Frenzy." In it, under the theme presented in the title, a group of scenes were masterfully done. We saw Shakespearean madness in scenes from "Macbeth," and "Hamlet." There were also King Lear's wandering, Richar II's delusions, Sir Topas' dilemma in "Twelfth Night." On the theme of love there were scenes from "As You Like It," "Love's Labours Lost," "Antony and Cleopatra," "Midsummer Night's Dream," and "Taming of the Shrew."

The company, consisting of Sheila Allen, Richard Pasco, Patrick Stewart, Juliet Aykroyd, and Ben Kingley, has been seen in the U.S. in such productions as "The Suffragettes," "The Prince and The Pauper," "A Walk With Destiny," and "Room At The Top."

They are all master craftsmen and seeing them work is a wonderful theatrical experience. The members of the group are easily in terms of training, body control, and all-around acting one of the best ensembles I have seen in a very long time.

Their production of "Lovers and Madmen" added a unique dimension to Shakespeare that is not possible in a regular performance of one of his plays. By presenting the scenes as separate units they were not rushed with the total concept of the play. Instead by doing each sequence as an independent entity the group was able to develop the total theme of each scene and bring out every innuendo of Shakespeare's fine writing. It was a really fantastic theatrical experience.

Their second production was called "Groupings and Gropings." It was an anthology of poetry, prose, and songs from John Donne to Bob Dylan.

During the balance of this month and for part of February the Five will be working andperforming at other Universities of California: Jan. 13-15 at Riverside, Feb. 1-5 at Los Angeles, and Feb. 15 -19 at Long Beach. If you missed the Irvine performance you can still catch their productions at the other universities.

NEW "DO" – Ellen Andrews (Jodie Foster) in her daughter's body, gets it a new hairdo in this scene from Walt Disney Production's farout farce, "Freaky Friday." The story of a 13 year old girl who wish to trade places with her mother comes true is an upcoming release, in color from Disney. Co-stars are Barbara Harris and John Astin.

ON BROADWAY

Stoppard's Latest Efforts Poor

By WILLIAM GLOVER
AP Drama Critic

NEW YORK (AP) – Tom Stoppard, winner of several Broadway awards for witty plays, should get a booby prize for his latest effusions.

"Dirty Linen" and "New-Found-Land" are the public aliases of his inane, cheap and, worst of all, tiresome trifles unveiled Tuesday night at the Golden Theater. Considerable success was their previous reward in London, where sniggering farce is a popular commodity.

"Dirty Linen" concerns a House of Commons committee supposedly investigating sexual hanky-panky among the membership when not engaged in parliamentary debates.

The jest centers upon the presence, as the committee's secretary, of a curvy lass who has been out on candlelit dates with just about everyone in Whitehall, including at least one raunchy from breakneck-speed jabber for the sandwiched-in sketch, "New-Found-Land.'

Taking part in it are an old gaffer, deaf but determined to tell how he once won five pounds from Lloyd George, and a younger Home Office minion who is trying to clear up some citizenship applications.

One of the requests is from an American, which opens the way for the skit's raison d'etre, a long, chaotic and occasionally humorous journey through U.S. geography and history.

That piece of ham delivered, female M.P.

The affair drifts along in a swirl of those multi-lingual quips that are a Stoppard banality by now: Puns, double-entendres and a gradual shedding of outer and nether garments by the wench whose name is Maddie Gotobed. A lot of the English gags thud like a suet pudding here.

The involved performers in the charade get a breather the other soggy slice of "Dirty Linen" is quickly slapped on to end the dubious entertainment.

The works were reasonably enough directed by Ed Berman. According to a Stoppard note, Berman's British naturalization triggered the entire undertaking.

Among the performers, Remak Ramsay, Francis Bethencourt and Merwin Goldsmith are the most egregious lawmakers; Cecilia Hart, the nubile cupcake; and Humphrey Davis, the inner play's breathless harangue.

Lawrence King and Michael H. Yeargan have supervised the original London design by Gabriella Falk that matches the scruffy, smudged script to a fare-thee-well. Which is what the entire production also deserves.

A New Romance For Old In Brenda Vaccaro's Life

By SHIRLEY EDER
Knight News Wire

About a month ago Brenda Vaccaro said goodby to me in the lobby of the Hilton Hotel in Tehran and said that she and her traveling companion and friend, Kenny Solms, were leaving for Israel. Having never been there before, she was looking forward to the trip. "We might even spend some time in a kibbutz," she said.

I don't know if she met the new man in her life in the kibbutz, but for sure she met and fell in love with a young Israeli named Raphael Shaul. Shaul owns discotheques in Israel.

Brenda, back in Hollywood, currently is working in the movie, "Capricorn One." She's not missing Shaul because he has come over from Israel to spend some time with her.

Casting notes: Has anyone ever said to you, "Oh God, you look like John Denver?" Well, if it's happened and you are a fella, it just might pay off for you.

Producer Jerry Weintraub and director Carl Reiner are, or were, looking for a Denver look-alike to play a scene in the Denver-George Burns movie "Oh God." They very well may have their man by now, since the scene is supposed to be shot in Hollywood next week. But if you do look like Denver and want to take a chance that no one has been found yet, send your photo to Warner Brothers Casting Dept., 4000 Warner Blvd., Burbank, Calif.

SHIRLEBRITIES: Warren Beatty is dating an angel – not his own, however. She's one of "Charlie's Angels," Kate Jackson. If Beatty puts his mind to it, Jackson could very well become "Warren's Angel."

It may not be classy but for sure it's flashy. Ken Harper, producer of "The Wiz," has a neon sign of the show's logo flashing on and off in his Manhattan apartment. After the show's 1,000th performance on Broadway this spring, producer Harper plans to give a party for 1,000 guests that will cost a whole lot more than $1,000.

The O'Jays have formed their own record company called SOC. Translated, SOC means Sound of Cleveland. The company will be headquartered in Cleveland.

Talking about records: Charo has signed a contract to record for Salsoul Records. In English, Charo?!?! Salsoul Records headquarters in Philadelphia. Okay, Motown, you may be sorry you left Detroit for Hollywood.

FLICK FLACK: There should be an announcement soon about a $10 million crime movie titled "Opium." It will begin shooting in March or April and will be on location in Bangkok, Tokyo, Macao and Washington, D.C. Charles Bronson and Toshiro Mifune are set for the leads. It is expected that production costs on "Opium" will be recouped in the Orient alone via preproduction release deals. All these deals have been consummated on the strength of Mifune's name. Now that is what's called superstar power. Bronson's name doesn't hurt either.

You won't be surprised (because I'm telling you about it) if President Ford plays golf with Dinah Shore on television. Dinah's working on that project right this minute.

Ed McMahon is delighted that Columbia has changed the opening date of his movie (also Jane Fonda's and George Segal's), "Fun with Dick and Jane," from January to Feb. 9. Ed figures his drinking buddies will be able to see it clearly by then.

Wild Dogs Theme Of Terror Film Going Into Production

By MARY GANZ
Associated Press Writer

BODEGA BAY, Calif. (AP) – This tiny coastal community, invaded by critters once before when Alfred Hitchcock filmed "The Birds," soon will be menaced by a new cinematic terror – wild dogs.

Weintraub-Heller Productions, Inc., will begin filming in February with a crew of actors, technicians and mutts.

The movie will be called "The Pack" (not "Jowls," as someone suggested). Co-producer Paul Heller said Bodega Bay's craggy Pacific Ocean coastline will be used to portray a New England resort island off-season.

Heller said the plot centers on a band of bowsers who, left behind when their tourist-owners abandoned the island for the winter, prey on livestock and eventually threaten the villagers.

"It's probably going to be the most complex animal stunt picture ever undertaken," said Heller in an interview from his Los Angeles office.

He said trainers have been at work rehearsing the 18 dogs and their doubles since July.

"One of the biggest problems in training is to get a pack of dogs that will work together and be compatible," Heller said. "It's like putting 18 actors together without fighting."

He said about half the dogs are mongrels and half are breeds, but he said all will be made up to look like mutts.

Not all the human parts for the $2 million movie have been cast yet, but Heller said the lead will be Joe Don Baker of "Walking Tall."

Heller said it is a movie with a message.

"As you know, people pollute with animals," he said. "They go off and leave them. They pick up a couple of dogs from the pound or something so they can play with their kids for the summer, then they leave them.

"This is about that group of people and the dogs that have become threatening."

Liz Brady, administrator of California's Motion Picture Development Council, said the movie makes an important statement: "Don't litter the countryside," she said, "whether it's with cans, bottles or dogs."

She said the problem of "wild" dogs attacking sheep and other livestock is acute near California's state and national parks, where tourists take their pets on vacation and lose or abandon them.

The movie is based on a book by Dave Fisher and screenplay by Robert Clouse, who also directs.

"With 'Jaws' the monster was unknown," he said. "Here you're dealing with an enemy in a sense who is very close to man."

He said Humane Society representatives would supervise the filming to make sure man's best friend doesn't get hurt crashing through windows and doing other fearsome stunts.

Inner-Tubing In Snow Can Break Backs

LOS ANGELES AP – There's more than one way to break your bones on the ski slopes – lots of people end up with crushed vertebrae after inner-tubing, an orthopedic surgeon said Monday.

The vertebrae injury is "fairly unique to the inner-tuber," said Dr. Michael D. Roback, adding the injury is "frequently is seen in very young children using large inner tubes" to zoom down mountainsides.

"As the inner tube accelerates, it starts to bounce higher and higher until the child slips down the center hole. The child strikes the ground with his back and buttocks," the doctor said. "The result is a severely painful spine fracture which requires bed rest for a prolonged period of time."

He said in one recent case at the Southern California ski resort of Big Bear, an 18-month-old girl and her 36-year-old mother rode an inner tube together. The child sustained a broken thigh bone and the mother a fractured tailbone.

MGM Films To Investigate Theories On Life After Death

"Life After Death," one of the most provocative and controversial motion picture projects in recent years, will be written and produced by Howard B. Kreitsek as a major Metro-Goldwin-Mayer production.

The unique screen drama will be concerned with the phenomona of personal experiences related by those who have been declared clinically dead and have returned to life.

Working with Kreitsek as professional consultants are Dr. Karlis Osis, internationally-known psychologist and director of the American Society for Psychical Research; Dr. Charles A. Garfield, of the Cancer Research Institute, University of California College of Medicine; and other eminent experts in the field.

Kreitsek, a veteran screenwriter and producer became interested in the life-after-death phenomenon six months ago and has since travelled 35,000 miles to consult with experts in the field as well as interviewing dozens of people who have related personal experiences of returning from death to life.

Medieval-Renaissance Group To Play At UCI

"Music for a While," a New York-based medieval and Renaissance chamber music ensemble, will perform at UC Irvine Tuesday, January 18.

The concert, sponsored by the UCI Committee for Arts, will be held at 8 p.m. in the UCI Fine Arts Village Concert Hall.

Program selections will focus on Franco-Flemish music of the 15th and 16th Centuries featuring works by such composers as Guillermus Dufay, Heinrich Isaak and Josquin des Pres.

"Music for a While," established in 1970, has rapidly become popular with a growing audience of medieval and Renaissance chamber music enthusiasts. The five members of the group are artists in residence at Sarah Lawrence College where they participate in a graduate program in early music.

College Band Concert Set

John Philip Sousa's "Sabre and Spurs," the march of the United States Army's Cavalry, will stir things up – musically – tonight when the Fullerton College Music Department presents the Concert Band in the Campus Theatre.

Under the baton of Larry Lowder, the 8 p.m. public concert will feature saxophone soloist Randy Hoover, pianist Allison Graham, the Saxophone Ensemble and the Trombone Quartet.

Among 14-year-old boys in 1890, 23 were reported to be married, one divorced and none widowed, according to the U.S. Census Bureau.

French Actor Signs Pact

French stage and motion picture star Francis Huster has been signed by Claude Lelouch to co-star in "Another Man, Another Woman," a United Artists release starring James Caan and Genevieve Bujold.

Huster is currently co-starred in Lelouch's international box office smash, "If You Had To Do It All Over Again," starring Catherine Deneuve and Anouk Aimee, and plays Jeanne Moreau's young lover in "Lumiere," the movie directed by the French actress.

United Artists is a Transamerica Company.

DIAMOND ANNIVERSARY – Members of the Placentia Round Table observed the 75th anniversary of the organization's founding during its January activities. The club was founded on January 15, 1902, to cultivate literary interests. Jan. 9-16 was named 'Round Table Week', by the Placentia City Council this year to mark the occasion. Mrs. Leon Gillilan, a past president and 50-year member, examines a historical record of the organization with two newer members, Mrs. Dale Kingseed, left, and Mrs. Charles Barnes. Round Table became a member of the California Federation of Women's Clubs in 1913. A Junior Round Table was organized in 1952. The two groups perform social, cultural services for women in the Placentia area.

SLIM GOURMET

Thrifty Meal-Size Soup Is A 'Scot' With Calories

BY BARBARA GIBBONS

Rich with flavor, thick with barley and vegetables, our Slim Gourmet "Scotch Broth" is a meal in a bowl! Not only hearty but economical (because it recycles the meaty bones from leftover lamb or any other meat.) Must be one reason the Scots got their reputation for thriftiness!

Generally, the word "broth," implies a thin soup, but the traditional Scotch Broth is so thick and chunky it's more like stew than soup. However, our version is thin about calories.

That's because we make it a day ahead so that every greasy glob of fat can rise to the surface and be skimmed away.

Scotch Broth is traditionally made with barley, a tasty, slow-cooking grain that's less fattening, more filling and fiber-rich than rice or noodles. After 45 minutes of gentle simmering, barley cooks up soft and plump, and helps to thicken the soup.

Lamb is also traditional, but you can make this soup with the meaty bones from a leftover roast beef, veal or fresh ham roast ... even a meaty turkey frame; the meatier the better. (The actual calorie count depends, of course, on how much meat goes into your soup. Our counts are estimates only.)

'SCOTCH BROTH'

2 quarts water
2 teaspoons salt
optional: One-half teaspoon MSG
3 tablespoons medium pearl barley
2 onions, peeled and quartered
3 ribs of celery with leaves, cut in 1 and one-quarter-inch lengths
4 carrots, sliced
3 or 4 sprigs of fresh parsley, chopped

A day ahead put the meaty lamb bones in a stockpot or pressure cooker. Add water, salt and MSG. Cover and simmer 1 and one-half hours (just 30 minutes in a pressure cooker) until meat falls easily from the bone.

Allow to cool, then reserve meat and discard bones. Refrigerate overnight.

Lift hardened fat from the surface of the soup and discard.

Reheat. Add barley and vegetables, then simmer until barley is soft, about 45 minutes. Each meal-size servirg (about one cup meat and vegetables plus one cup fat-skimmed broth) under 200 calories.

'BARLEYSTRONE'

meaty turkey frame or meaty bones from leftover veal roast

Can Plants Have A Good Life In Plastic Pots?

DEAR MOTHER EARTH

By LYNN AND JOEL RAPP

Dear Mother Earth: Most of my plants are in plastic pots. They seem to be doing well, but I've heard that plastic isn't good for them? Should I transplant them into clay pots? – M.S., Denver, Colo.

Dear M.S.: Plants are usually sold in plastic pots because they are lightweight, unbreakable and inexpensive to ship. Plants need less water in plastic pots and can live for a long time if you are careful about not overwatering. There are some very attractive plastic pots on the market. We particularly like the clear, lucite-like pots because you can see the roots growing.

Clay pots have certain advantages. They are heavier and less likely to tip over, and because of the porosity they dry out more quickly if you are heavy-handed with your water. And they are natural.

By using the double-potting we can use the clay pots and virtually eliminate their frequent watering demands.

The clay pot is set within another, the bottom of which is lined with broken clay pots or gravel, and the space between the pots is stuffed with sphagnum moss. Water is then poured onto the moss rather than into the inner pot, and it seeps through the clay walls to moisten the soil within.

One advantage of double potting is that the moisture transfer through the clay pot walls is not only constant but it is gradual as well. The soil can thus be readily maintained on the dry side; that is, with barely enough moisture to maintain the plant without encouraging fast growth. Because of this slow but even supply of moisture, double-potted plants live beautifully for years indoors. Happy growing!

SEXIST DINING?

Ambrosia, Chez Cary Stick To Old Custom

LOS ANGELES (AP) – The old restaurant custom is fading, but not fast enough for those women who want to know if chateaubriand is going to break their escort.

"It's just a matter of haute cuisine and savoir faire, not women's lib," says Bernard Jacoupy, food and beverage director at one posh downtown restaurant.

A few Southern California restaurants still give women a menu without the prices listed. It's an old European custom and still is prevalent in Paris.

It happened in Palm Springs and the lady was not amused. She was, in fact, offended.

"I immediately called the waiter over, pointed to my husband and loudly complained that here I was, taking my lover out for dinner, and they had given him the menu with prices," said the woman, who asked for anonymity.

"My husband was horrified, but the waiter rather quickly brought me another menu. I know it's supposed to be high class, but I guess I'm just not an elegant lady."

Besides the Palm Springs restuarant, the custom is practiced at Chez Cary in Orange, the Ambrosia in Newport Beach and Bernard's in downtown Los Angeles.

The purpose, the managers say, is not to "inconvenience" the ladies with such matters as prices. It might also encourage them to order a more expensive dish if they don't know the price.

But Bernard's is often visited by women executives and attorneys and the practice is not appreciated, they say.

Jacoupy said "some women lawyers" who dine there get menus with prices – and any men with them get menus without prices.

At Chez Cary, manager Mary Louise Frazier said, "We do not trouble our ladies with prices. We try to pamper our ladies."

Geril Muller, owner of the Ambrosia, said, "It is very rude to be a guest and have prices in front of you. You never show a lady the price of what she orders. A lady is a lady and should not be involved in prices."

But what if the lady objects?

"What is there to be offended about?" Muller asked. "If the lady feels offended or discriminated against, tough luck. She can go elsewhere."

Muller added, "You can put down that we are most stubborn about this issue."

The Women's Lawyers Association of Los Angeles also admits to being stubborn about the issue.

Lelia Honig Jabin, president, and Carol E. Schatz, recording secretary, said, "We find the practice offensive and hope those involved would think again about the intelligence of the custom."

Comedy Fare At Med Building

ORANGE – Israel Cafe offers its "Comedy Cabaret" program Saturday evening in the banquet hall of the Orange County Medical Association Building at 300 S. Flower.

A periodic presentation of Israel Academy, Israel Cafe is a nightclub offering Jewish program and cuisine to the total community. Now in its fifth year, Israel Cafe has been called "the only night club in the world whose Saturday night program starts with Havdalah". (Havdalah is a brief but colorful religious ceremony, utilizing wine, mixed spices and a multi-wicked candle, to bid farewell to the Sabbath.)

Included on the program are entertainment by Will Teague, former member of the Christy Minstrels, the magical violin of Sol Sloan and dancing to the music of the Melody Makers.

Student Musicians Needed

COSTA MESA – A new musical entity will tune up for the first time at Orange Coast College this spring.

The Opera Theatre Orchestra, which is recruiting instrumentalists interested in pit orchestra experience and training, will meet Wednesdays from 4-7 p.m. in Fine Arts Hall 119. Students interested in joining the orchestra should enroll in Music 138AD.

Spring classes begin Feb. 7.

During the course of the semester the Opera Theatre Orchestra will perform the Brahm's "Requiem," and Mozart's "Cosi Fan Tutte,"

Spring registration runs Jan. 4 through Feb. 1 by appointment. Open registration, on a drop-in basis, will be held Feb. 2-10. Registration appointments may be secured in OCC's Admissions and Records Office.

OCC courses are tuition-free to persons who have lived in California for at least one year. Students pay only a $5 health services fee at the time of registration.

CONCERTIZING – Coloratura Jan Schmidt of Orange, right, and Carol Stewart, a member of the piano faculty at the Univ. of Southern California, will appear in concert Sunday at Bowers Museum, 2002 N. Main, Santa Ana. Dr. Stewart and Mrs. Schmidt will perform virtuoso works for voice and piano by such varied composers as Leonard Bernstein, Frederic Chopin, Charles Ives and Joaquin Rodrigo. There is no charge for the 3 p.m. concert.

nedos Beaugency Bouquetiere, two tender beef filets surrounded by fresh vegetables plus a broiled tomato, noisette of potatoes and fresh broccoli. Our delicious wine was a red Chateau des Captains Fleurie. Our salad served in the French manner after the main entree) was a Boston bibb lettuce vinaigrette, decorous with a cherry tomato and croutons.

The Marriott is a pleasant place for an escape week-end. You may begin on Friday with dinner in the King's Wharf where you will enjoy a marvelous cup of Red Snapper soup and selections from a bountiful salad bar. The main entrees include live Maine lobster, choice steaks, prime rib, king crab and several seafood dishes. In the adjacent Main Brace Lounge there is Disco for your dancing pleasure.

Next morning you may enjoy breakfast in your luxurious room or on the Capriccio Terrace. I decided to have mine in my room with its spectacular view of the lush green golf course below, horizoned by the blue waters of the Pacific Ocean. Everything was served beautifully, quick and hot by a lovely California miss, tanned with long blond sunstreaked hair and dressed in white pants and a nautical striped shirt.

The rest of the weekend can be enjoyed swimming and lazing in the hydro-massage pools plus other fun activities such as golf, tennis, shopping at Fashion Island (a beautiful new Bullock's Wilshire will open soon). Saturday night enjoy dinner and piano bar entertainment featuring Wally Ruth in the Capriccio Cafe with International menu of crepes, quiche Lorraine and other specialty dishes. Sunday morning was topped off by a Champagne brunch. Checkout time is 5 p.m. on Sunday. The cost for all is $59.50 per person (double occupancy) plus tax and tips. There is also a delightful Tennis Weekend. Call them. Incidentally the fine chef at the Marriott who had charge of the wine dinner was Rolf Jung.

You may dance to the nostalgic sounds of the big bands every Tuesday night in the HYATT HOUSE Showplace Disco lounge in Anaheim across from Disneyland.

Benny Goodman, Glen Miller, Jimmy and Tommy Dorsey . . . will live again in marvelous quadrophonic sound. The disco music of today will be featured every Wednesday through Monday with the talented John Easton Stuart Show every Thursday, Friday and Saturday evenings. As an added attraction on Friday and Saturday nights, The Gong Show will offer outstanding amateur talent. Why not go early for dinner in Daisy's Market, and later move across to the lounge?

We goofed last week . . . . Two of my write ups were accidently mingled in our back shop. So I will try again . . . .

Many restaurants are featuring specials this month. THE KETTLE RESTAURANT in Anaheim on Lincoln just west of Euclid is offering steak dinners at $3.95. The Tuesday night specialty is the popular Delmonico while Wednesday night you will enjoy the 8-ounce petite filet mignon. Both dinners include soup and salad, a relish dish, choice of potato, hot sourdough bread, coffee, tea or milk.

The SAN FRANCISCAN RESTAURANT in Newport Beach on Westcliff Drive is again featuring prime rib for $6.95 (a child's plate is $2.95). Dinner begins with soup or salad. The entree is accompanied by cheese stuffed baked potato, vegetable du jour, hot San Franciscan bread, cheese pie, ice cream or chocolate mousse. This dinner is served Sunday through Thursday from 5 until 10 p.m., Friday and Saturday from 5 until 7:30 (closed Monday). Entertainment-dancing is featured nightly in the lounge with The Fellowship playing from 8:30 until 1:30. Sunday night is Dixieland at it's best with Tommy Mullinix and his Dixie Halo's from 7:30 until 11:30 p.m. Call for reservations.

Roberta Linn and her show will be appearing this Sunday night at MR. MIKE'S in Santa Ana on Edinger and the Newport Freeway. This is a beautiful restaurant, offering delicious prime rib, steaks, lamb, seafood and excellent entertainment every night featuring The Bill McClure Show Tuesday through Saturday. Monday night is Danny Diaz night while Sunday is guest night featuring name entertainers. Be sure to make reservations.

You won't believe the crowds that pack into KENNY & STU'S FRENCH QUARTER nightly to see and dance to the music of Chris Wade and his group. I was there last Thursday night and almost couldn't find a seat. Chris is a charmer and a talented young man from Scotland who truly knows how to please his audiences. Chris sings and plays several instruments and is backed by a fine trio. Eric Jones is on guitar, Bob Dawson is on drums and Lloyd Nolan is at the organ. THE FRENCH QUARTER is in Anaheim at Knott and Ball. Stop and give them a try – it's a great spot for the "now" of today.

Handsome, talented Frank Sydell and Company are appearing Tuesday through Saturday in the lounge of the impressive LAKESIDE RESTAURANT in Newport Beach on MacArthur across from Orange County Airport.

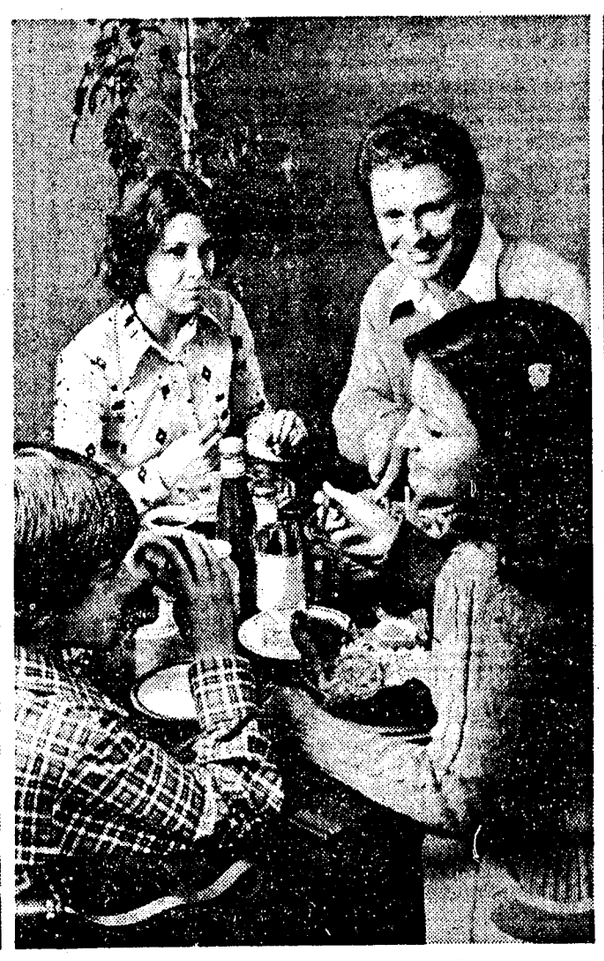

A great spot for dinner and dancing, Lakeside has 86 entrees on the menu for your selection that include veal, beef, fowl, lamb, pork, seafood . . . . Two favorite dishes of mine are the New York pepper steak prepared with cracked pepper, bacon bits, scallions and sauce Madeira and the veal sweetbreads, Mascotte prepared with mushrooms, hearts of artichoke, green onions and sauce Espagnole. There are 20 hot and 20 cold appetizers too. And, while you dine, you will enjoy the window view of a beautiful lake with ducks, geese . . . Call for reservations

I can hardly wait for HOULIHAN'S OLD PLACE to open on the 20th of January. What a place this is going to be! The location is Von Karman near Campus Drive. It promises to be a restaurant extraordinaire featuring everything on the menu from escargot to ice cream sodas. Open seven days a week, it will offer lunch, dinners, cocktails, Sunday brunch. Booking Partnership For Touring Artists

WASHINGTON (AP) – The Kennedy Center for the Performing Arts and the Metropolitan Opera has announced an agreement to book U.S. tours by renowned performing companies from abroad.

The first company to appear will be the Stuttgart Ballet. It will perform at the Kennedy Center, May 24-June 12; the Metropolitan Opera House, June 14-July 2; Robin Hood Dell in Philadelphia, July 5-7; Garden State Arts Center, New Jersey, July 8-10; Airie Crown Theater, Chicago, week of July 11.

Announcement of the new partnership was made at a joint news conference by Roger L. Stevens and Martin Feinstein, chairman and executive director of the Kennedy Center, and Anthony A. Bliss, executive director of the Metropolitan Opera.

The Kennedy Center has in the past initiated engagements for such companies as Berlin Opera, La Scala, and Paris Opera, while the Bolshoi and other operas were booked jointly with S. Hurok. Metropolitan productions were formerly booked by the Hurok organization, but now are handled independently.

Ron McLeod
General Manager Says:
I was born and raised in the car business. I've always detested the systems that some dealerships have used in the past. I believe you have the right to know all the facts before being obligated to a contract. The reputation of the auto sales people is due for a change...that "change" has been made here.
NO PREPARATION CHARGES ARE EVER ADDED TO OUR PRICES

N.Y. NEWS SAYS

'Contract' Out On Kissinger

NEW YORK (AP) – A clique of Israeli right wingers has put out a $150,000 contract on the life of outgoing Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger, the New York Daily News reported Thursday.

"The money to hire one or more foreign hit men was reportedly paid in advance," the newspaper said in its Friday edition, crediting its information to anonymous high State Department officials.

But State Department spokesman Robert Funseth said "we have never been informed of any threats involving Israeli political parties, or any group within an Israel political party, including specifically the Likud.

In Israel, a spokesman for the Likud, a right wing opposition party, branded the report as "utter nonsense."

The News article quoted an unnamed Kissinger aide as saying the $150,000 "was provided by a small, radical splinter faction within Israel's Likud opposition bloc, which opposed the Labor government's surrender of captured Arab territory in the interim agreements with Egypt and Syria.

"The motive was said to be revenge against Kissinger for allegedly selling out Israel during his Mideast shuttle diplomacy ..." the report said.

Likud officials speculated that the report was aimed at smearing the opposition party in the midst of the present election campaign.

Avi Pazner, a spokesman for the Israeli embassy, said the Daily News report was the first time he had heard of any such alleged threat. Other Israeli officials expressed skepticism about the account.

President Ford has asked congressional leaders to approve continued Secret Service protection to Kissinger after he leaves office Jan. 20.

Panel Okays Vance

WASHINGTON (AP) – The Senate Foreign Relations Committee today endorsed Cyrus R. Vance to succeed Henry A. Kissinger as secretary of state.

The vote to recommend Senate confirmation of the Vance appointment was unanimous.

Vance and other Cabinet choices of President-elect Carter will be confirmed officially by the Senate shortly after Carter becomes president on Jan. 20.

The committee endorsement of Vance, a defense and foreign policy adviser to Democratic presidents since the administration of John F. Kennedy, was given without debate or discussion. He was the third of Carter's 11 Cabinet choices to receive committee approval. Others endorsed by Senate panels are Harold Brown as secretary of defense and Bob Bergland to TEMPORARY STORAGE – It's a pile of snow and it's inside William Whitney's basement in North Adams, Mass. Whitney didn't know what to do with all the snow from his parking area out back, so he opened the hatchway to his basement and pushed the snow inside, near the furnace. He says it will melt and go down the drain. Then he'll have room for more.

Anthony Eden Dies In Sleep

ALVEDISTON, England (AP) – Former Prime Minister Anthony Eden died peacefully in his sleep this morning at his country home in southern England after a long illness, his doctor announced. He was 79.

Eden, who as Britain's foreign minister in the 1930s advocated a strong stand against Fascist dictators but failed as prime minister in the abortive Suez invasion of 1956, was flown home from Florida last weekend when it became apparent that death was near. He had been staying at the home of senior American diplomat W. Averell Harriman.

The British government said in an official statement after Eden's death: "We mourn the passing of a distinguished parliamentarian and a statesman of exceptional experience and determination."

Eden's doctor said he had been suffering from progressive liver failure. One London newspaper reported he had had cancer of the lung and bone for a year and it had spread to the liver.

The bulletin announcing his death was signed by Dr. Richard Bayliss and Dr. J. C. Brown, who had been attending Eden since his return to Britain from Florida on Sunday.

In a statement issued from No. 10 Downing St., official residence of Prime Minister James Callaghan, the government said it "has heard with deep regret of the death of Lord Avon. He spent all his active life in the service of his country."

"To those of us who grew up in the '30s, Anthony Eden will always be remembered as a staunch opponent of fascism and the Fascist dictators. He enhanced that reputation by his resignation from the government in 1938 as a stand against appeasement."

"He knew at firsthand the horrors of war from his service in 1914 to 1918 and it was this which made him a strong supporter of the League of Nations when he served as minister of League of Nations affairs, as well as being the youngest foreign secretary of this century."

Queen Elizabeth II, vacationing at her country home at Sandringham, sent a message of sympathy to Eden's widow which read:

"I am much distressed to learn of the death of Lord Avon. As a gallant soldier in the first World War and as a statesman in the second and in many years of peace he gave outstanding service to his country. He will be remembered in history above all as an outstanding diplomat

ACCEPTS INVITATION

Bonn Leader To Meet Carter

BONN, West Germany (AP) – Chancellor Helmut Schmidt has accepted an invitation from President-elect Carter to meet with him in Washington, a spokesman for Schmidt said today.

Carter extended the invitation Thursday in a telephone call to Schmidt, one of several calls to world leaders by the president-elect. The date for the meeting was left open, the spokesman said.

Carter gave similar invitations to British Prime Minister James Callaghan and Japanese Prime Minister Takeo Fukuda. Callaghan is scheduled to meet with Carter in Washington next month, and government sources in Tokyo said Fukuda would probably go to the United States in March.

In Paris, however, a spokesman for President Valery Giscard d'Estaing said a visit to Washington by the French president was not discussed when he and Carter talked Thursday.

"This possibility was not foreseen," the spokesman said. "On the other hand, it was agreed that each time circumstances justified it, the president of the republic and President Carter would call directly by telephone."

Giscard was in Washington in 1976 for a bicentennial year visit and protocol would call for his next meeting with a U.S. president to be held in France.

The French president reported two weeks ago that Carter had agreed to come to Europe in the spring for the third economic summit meeting of the United States, Britain, France, West Germany, Japan and Italy. Giscard d'Estaing said the meeting would probably be held in April in Britain.

3 Found Slain, Buried In Snow At Army Camp

FT. LEONARD WOOD, Mo. (AP) – Two young men and a young woman were found shot to death and buried in snow in a remote part of this military camp Thursday. The FBI said an Arkansas Army sergeant had been arrested in the case.

Victims were identified as Anthony Lee Bates, 18, Wesley Hawkins, 18, and Linda Needham, 16, all of Plato, Mo.

Bill Williams, agent in charge of the Kansas City FBI office, said the unidentified sergeant was taken into custody early Thursday evening.

The bodies were discovered after a tip from the sheriff's office at Waynesville. The Pulaski County Sheriff's Department said it was called after a motorist picked up Juanita Deckard, 19, of nearby Lynchburg, who staggered out of the woods about 3 p.m.

The FBI said Miss Deckard, who had been shot twice, was the only survivor of an incident in which the four young people, apparently out on a double-date Wednesday night, were forced into a military vehicle driven by a man.

Earlier reports said the two couples were walking at the time, but Williams said later information indicated they were in a car when they were stopped.

Sometime after midnight the four were driven to the south part of the base and shot. Williams said all four were buried in snow.

Miss Deckard survived by pretending to be unconscious

Top Anthony Campaign Donor Aiding In Probe

By JOE CORDERO and JOHN O'DELL
Register Staff Writers

Robert G. LanFranco, whose $10,000 donation was the largest single contribution to Supervisor Philip Anthony's 1976 campaign, reportedly will cooperate with a district attorney's office investigation into the financing of the campaign.

LanFranco, a Costa Mesa building supply firm owner, confirmed Thursday he has contacted an attorney in connection with the probe but would not say whether he was in touch with a private attorney or the district attorney's office.

The probe is aimed at the part former district attorney's office informant Gene Conrad played in funneling funds into the Anthony campaign. Conrad has characterized himself as one of the campaign's financial angels.

Under investigation is whether Conrad pumped money into the campaign in the others' names, including officers of his loan brokerage, Pension Funds of America, (PFA) Irvine.

Anthony reportedly has contacted Dist. Atty. Cecil Hicks in an effort to cooperate.

LanFranco's business card was attached to a $10,000 cashier's check, delivered to the campaign offices. The check did not bare the purchaser's name.

The check was purchased at Irvine National Bank, which is located on the first floor of the building in which Pension Funds of America is based.

James Roosevelt, whose business is located in the same building as PFA, donated a $4,000 business check the day before the election.

Conrad's attorney, Richard Donald, gave a business check for $2,500.

Donald, in behalf of Conrad, has filed a $170 million suit in federal court against Hicks, Asst. Dist. Atty. Michael Capizzi and Gier, charging they illegally wiretapped Conrad's telephone for about two years.

Another donation expected to be examined by the district attorney is the $5,000 business check given by the Los Angeles attorney Frank J. Waters, a Corona del Mar resident.

Prosecutor Labels Claudine Reckless

ASPEN, Colo. (AP) – Singer Claudine Longet should be convicted of recklessly killing Vladimir "Spider" Sabich because "she had her finger on the trigger with the gun 2½ feet away from Spider and pointed it right at him," a prosecutor said today.

Ashley Anderson told jurors in his closing argument they had been presented two versions of how Miss Longet's lover died last March 21 in the bathroom of his luxurious mountainside home.

Anderson pointed to testimony from two law enforcement officers who said Miss Longet told them the night of the shooting she was joking with Sabich when the .22-caliber pistol she was holding went off.

The court recessed after defense attorney Charles V. Weedman said his final argument probably would last "the better part of two hours." Anderson spoke about 25 minutes.

The two officers agreed Miss Longet told them she playfully raised the gun at Sabich as he was showing her how to use it. One officer quoted Miss Longet as saying she told her lover "boom, boom" before the gun went off. The other used the words "bang, bang."

Miss Longet said Sabich told her the gun's safety mechanism was on, but ballistics experts testified the safety was inoperable.

District Court Judge George E. Lohr instructed the jury it could also find the 35-year-old Miss Longet guilty on a lesser charge of criminally negligent homicide. Reckless manslaughter calls for up to a $30,000 fine and a 10-year prison term. The homicide charge's maximum penalty would be $5,000 and two years in prison.

Miss Longet's trial was to go to the jury after closing arguments.

Yoshimura Diary Studied By Jury

OAKLAND – The jury deliberating in Wendy Yoshimura's weapons possession trial is studying the diary she kept while hiding out with Patricia Hearst.

The eight-woman, four-man panel received the case Thursday and deliberated 3½ hours before requesting more than 160 pieces of evidence, most of it revolutionary literature and personal papers.

The Alameda County Superior Court jury was to resume discussions today.

One item requested was a red spiral notebook found in the San Francisco hideout where Miss Yoshimura was arrested on Sept. 18, 1975, with Miss Hearst.

The notebook contains a diary of the defendant's relationship with Miss Hearst and Symbionese Liberation Army members William and Emily Harris. In the back is a letter apparently intended for Miss Yoshimura's parents, who live in Fresno. It reaffirms the author's dedication to social change.

Before turning the notebook over to the jury, Judge Martin Pulich stapled shut pages of

By CHARLES ROBERTS
Register Staff Writer

SANTA ANA – Superior Court Presiding Judge Byron McMillan has begun a crash program of mandatory jury trial settlement conferences to clear some of the backlog of civil cases.

The new presiding judge announced the action Thursday as an effort to achieve early settlements without trial and reduce the 18-month waiting period for cases ready to go to trial.

On Dec. 31, 1976, McMillan said there were 5,102 cases ready to go to trial, an increase of more than 340 per cent in the backlog in just four years.

The first available jury trial date for cases ready to go to trial on Dec. 31, 1976 was in the middle of June 1978, nearly 18 months away.

McMillan said the problem is a "continued dramatic growth in the caseload" in Orange County Superior Court without a corresponding increase in the number of judges.

The crash program will require litigants in all jury civil cases with trial dates after Sept. 1, 1977, to participate in mandatory settlement conferences before receiving a new trial date.

McMillan said he anticipates that 30 per cent of the backlog can be disposed of in this manner, allowing the remaining cases to proceed to trial more quickly.

As outlined by the judge, settlement talks will be scheduled during the weeks of March 21-25, April 25-29, May 23-27, and June 20-24, 1977.

Each of twelve specially selected judges will be assigned two volunteer attorneys per day to sit as temporary judges for the purpose of conducting mandatory settlement conferences.

Nine conferences will be scheduled each morning and six each afternoon during settlement weeks. McMillan estimated that 900 cases could be handled weekly in this fashion with a projection of 270 cases each week being settled and taken off the court's calendar.

Where no settlement is reached, and the judge decides that the parties have shown a "good faith effort" to resolve the matter, the case will be given a trial date.

Attorneys and their clients will be required to attend, and those who do not attend or are not properly prepared will be liable for penalty fees; contempt citations or removal from the conference calendar without a trial date.

FBI Nabs Brinks Guard-Turned-Thief

SANTA FE, N.M. (AP) – Former Brinks guard Richard Rees, who brazenly made off with $500,000 cash from an armored car 11 months ago, has been captured with less than $400 in his pockets.

Rees, 27, described by police as "maybe the greatest rip-off artist of all time" was to be arraigned before a federal magistrate today on a charge of bank larceny after his arrest Thursday by the FBI and New Mexico state police.

The former guard had been sought since Feb. 11, 1976, when he asked his driver to stop at a San Mateo, Calif., restaurant so he could deliver a box of champagne to a girl. He stepped off the truck and vanished with the money.

The FBI said Rees was taken into custody at Villanueva, N.M., a small community about 40 miles north of here, following a stakeout by authorities who had learned he was in the area.

Details surrounding the arrest were skimpy. The FBI said only that Rees was known to have been camping out in Texas, Nevada and New Mexico and that the bureau had been tipped that he was in Villanueva.

He was arrested while at the home of a man identified by state police only as Kent Scott. Scott was not taken into custody.

Following the theft, a San Mateo police sergeant said Rees, who left a wife, an ex-wife and a daughter behind, might be "the greatest" rip-off artist ever.

"We can't think of another case where a single man, using no violence or weapons, escaped with such a large amount of untraceable cash," the policeman said.

The arrest came a week after the FBI in San Francisco was given a 17-page letter Rees had sent to San Francisco Chronicle columnist Herb Caen asking that it be relayed to the federal agents.

In it, he described how he played his way through most of the $500,000 through associations with women in Ft. Worth and Austin, Tex., and $2,000 in race track bets.

"In the last 10 months I have spent more than the average man makes in a lifetime," the letter said. "Since my money has all but run out, I have changed to a lifestyle that uses little – or no – money. I guess I have sort of gone the way of the hippie."

The letter, which the FBI said was authentic, was postmarked Kansas City, Mo., and was the first word from the former Marine since he disappeared.

After disappearing with his box of cash, Rees said, he hid in nearby bushes until nightfall, then moved around California for several weeks before busing to Texas.

NEWS BRIEFS

Gilmore Chooses Five Witnesses

SALT LAKE CITY (AP) – Convicted killer Gary Mark Gilmore asked Thursday that his girl friend, his uncle, his two lawyers and the man who obtained rights to the convict's life story be witnesses to his Monday morning execution.

Ronald Stanger, his attorney, said Gilmore declined to request, as was his legal right, two clergymen to view the execution.

Gilmore asked that his girl friend, Nicole Barrett, 20; his uncle, Vern DAmico; attorneys Robert L. Moody and Stanger, and Lawrence Schiller, serve as the five witnesses he is allowed by state law to name.

Miss Barrett, a 20-year-old divorcee and mother of two children, was committed by her mother to a state mental institution in Provo after joining Gilmore in what was an apparent unsuccessful suicide pact Nov. 16.

She has since been ordered by a judge to remain at Utah State Hospital under doctors' care and Stanger said it is unlikely she would be allowed to view the execution.

DAmico, a Provo shoe repairman, has visited Gilmore on several occasions at the Utah State Prison.

Stanger said he and Moody would probably attend the execution, but added, "I haven't thought about it. It seems not the place to be, to be honest with you."

However, he said that if DAmico asked that he and Moody attend, they probably would. "That might be the persuading thing," he said.

Capital Searched For Bombs

WASHINGTON (AP) – The Capitol building, its subways and temporary structures for next week's inaugural ceremonies were closed for more than an hour today because of a bomb threat, Capitol police said.

A police spokesman would not disclose the nature of the 7:10 a.m. EST threat.

"We made a complete sweep of the area, with negative results," he said.

Snow Stalls Sinatra Crash Probe

PALM SPRINGS, Calif. (AP) – Heavy snowfall is hampering the investigation into the cause of the plane crash that killed Frank Sinatra's mother and three other persons, authorities said.

Pieces of the twin-engine Lear jet are scattered in snow up to five feet deep at the site of the crash on rugged San Gorgonio Mountain, an air safety investigator said Thursday.

Parts of the wreckage that have been recovered cannot be moved to Palm Springs for detailed investigation because of the continuing snow, said Bob Gilmore of the National Transportation Safety Board.

Gilmore said it may take two months to complete the investigation, depending on the weather.

Natalie "Dolly" Sinatra, 82; her friend, Anne Carbone, and two pilots, Donald Weier and Jerold Foley, died in the Jan. 6 crash of the private jet.

Black Marine Find, Busted

CAMP PENDLETON (AP) – A black Marine who pleaded guilty to a raid on a group of whites is being broken in rank, fined $300 and sentenced to three months confinement at hard labor by the corps.

The punishment was handed out Thursday by a special court-martial which heard the day-long trial of Cpl. Dean Edwards, 20, one of 14 black Marines charged with assaulting seven whites Nov. 13 in the mistaken belief they were breaking up a Ku Klux Klan meeting.

Meanwhile, military police reported the burning of a six-foot-high wooden cross early Thursday at a spot on base about five miles from where the attack took place.

Base security officers, who put out the fire, said they were holding a Marine for investigation.

TV Execution Ruling Expanded

DALLAS (AP) – A federal judge has elaborated on his ruling that Texas executions can be filmed, saying it would be "dangerous" to permit the government to decide what "is or is not fit for public viewing on television."

The comments by U.S. District Court Judge William Taylor on Thursday were cited Thursday in an appeal filed with the U.S. Supreme Court by Jerry Lane Jurek, who is scheduled to die next Wednesday.

Jurek contends, among other things, that Judge Taylor's ruling is inconsistent with "evolving standards of decency as required" by the U.S. Constitution.

Supermarket Agreement Reached

ALAMEDA (AP) – A tentative agreement was reached between the Retail Clerks Union and the Food Employers Council, narrowly averting a strike which was threatened for today against 163 Safeway stores in eight counties.

A strike of 7,000 San Francisco Bay area Safeway clerks had been called for 12:01 a.m., but the announcement of a tentative accord came only minutes before.

The contract affects 17,000 retail clerks in the eight counties – San Francisco, Marin, Napa, Solano, Contra Costa, Alameda, Santa Clara and San Mateo.

50 Reported Killed By Volcano

BRUSSELS, Belgium (AP) – The eruption of the Nyaragongo volcano in eastern Zaire earlier this week probably killed about 50 people, according to a Roman Catholic priest from the nearby city of Goma quoted on Belgian radio.

The radio said the priest, whose name was not given, told the DIA news agency of Zaire that the villages of Kibati and Moniki had been wiped out in Monday morning's eruption, but there were probably no more than 50 victims.

CM Woman, 20, Slain In Bathtub

COSTA MESA — The body of a 20-year-old waitress was found face down in the bathtub at her residence here and police said an autopsy indicates that she was strangled and drowned.

The death of Robyn Lynn Cox is a mystery to police who said they have no suspects.

Her body was discovered by her roommate Carla Jean Rhoden, 24, when Miss Rhoden returned from work at 6:15 p.m. Wednesday.

Miss Rhoden ran to neighbors for help upon finding her dead friend, said investigators. Detectives found no signs of a struggle and no motives for the killing are known.

Bandit Wounds OC Store Patron

SANTA ANA – A 23-year-old Tustin man was wounded in the leg Thursday night when he interrupted a robbery at Villa Liquors, 1467 S. Main St., police reported.

Investigators said Randall Morrison, a customer in the store, apparently was unaware the holdup was taking place when he approached the cash register and was shot in the inner left thigh by one of two men who had just robbed the store of approximately $190.

According to police, two men about 20, one of Latin descent and the other a Negro, entered the store shortly after 10 p.m. and attempted to purchase some beer.

When the store clerk asked the men for identification the Latin pulled a small caliber automatic pistol and ordered the clerk to lie on the floor. It was at this time that Morrison approached the cash register and was wounded by a single shot, police said.

Cargo Plane Crash Kills Five Crewmen, 56 Cattle

ANCHORAGE, Alaska (AP) – Steaming carcasses of fat beef catle lay strewn across the snow-covered landscape, presenting an eerie sight in the dense fog. Close by, a wrecked DC8 cargo plane was in several pieces, its five dead crewmen still strapped in their seats.

Their Japan Air Lines plane had crashed on takeoff, killing all those on board Thursday.

An airport maintenance man, Darrel Kummert, who witnessed the crash, told officials the takeoff "seemed to be normal.

"It climbed to about 100 feet and then started veering to the left. After that time, it hit the ground ... there wasn't much of an explosion, just one great sheet of flame. It came apart and went into the woods."

The plane was carrying 56 head of cattle from Moses Lake, Wash., to a slaughterhouse in Nagoya, Japan, via Tokyo. It had stopped here for refueling and a flight crew change.

The victims were identified as Capt. Hugh Marsh, 53, Tokyo; Copilot Kunihiko Akitani, 31, Tokyo; flight engineer Morimasa Yokokawa, 35, of Tokyo; JAL cargo agent Ronald Akana, 41, San Francisco; and Jim Wilson, about 40, Craig, Colo. Wilson was an agent of Colorado International Exports, the Denver-based firm shipping the beef to Suzuki Shoji Co.

A National Transportation Safety Board spokesman said there was no indication of the crash cause, adding that the flight and voice recorders were recovered. They record data from the DC8's instruments and the voices of the crew.

The crash occurred at 6:30 a.m. as fog limited visibility to one-quarter mile. The Federal Aviation Administration said that was well within legal takeoff limits.

Anchorage International closed for almost three hours following the crash. An Air France 747 was diverted to nearby Elmendorf Air Force Base for refueling. Several other international and domestic flights remained in holding patterns overhead until the airport reopened. Anchorage is a refueling stop for many airlines flying the polar route to Europe and Asia.

The first rescue crews, arriving at the scene on snowmobiles, found the plane still burning. Tires, pieces of metal and insulation littered more than a square mile.

Most of the cattle were thrown clear and were in a stand of tiny birch trees, their hair tangled among the branches.

Actor Holloway Spends Birthday In OC Hospital

SOUTH LAGUNA – Character actor Sterling Holloway, known to millions as the voice of such Walt Disney creations as Winnie the Pooh, spent his 72nd birthday today in South Coast Community Hospital.

Holloway was admitted to the hospital Thursday after he suffered chest pains at his home here. Chief nurse Lois Kirwan said he was alert and in satisfactory condition this morning.

The wistful, scratchy voice of Holloway has become his trademark as an actor. He has narrated or performed voice characterizations for the Walt Disney studios since 1941 when he was the voice of Flower the skunk in "Bambi."

The same year he did the voice characterization of the stork in "Dumbo."

Other voice characterizations for Disney include the Cheshire Cat in the 1951 "Alice in Wonderland," Kaa the snake in the 1967 "Jungle Book" and Roquefort the mouse in the 1970 "The Aristocats."

Holloway also narrated and did voice characterizations for a number of Disney short animated films.

In recent years he was the voice of A.A. Milne's Winnie the Pooh in three Disney films.

Holloway was born Jan. 17, 1905, in Cedartown, Ga. He has been a resident of South Laguna for several years and is an avid art collector.

Longet Trial

court again today and stared at the jury as it received its instructions.

On Thursday, the prosecution cross-examined Sabich's best friend in an effort to prove that Miss Longet "likes to take chances."

James Lillstrom, an advertising excutive from Boulder, said the affair between Sabich and Miss Longet began in 1972 after a glass-tossing incident in a bar.

Prosecutor Ashley Anderson had said when the jury was out: "The way Miss Longet got Spider's attention was she threw a glass and hit him in the chest, and he turned and said, 'I guess she wants to talk to me.' "

But Lillstrom indicated Anderson's version was wrong. "We heard Spider's name called out very loudly," he testified. "We both turned to look, and she (Miss Longet) tossed the glass at him.

"He had plenty of time to get out of the way. I think for dramatic effect he let it hit him."

Anderson said he learned of the incident through a conversation Lillstrom had with an assistant district attorney.

Also testifying was a firearms expert for the defense. Lama Martin, who works with a private laboratory in Maryland, said the pistol that killed Sabich was fired from a range of two to three feet.

A prosecution ballistics expert has estimated the firing range from four to six feet. The distance is important because Miss Longet says the gun discharged while she was standing close to Sabich as he taught her to handle the semiautomatic pistol.

Both sides agreed the gun's safety was inoperable.

Martin also told jurors the pistol's internal parts may have been damaged by a gummy layer of oil that could have allowed it to fire without the trigger being pulled. But he admitted under cross-examination that the only way he could get the pistol to fire in testing was to pull the trigger.

Residents of this small Rocky Mountain ski resort have crowded into the tiny courtroom along with tourists this week.

"It's come to my attention that people are standing on books again," a stern Judge Lohr warned. Two dozen persons in the rear of the room were told for the second day they could stand behind book shelves but had to leave the law books alone.

Miss Longet could spend up to 10 years in the Colorado state prison and pay a $30,000 fine if she is convicted.

Melvin Dummar Admits Delivering Hughes Will

LOS ANGELES (AP) – A Howard Hughes attorney says he's unwilling to label as phony a Hughes will that would make a multi-millionaire of former gas station manager Melvin Dummar, even though he says Dummar admitted being the mystery man who delivered it.

Harold Rhoden, attorney for the will's executor, former Hughes aide Noah Dietrich, said Dummar still hasn't told how he obtained the will, but has agreed to testify in a Las Vegas, Nev., court, where it was filed for probate.

"I want to bring him to the witness stand, where he knows that if he lies it will mean time in prison," Rhoden said Thursday. "It's no crime to lie to the press or to your lawyers."

Rhoden told reporters that at a lengthy "grilling session" in Ogden, Utah, on Wednesday, Dummar admitted bringing the will to the Salt Lake City headquarters of the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints (Mormon.)

Claims for the document's authenticity had been generally discounted after reports that the FBI found Dummar's fingerprint on it.

Dummar, at that time, denied the report and suggested the print was planted. But Rhoden said Dummar admitted to him that his fingerprints would probably be all over the will because he had steamed open the envelope to look inside.

Dummar, however, denied writing the will or knowing who did, Rhoden said.

The former service station operator was unavailable for comment, but his attorney George Handy, said:

"Mr. Dummar, out of all the grilling we put him through, and it was very harsh and unkind, denies that he wrote the will, had anything to do with the writing of the will and does not know who wrote the will."

Rhoden said Dummar gave him several conflicting stories as to how he got the will, and he added: "I didn't believe him and told him so. He's not ready to tell the truth about how he got it."

Rhoden said that before deciding whether he thinks the will is fraudulent or not, he wants to see the final FBI report on it.

"What if they find fingerprints of Howard Hughes on the will?" he asked, adding that the same four handwriting experts who told him Dummar wrote on the envelope also said Hughes wrote the will.

Rhoden said Dummar told of taking the will to Mormon Church headquarters about three weeks after Hughes' death last April. Dummar wore no disguise and simply left the will in a church envelope he addressed to church President Spencer Kimball, Rhoden said.

Most accounts had said a mystery woman delivered the will.

Dummar ran a service station when the will turned up giving him one-sixteenth of the billionaire's estate. He said he had once given Hughes a ride when he found him wandering along a Nevada desert road at night.

head the Agriculture Department.

The questioning covered a broad range of issues, but Vance clearly got off to a good start when he opened his testimony with a promise to keep the panel fully informed of foreign policy decisions within the Carter administration.

"First, let me say I will come completely clean with you," he said. "If I am informed, I will not mislead you."

Many committee members have complained bitterly in recent years that Kissinger maintained excessive secrecy about diplomatic initiatives.

Vance was secretary of the Army and undersecretary of defense during the Kennedy-Johnson administrations and his role in those years prompted questions about his view on U.S. involvement in Vietnam.

"In the light of hindsight, I think it was a mistake," he told the committee.

He went on to say the United States was wrong in trying to prop up a regime that lacked popular support and in thinking it could impose western values on Southeast Asia. Other mistakes connected with U.S. policy in those years, he said, were failure to consult with allies and a belief that U.S. military might was unlimited

Army officials reported that the Arkansas man was arrested by the provost marshal after a pickup bulletin was broadcast.

She was listed in fair condition at Pulaski County Hospital, where she was taken by sheriff's officials.

"She had walked about six miles over some of the roughest terrain you can imagine, with wounds from a .45-caliber weapon," Williams said. She was wounded in the breast and arm.

and as a man of courage and integrity."

"The Duke of Edinburgh (her husband) joins me in sending our sincere sympathy to you and to Nicholas," the queen said. Nicholas is Eden's only son, who succeeds him to the title of Lord Avon.

The suave, aristocratic statesman who resigned from Neville Chamberlain's cabinet to protest Chamberlain's appeasement of Mussolini and Hitler, was a brave soldier in World War I, a member of the House of Commons for 34 years, a brilliant diplomat before, during and after World War II, and a bitter and disillusioned loser in the Suez war that destroyed him as a political leader.

The British Press Association in its obituary commented that the tragedy of Eden's political career was that it remains identified with the failure of the 1956 Suez adventure.

"It obliterated all his achievements, and to this day more is remembered about this abortive affair than all his diplomatic success," the news agency said.

Eden, who was elevated to the peerage as Earl of Avon in 1961, became gravely ill while spending the winter at the Florida home of American diplomat Averell Harriman, and a Royal Air Force plane equipped as a flying hospital was sent from London to bring him and his wife home.

"Lord Avon was an eternal Englishman," a close friend said. "He had told his family that if he looked like he were dying they must do all they could to see he died in Britain."

He is survived by his second wife, Clarissa, a niece of Sir Winston Churchill, whom he married in 1952, and one son by his first marriage, Viscount Eden, 46, who succeeds to his title. His first wife, whom he divorced in 1950, died of cancer of the liver in 1957, and their elder son was killed in World War II.

Born June 12, 1897, Robert Anthony Eden was a baronet's younger son whose ancestors included a governor of colonial Maryland. He went to France as a soldier of 18, survived World War I as the youngest brigade major in the British army, won the Military Cross and lost two of his brothers on the battlefields. His experiences gave Eden a hatred of war and a profound understanding of military force as an instrument of national power.

After the war he went to Oxford, studied Persian and Arabic, graduated with top honors and developed a lifelong interest in the Middle East.

Eden lost his first race for the House of Commons in 1922 but won a year later in the constituency of Warwick and Leamington. His rise in politics was rapid: undersecretary for foreign affairs in his early 30s, lord privy seal at 37, minister of state for League of Nations affairs at 37 and foreign secretary at 38, in 1935.

His impeccably tailored pinstripes and black homburg became a model for diplomats. He once said he adopted the homburg because "I looked such a fool in a bowler." But Eden was a diplomat of great skill and a man of sturdy character who argued for rearmament and a firm stand against Mussolini and Hitler.

Heroin Trade Public Service? Police Say No

NEW YORK (AP) – Isaac Michael Webb had the world on a string, and at the same time he thought he was performing a public service. The police thought not.

Authorities said Webb, 39, was carrying on a lively heroin trade by lowering a tin can on a string from the fifth-floor window of his Brooklyn apartment.

The district attorney's office quoted Webb as saying after his apartment was raided:

"I'm performing a public service by selling to people who otherwise would be potential violent criminals."

When investigators from Dist. Atty. Eugene Gold's office first raided Webb's apartment last September, they said they found "tons" of tape recorders, movie cameras, color television sets, coins and jewelry, as well as four handguns and two ounces of heroin.

The larger items, the investigators said, were carried into the apartment the conventional way. But the smaller stuff, they said, would be put in the lowered tin can, which Webb then hauled up through the window.

After removing the contributions, they said, he would lower the can again with a heroin fix for the donor.

Webb was released on low bail after that raid, but Tuesday night detectives searched the apartment again. They said they found two more ounces of heroin, lots more merchandise, and a sawed-off shotgun.

This time Webb was held on $100,000 bail.

"I'm glad I've been arrested," he was quoted as saying. "I need a vacation."

The jury also asked to see birth certificates and documents Miss Yoshimura allegedly used to obtain a string of phony identifications to protect herself from capture.

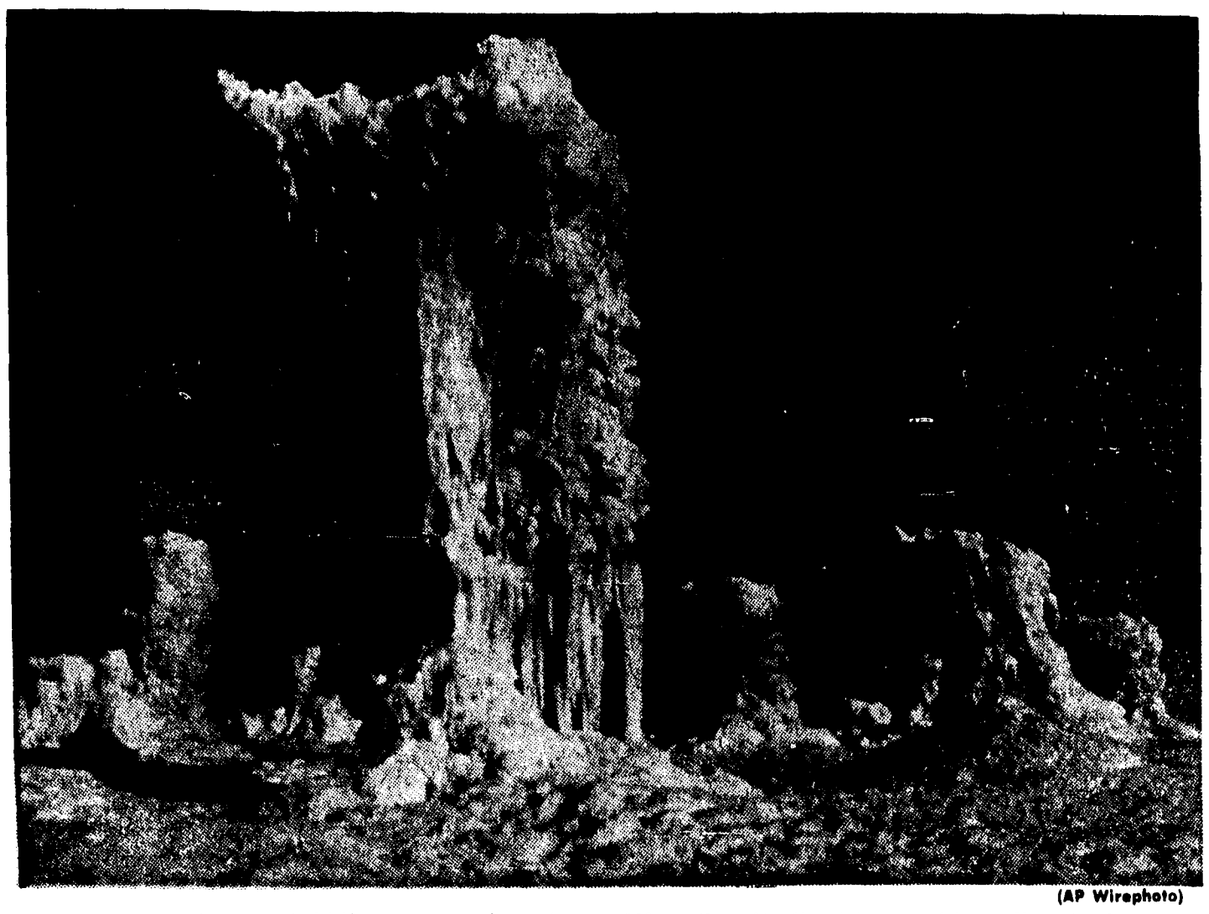

They also asked for an assortment of radical literature and at least one of the weapons seized by Berkeley police at a garage on March 31, 1972. Miss Yoshimura rented the garage some months earlier, and her boyfriend, William Brandt, was arrested there in a police raid that uncovered illegal weapons and explosives.

Miss Yoshimura's defense argued that although she and Brandt lived together, they had many separate interests and Miss Yoshimura was unaware of the garage's illegal contents. Defense attorney James Larson said Brandt was responsible for the arsenal.

Miss Yoshimura dropped out of sight immediately after the raid and spent 3½ years in the terrorist underground, where she met Miss Hearst and the Harrises.

She was indicted in 1972 on charges of possessing an explosive, a machine gun, substances or materials with intent to make a destructive device, and a destructive device with the intent to harm people or destroy property.

She has been free on $25,000 bail. Conviction for possessing a destructive device carries the stiffest penalty – five years to life in prison.

Harshest Winter In Years Chokes Waterway Traffic

By The Associated Press

The harshest winter in years has most of the nation in its icy grip, forcing up the price of heating bills, shutting down factories and schools and slowing navigation on major waterways.

And the National Weather Service predicts no big thaws for at least 30 days.

Robert Dickson, deputy chief of the weather service's long-grange prediction section, said a drastic shift in normal wind patterns is bringing weather from the Arctic Circle as far south as Texas.

About two-thirds of the nation is feeling the chill in what the weather service said was the harshest winter in at least five years.

The demand for more heating fuels, such as natural gas, is threatening reserves, officials say.

In Binghamton, N.Y., one supplier, the Columbia Natural Gas Co., cut off service to industries with back-up capability. Other industries without such dual capacity have been cut back to 60 per cent of the normal supply.

Elsewhere, fuel supplies have been increased by as much as 50 per cent and more to heat homes and businesses.

Some factories in South Carolina and New Jersey have been idled because of a natural gas shortage.

On Thursday, government officials and businessmen from the Carolinas, Virginia, Maryland and other states asked the Federal Power Commission for authority to buy natural gas from Texas that is not subject to federal price controls.

The group, including Sen. Strom Thurmond, R-S.C., contended that without new supplies schools will be shut, tens of thousands of workers will be jobless and public health will be endangered.

The cold shap is causing the heaviest ice buildup in years on the Great Lakes, the Coast Guard said. And in Chesapeake Bay, five vessels were trapped in the Tangier Bay area near the Eastern Shore of Maryland. The Coast Guard reported today that two oil barges that had been trapped by the ice were freed today with no loss of the more than million gallons of heavy fuel oil they were carrying.

In the Great Lakes, Lake Erie was almost completely frozen; Lake Michigan was in danger of freezing over for only the fourth time this century and a western portion of Lake Superior was covered with ice as well.

The Detroit River was frozen from the American to the Canadian shores for the first time in 10 years. Ice was solid from near the Ambassador Bridge at Detroit to Lake Erie. Officials said river traffic had slowed but continued to move through the ice.

The Coast Guard said the most critical problem could develop at Sault Ste. Marie where four-foot-thick ice threatened to shut down St. Mary's River, the major artery of the Great Lakes system.

The Coast Guard halted traffic along 20 miles of the Mississippi River near Cape Girardeau, Mo., when a collapsing ice dam separated 11 barges from a towboat.

Thomas L. Gladders, president of a St. Louis towing company, said the greatest danger from the weather could be a sudden thaw followed by another freeze-up. That, he said, would cause formation of huge dams of solid ice at river bends, halting navigation altogether.

Assembly In Sex Battle Over A 'Waddayacallit'

SACRAMENTO (AP) – The California Assembly voted Thursday to take the sex out of its legislation, but the battle is not over.

Assemblywoman Maxine Waters, D-Los Angeles, won a 48-27 vote for a resolution that would give all members of the Assembly the title "Assembly Member" on bills they introduce, eliminating the titles "Assemblyman" and "Assemblywoman."

But a male colleague, Republican William Craven of Oceanside, blocked final adoption of the resolution by a parliamentary maneuver seeking reconsideration next week.

It was Ms. Waters' second try at changing the titles given legislators on bills. After extensive debate she pleaded, "I do consider that the resolution I am offering is a serious one. I would respectfully ask my colleagues to take it seriously."

After the first vote on her measure came up 38-28, three short of the 41-vote majority required, she told reporters, "It's just a correction of language. I guess the problem is some of the men want to be called assemblymen."

Assemblyman Jerry Lewis, R-Highland, challenged the change: "How are you going to go? Are you going to try to amend the state Constitution every place where it says 'assemblyman?' " he asked.

Assemblyman Howard Berman, D-Beverly Hills, replied the legislature already did that two years ago, substituting "Member of the Assembly."

Assemblyman William Dannemeyer, R-Fullerton, told Ms. Waters, "I can see how you as a lady don't want to be referred to as an assemblyman. Now you seek to take the masculinity out of my title."

Ms. Waters, one of five women in the 80-member Assembly, attempted a few days after she took office last month to change rules on titles.

In past years, the titles "Assemblyman" and "Assemblywoman" were used on bills, but when male and female legislators co-authored a bill, they carried the common title "Assemblymen."

In December, the Assembly adopted her proposal to use "Assembly Members" for male and female co-authors, and retain "Assemblyman" and "Assemblywoman" in other cases.

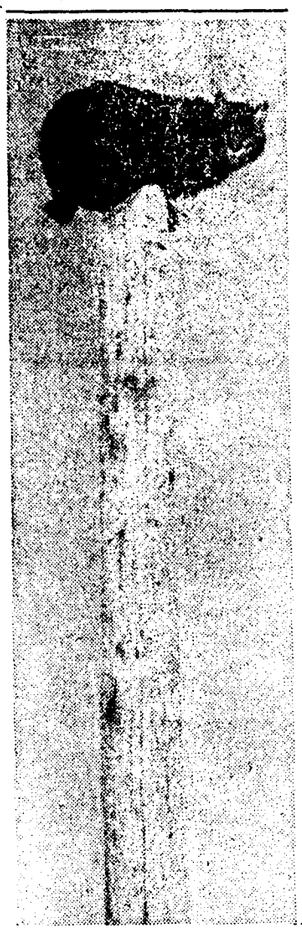

But a day after that resolution was adopted, the rule change was repealed.

Carter Still Stands Firm On Amnesty

WASHINGTON (AP) – President-elect Carter has told 106 House members that he will not reconsider his pledge to grant a general amnesty to Vietnam-era draft evaders as one of his first actions after becoming President, Rep. Charles Wilson, D-Tex., said Thursday night.

"I appreciate your comments asking me to reconsider my decision to issue a pardon for Vietnam draft evaders and am sorry we disagree on this matter," Wilson quoted Carter as saying in response to a letter from a group of Democratic and Republican representatives.

Rep. G.V. Montgomery, D-Miss., initiated the letter.

POLE CAT – Tiger, owned by Mr. and Mrs. Mitch Jurgens of Brandon, S.D., likes to be able to see around the family's farm. He doesn't know yet, but he'll lose his roost when the 12-foot pole is incorporated into a new barn.

South's Black Leaders Back Bell Nomination

WASHINGTON (AP) – Northern and Southern blacks are giving the Senate Judiciary Committee sharply contrasting assessments of the civil rights commitment of Griffin B. Bell, President-elect Carter's choice for attorney general.

With the committee in its fourth day of hearings, there was uncertainty about when members might reach a vote on whether to recommend Senate confirmation of Bell, an Atlanta lawyer and former judge on the 5th U.S. Circuit Court.

Two blacks from Atlanta, Warren Cochrane and Lonnie King, strongly backed Bell for the Cabinet post in testimony Thursday after Rep. Parren J. Mitchell, D-Md., chairman of the Congressional Black Caucus, and Clarence Mitchell, director of the Washington office of the NAACP, had urged his rejection.

King, a former president of the Atlanta chapter of the NAACP, testified that Bell has "the background, the capacity, and the commitment to be a superb attorney general."

And Cochrane, a former secretary of the Negro Voters League in Atlanta, said blacks will have "a real friend" as attorney general if Bell is confirmed by the Senate.

The two Mitchells, who are brothers, had told the committee that Bell, as a legal adviser to former Georgia Gov. Ernest Vandiver and later as a federal judge, had held out as long as he could against desegregation of public schools.

GRIFFIN BELL
Meets Panel

Supporting this view was Joseph L. Rauh, Jr., testifying for the liberal Americans for Democratic Action. He said Bell, both as a lawyer and a judge, "gave aid and comfort to segregationists."

But former special Watergate prosecutor Leon Jaworski testified that he knew of no racial bias on Bell's part and that he had a good record on the federal bench.

James E. McKinney, a black Georgia state legislator, testified: "It hurts me to have to come here and say anything contrary to the NAACP. But I can't sit there and let them degrade Judge Bell."

A. Jay Cooper Jr., the black mayor of Pritchard, Ala., said he argued desegregation cases before Bell, who was "a judge who treated black lawyers with dignity and respect. We must move beyond the past if there is to be a biracial future for America. Judge Bell ... is committed to working toward that biracial future."

Jaworski said Bell "had the courage of his convictions and went right down the line in support of the rule of law" in the 1962 contempt case against former Mississippi Gov. Ross Barnett for trying to block the enrollment of James Meredith in the state university.

Later, Rauh said "what Mr. Jaworski forgot to tell you" was that Bell voted with the court majority in a 4 to 3 decision to let Barnett off without any penalty after Meredith was admitted as the first black at the university.

Much opposition to Bell has centered on his role as legal adviser to Vandiver, an avowed segregationist, elected as governor in 1958.

The Mitchell brothers and Rauh rejected Bell's testimony that he tried to be a moderating force and worked to convince Vandiver that, under rulings of the Supreme Court, he could not carry out his campaign commitment to keep Georgia schools segregated.

But Cochrane said Bell met secretly with Atlanta black leaders after Vandiver's election and kept them informed of what was going on in the governor's office. He said Bell told them he was trying to change Vandiver's stand and asked them to be a moderating influence.

Asked if Bell might have been delaying for Vandiver, Cochrane said he felt Bell was trying to play fair with the black community. "We had to delay. The times called for it," Cochrane said. "We were afraid of confrontation, of chaos."

He also credited Bell with bringing about creation of a commission that for the first time brought Georgia blacks and whites together to discuss the change from segregated to integrated schools.

ACCEPTS FELLOWSHIP

Ford Plans Sessions At Yale University

WASHINGTON (AP) – President Ford will take part in a series of classes and informal meetings with students and faculty at Yale University early next month, the White House announced Thursday.

A spokesman said Ford, who leaves office a week from today, has accepted a Visiting Chubb Fellowship at the university's Timothy Dwight College and will be on the campus Feb. 6-8.

Ford will participate in a series of meetings with history and law classes, informal sessions with students and discussions with faculty members.

The Chubb Fellowship program, which was established in 1936, is devoted to encouraging and aiding students interested in the operations of government and public service careers.

Previous fellows include President Harry S. Truman, former Secretary of State Dean Acheson and former British Prime Ministers Clement Attlee and Edward Heath.

The White House also announced two other post-presidential plans for Ford.

On Jan. 27 he and Mrs. Ford will attend the seventh annual Vince Lombardi Award dinner in Houston. The dinner is a benefit for the American Cancer Society.

Ford will speak and will present the Lombardi Award honoring the collegiate football lineman of the year.

On Feb. 9 to 13, Ford will play in the annual Bob Hope Desert Golf Classic in Palm Springs, Calif.

Previously it had been announced that Ford will play in two other golf tournaments, the Bing Crosby Classic in Pebble Beach, Calif., next week and the Jackie Gleason tournament in Lauderhill.

CUT YOUR OWN TAXES – 6

Tax Options Vary On Sale Of Homes

By RAY DE CRANE

The gain on the sale of a home by someone under 65 may or may not be immediately taxable. It depends on what you do with the proceeds.

But the loss on a home sale is never deductible on your federal income tax return.

If you purchase a replacement home whose cost is equal to or greater than the adjusted selling price of the home sold, the tax on the gain is deferred. It is not forgiven; it is delayed to a later day.

This, then, calls for a second step. The deferred gain is subtracted from the cost price of the replacement home, producing what is called an adjusted basis.

When that second home is sold for more than the adjusted basis there is a gain. Of course, you can continue stepping up to more expensive housing, pushing ahead further the eventual day of reckoning.

If you sell at a gain and do not buy another home, but, instead, move into rented quarters, the suspense is over. Whatever your gain, over your total investment in the property, it is immediately taxable. If you owned the property for longer than six months, it is treated as a long-term capital gain and only half of it is taxable.

There is also the possibility you sold at a profit and then bought a replacement home whose cost was less than the adjusted selling price of home No. 1.

In this case you could have both an immediate gain and a deferred gain.

The immediate taxable gain is either the actual gain on the sale or, if it produces a smaller amount, the difference between the adjusted selling price of home No. 1 and the cost price of home No. 2.

If there is still gain remaining after subtracting that difference from the gain realized on the sale, it is treated as a deferred gain. Subtract that amount from the cost basis of home No. 2, giving you a different starting point on that home in the event of a future sale.

Correction

In Thursday's tax story, the fourth and fifth paragraphs had words missing. They should have read:

"Let's assume you sold your home for an adjusted selling price of $40,000 and realized a $10,000 profit. How much of that $10,000 is taxable?

"You divide $20,000 by $40,000 and get 50 per cent. So 50 per cent of the $10,000 is free of tax. The other $5,000 is taxable. Since it will be reported on Schedule D as a long-term capital gain only half of the gain, or $2,500, will eventually be taxed."

Boy Ticking, Not Kidding, Gulped Watch

HENDERSON, Ky. (AP) – After 28½ hours, Chris Cleveland's stomach has quit ticking.

The noise came from a watch which surgeons removed from the 12-year-old youngster on Wednesday.

The watch, minus its band, wouldn't have been there so long if Chris could have convinced his parents, John and Tina Cleveland, that he had swallowed it.

"That boy is just like I am. He's an inveterate joker," said his father, recalling that Chris informed him Tuesday morning "he had swallowed the watch."

Cleveland, thinking his son was joking, took him sledding with a number of other boys in the neighborhood.

That evening, Chris began to feel feverish and managed to persuade his mother that he was telling the truth about the watch, with a diameter the size of a quarter.

FDA Plans To Test 2,100 Food Additives For Safety

WASHINGTON (AP) – The Food and Drug Administration said Thursday it plans to begin testing all 2,100 food additives now on the market to assure their safety. A consumer activist immediately condemned the program as a means for buying time while consumers remain exposed to dangerous chemicals.

Acting FDA Commissioner Sherwin Gardner announced the new tests in testimony to a Senate committee headed by Gaylord Nelson, D-Wis. Nelson has criticized FDA for allowing some chemical food additives to remain on the market after scientists have linked them to cancer and other diseases.

Gardner said all preservatives, colors, flavors and substances that may get into food from packaging will undergo scientific re-evaluation beginning in March. "Science is dynamic and a food additive judged safe by the science of 1970 may very will be suspect by the science of 1977," he said.

He said that profiles on each of the food additives will be established within 18 months and FDA may then restrict use of some additives or remove them from the market.

Nelson did not comment on the announcement, which began on page 21 of Gardner's written testimony. The FDA commissioner had read only 18 pages of his testimony when Nelson asked him to make way for the next witness.

However, the next witness, Dr. Sidney Wolfe, director of Ralph Nader's Health Research Group, attacked the FDA action. "The FDA is buying time and allowing more and more consumption of chemicals that may be dangerous."

He accused the agency of "protecting the food industry, instead of protecting the public" and said chemicals should be taken off the market as soon as there is scientific doubt about their safety.

TO SAVE 70 MILLION LIVES

Nuclear Evacuation Plan Eyed

WASHINGTON (AP) – Federal Civil Defense officials say about 70 million American lives could be saved by evacuating 400 "high-risk" areas before any threatened nuclear missile attack.

Planning for such an emergency evacuation will soon start in all 50 states following completion of pilot projects in eight areas.

Officials of the Pentagon's Civil Preparedness Agency believe that state and local planning, supported by federal funds, can produce a standby evacuation blueprint within five years.

The program is called "crisis relocation." It is based on the premise that the inhabitants of prime target communities can be moved to safer, lightly populated areas during rising international tension expected to precede any outbreak of war.

The 400 high-risk areas are urban-industrial centers and areas around military bases.

Pilot studies were conducted in Utica-Rome, N.Y., Dover, Del., Macon, Ga., Duluth, Minn., Oklahoma City, Colorado Springs, Tucson, Ariz., and Great Falls, Mont.

Officials estimate the planning will cost about $45 million to $50 million. They have no idea of the potential cost of an actual emergency relocation. The states would be expected to share the financial burden.

The Council of State Governments is exploring questions of funding a population evacuation and what new laws and executive orders may be required at the federal and state levels.

According to calculations by federal specialists, about 80 million persons out of a total U.S. population of about 215 million would be likely to survive any Soviet missile attack if there were a civil defense program.

An additional 30 million persons could be saved by taking refuge in nuclear fall-out shelters in the target areas, the specialists say.

Congress alloted $82.5 million for civil defense this year and the Ford administration's final defense budget is expected to propose an increase of only about $5 million next year.

Some Pentagon officials and members of Congress claim that the U.S. civil defense program is too small. They have expressed concern about what they claim is a massive Soviet civil defense effort. In their view, this could leave the U.S. population more vulnerable than the Russian people and undermine mutual deterrence of nuclear attack.

However, Defense Secretary-designate Harold Brown is on record as doubting that the Russians actually are engaged in a large-scale civil defense program. Brown also has indicated he is skeptical that such a program would give the Russians a significant strategic advantage.

NEWS BRIEFS

Gilmore Chooses Five Witnesses

SALT LAKE CITY (AP) – Convicted killer Gary Mark Gilmore asked Thursday that his girl friend, his uncle, his two lawyers and the man who obtained rights to the convict's life story be witnesses to his Monday morning execution.

Ronald Stanger, his attorney, said Gilmore declined to request, as was his legal right, two clergymen to view the execution.

Gilmore asked that his girl friend, Nicole Barrett, 20; his uncle, Vern DAmico; attorneys Robert L. Moody and Stanger, and Lawrence Schiller, serve as the five witnesses he is allowed by state law to name.

Miss Barrett, a 20-year-old divorcee and mother of two children, was committed by her mother to a state mental institution in Provo after joining Gilmore in what was an apparent unsuccessful suicide pact Nov. 16.

She has since been ordered by a judge to remain at Utah State Hospital under doctors' care and Stanger said it is unlikely she would be allowed to view the execution.

DAmico, a Provo shoe repairman, has visited Gilmore on several occasions at the Utah State Prison.

Stanger said he and Moody would probably attend the execution, but added, "I haven't thought about it. It seems not the place to be, to be honest with you."

However, he said that if DAmico asked that he and Moody attend, they probably would. "That might be the persuading thing," he said.

Capital Searched For Bombs

WASHINGTON (AP) - The Capitol building, its subways and temporary structures for next week's inaugural ceremonies were closed for more than an hour today because of a bomb threat, Capitol police said.

A police spokesman would not disclose the nature of the 7:10 a.m. EST threat.

"We made a complete sweep of the area, with negative results," he said.

Snow Stalls Sinatra Crash Probe

PALM SPRINGS, Calif. (AP) – Heavy snowfall is hampering the investigation into the cause of the plane crash that killed Frank Sinatra's mother and three other persons, authorities said.

Pieces of the twin-engine Lear jet are scattered in snow up to five feet deep at the site of the crash on rugged San Gorgonio Mountain, an air safety investigator said Thursday.

Parts of the wreckage that have been recovered cannot be moved to Palm Springs for detailed investigation because of the continuing snow, said Bob Gilmore of the National Transportation Safety Board.

Gilmore said it may take two months to complete the investigation, depending on the weather.

Natalie "Dolly" Sinatra, 82; her friend, Anne Carbone, and two pilots, Donald Weier and Jerold Foley, died in the Jan. 6 crash of the private jet.

Black Marine Find, Busted

CAMP PENDLETON (AP)– A black Marine who pleaded guilty to a raid on a group of whites is being broken in rank, fined $300 and sentenced to three months confinement at hard labor by the corps.

The punishment was handed out Thursday by a special court-martial which heard the day-long trial of Cpl. Dean Edwards, 20, one of 14 black Marines charged with assaulting seven whites Nov. 13 in the mistaken belief they were breaking up a Ku Klux Klan meeting.

Meanwhile, military police reported the burning of a six-foot-high wooden cross early Thursday at a spot on base about five miles from where the attack took place.

Base security officers, who put out the fire, said they were holding a Marine for investigation.

TV Execution Ruling Expanded

DALLAS (AP) – A federal judge has elaborated on his ruling that Texas executions can be filmed, saying it would be "dangerous" to permit the government to decide what "is or is not fit for public viewing on television."

The comments by U.S. District Court Judge William Taylor on Thursday were cited Thursday in an appeal filed with the U.S. Supreme Court by Jerry Lane Jurek, who is scheduled to die next Wednesday.

Jurek contends, among other things, that Judge Taylor's ruling is inconsistent with "evolving standards of decency as required" by the U.S. Constitution.

Supermarket Agreement Reached

ALAMEDA (AP) – A tentative agreement was reached between the Retail Clerks Union and the Food Employers Council, narrowly averting a strike which was threatened for today against 163 Safeway stores in eight counties.

A strike of 7,000 San Francisco Bay area Safeway clerks had been called for 12:01 a.m., but the announcement of a tentative accord came only minutes before.

The contract affects 17,000 retail clerks in the eight counties – San Francisco, Marin, Napa, Solano, Contra Costa, Alameda, Santa Clara and San Mateo.

50 Reported Killed By Volcano

BRUSSELS, Belgium (AP) – The eruption of the Nyaragongo volcano in eastern Zaire earlier this week probably killed about 50 people, according to a Roman Catholic priest from the nearby city of Goma quoted on Belgian radio.

The radio said the priest, whose name was not given, told the DIA news agency of Zaire that the villages of Kibati and Moniki had been wiped out in Monday morning's eruption, but there were probably no more than 50 victims.

CM Woman, 20, Slain In Bathtub

COSTA MESA — The body of a 20-year-old waitress was found face down in the bathtub at her residence here and police said an autopsy indicates that she was strangled and drowned.

The death of Robyn Lynn Cox is a mystery to police who said they have no suspects.

Her body was discovered by her roommate Carla Jean Rhoden, 24, when Miss Rhoden returned from work at 6:15 p.m. Wednesday.

Miss Rhoden ran to neighbors for help upon finding her dead friend, said investigators. Detectives found no signs of a struggle and no motives for the killing are known.

Bandit Wounds OC Store Patron

SANTA ANA – A 23-year-old Tustin man was wounded in the leg Thursday night when he interrupted a robbery at Villa Liquors, 1467 S. Main St., police reported.

Investigators said Randall Morrison, a customer in the store, apparently was unaware the holdup was taking place when he approached the cash register and was shot in the inner left thigh by one of two men who had just robbed the store of approximately $190.

According to police, two men about 20, one of Latin descent and the other a Negro, entered the store shortly after 10 p.m. and attempted to purchase some beer.

When the store clerk asked the men for identification the Latin pulled a small caliber automatic pistol and ordered the clerk to lie on the floor. It was at this time that Morrison approached the cash register and was wounded by a single shot, police said.

Cargo Plane Crash Kills Five Crewmen, 56 Cattle

ANCHORAGE, Alaska (AP) – Steaming carcasses of fat beef catle lay strewn across the snow-covered landscape, presenting an eerie sight in the dense fog. Close by, a wrecked DC8 cargo plane was in several pieces, its five dead crewmen still strapped in their seats.

Their Japan Air Lines plane had crashed on takeoff, killing all those on board Thursday.

An airport maintenance man, Darrel Kummert, who witnessed the crash, told officials the takeoff "seemed to be normal.

"It climbed to about 100 feet and then started veering to the left. After that time, it hit the ground ... there wasn't much of an explosion, just one great sheet of flame. It came apart and went into the woods."

The plane was carrying 56 head of cattle from Moses Lake, Wash., to a slaughterhouse in Nagoya, Japan, via Tokyo. It had stopped here for refueling and a flight crew change.

The victims were identified as Capt. Hugh Marsh, 53, Tokyo; Copilot Kunihiko Akitani, 31, Tokyo; flight engineer Morimasa Yokokawa, 35, of Tokyo; JAL cargo agent Ronald Akana, 41, San Francisco; and Jim Wilson, about 40, Craig, Colo. Wilson was an agent of Colorado International Exports, the Denver-based firm shipping the beef to Suzuki Shoji Co.

A National Transportation Safety Board spokesman said there was no indication of the crash cause, adding that the flight and voice recorders were recovered. They record data from the DC8's instruments and the voices of the crew.

The crash occurred at 6:30 a.m. as fog limited visibility to one-quarter mile. The Federal Aviation Administration said that was well within legal takeoff limits.

Anchorage International closed for almost three hours following the crash. An Air France 747 was diverted to nearby Elmendorf Air Force Base for refueling. Several other international and domestic flights remained in holding patterns overhead until the airport reopened. Anchorage is a refueling stop for many airlines flying the polar route to Europe and Asia.

The first rescue crews, arriving at the scene on snowmobiles, found the plane still burning. Tires, pieces of metal and insulation littered more than a square mile.

Most of the cattle were thrown clear and were in a stand of tiny birch trees, their hair tangled among the branches.

Actor Holloway Spends Birthday In OC Hospital

SOUTH LAGUNA – Character actor Sterling Holloway, known to millions as the voice of such Walt Disney creations as Winnie the Pooh, spent his 72nd birthday today in South Coast Community Hospital.

Holloway was admitted to the hospital Thursday after he suffered chest pains at his home here. Chief nurse Lois Kirwan said he was alert and in satisfactory condition this morning.

The wistful, scratchy voice of Holloway has become his trademark as an actor. He has narrated or performed voice characterizations for the Walt Disney studios since 1941 when he was the voice of Flower the skunk in "Bambi."

The same year he did the voice characterization of the stork in "Dumbo."

Other voice characterizations for Disney include the Cheshire Cat in the 1951 "Alice in Wonderland," Kaa the snake in the 1967 "Jungle Book" and Roquefort the mouse in the 1970 "The Aristocats."

Holloway also narrated and did voice characterizations for a number of Disney short animated films.

In recent years he was the voice of A.A. Milne's Winnie the Pooh in three Disney films.

Holloway was born Jan. 17, 1905, in Cedartown, Ga. He has been a resident of South Laguna for several years and is an avid art collector.

Longet Trial

court again today and stared at the jury as it received its instructions.

On Thursday, the prosecution cross-examined Sabich's best friend in an effort to prove that Miss Longet "likes to take chances."

James Lillstrom, an advertising excutive from Boulder, said the affair between Sabich and Miss Longet began in 1972 after a glass-tossing incident in a bar.

Prosecutor Ashley Anderson had said when the jury was out: "The way Miss Longet got Spider's attention was she threw a glass and hit him in the chest, and he turned and said, 'I guess she wants to talk to me.'"

But Lillstrom indicated Anderson's version was wrong. "We heard Spider's name called out very loudly," he testified. "We both turned to look, and she (Miss Longet) tossed the glass at him.

"He had plenty of time to get out of the way. I think for dramatic effect he let it hit him."

Anderson said he learned of the incident through a conversation Lillstrom had with an assistant district attorney.

Also testifying was a firearms expert for the defense. Lama Martin, who works with a private laboratory in Maryland, said the pistol that killed Sabich was fired from a range of two to three feet.

A prosecution ballistics expert has estimated the firing range from four to six feet. The distance is important because Miss Longet says the gun discharged while she was standing close to Sabich as he taught her to handle the semiautomatic pistol.

Both sides agreed the gun's safety was inoperable.

Martin also told jurors the pistol's internal parts may have been damaged by a gummy layer of oil that could have allowed it to fire without the trigger being pulled. But he admitted under cross-examination that the only way he could get the pistol to fire in testing was to pull the trigger.

Residents of this small Rocky Mountain ski resort have crowded into the tiny courtroom along with tourists this week.

"It's come to my attention that people are standing on books again," a stern Judge Lohr warned. Two dozen persons in the rear of the room were told for the second day they could stand behind book shelves but had to leave the law books alone.

Miss Longet could spend up to 10 years in the Colorado state prison and pay a $30,000 fine if she is convicted.

Melvin Dummar Admits Delivering Hughes Will

LOS ANGELES (AP) – A Howard Hughes attorney says he's unwilling to label as phony a Hughes will that would make a multi-millionaire of former gas station manager Melvin Dummar, even though he says Dummar admitted being the mystery man who delivered it.

Harold Rhoden, attorney for the will's executor, former Hughes aide Noah Dietrich, said Dummar still hasn't told how he obtained the will, but has agreed to testify in a Las Vegas, Nev., court, where it was filed for probate.

"I want to bring him to the witness stand, where he knows that if he lies it will mean time in prison," Rhoden said Thursday. "It's no crime to lie to the press or to your lawyers."

Rhoden told reporters that at a lengthy "grilling session" in Ogden, Utah, on Wednesday, Dummar admitted bringing the will to the Salt Lake City headquarters of the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints (Mormon.)

Claims for the document's authenticity had been generally discounted after reports that the FBI found Dummar's fingerprint on it.

Dummar, at that time, denied the report and suggested the print was planted. But Rhoden said Dummar admitted to him that his fingerprints would probably be all over the will because he had steamed open the envelope to look inside.

Dummar, however, denied writing the will or knowing who did, Rhoden said.

The former service station operator was unavailable for comment, but his attorney George Handy, said:

"Mr. Dummar, out of all the grilling we put him through, and it was very harsh and unkind, denies that he wrote the will, had anything to do with the writing of the will and does not know who wrote the will."

Rhoden said Dummar gave him several conflicting stories as to how he got the will, and he added: "I didn't believe him and told him so. He's not ready to tell the truth about how he got it."

Rhoden said that before deciding whether he thinks the will is fraudulent or not, he wants to see the final FBI report on it.

"What if they find fingerprints of Howard Hughes on the will?" he asked, adding that the same four handwriting experts who told him Dummar wrote on the envelope also said Hughes wrote the will.

Rhoden said Dummar told of taking the will to Mormon Church headquarters about three weeks after Hughes' death last April. Dummar wore no disguise and simply left the will in a church envelope he addressed to church President Spencer Kimball, Rhoden said.

Most accounts had said a mystery woman delivered the will.

Dummar ran a service station when the will turned up giving him one-sixteenth of the billionaire's estate. He said he had once given Hughes a ride when he found him wandering along a Nevada desert road at night.

Vance Okayed

head the Agriculture Department.

The questioning covered a broad range of issues, but Vance clearly got off to a good start when he opened his testimony with a promise to keep the panel fully informed of foreign policy decisions within the Carter administration.

"First, let me say I will come completely clean with you," he said. "If I am informed, I will not mislead you."

Many committee members have complained bitterly in recent years that Kissinger maintained excessive secrecy about diplomatic initiatives.

Vance was secretary of the Army and undersecretary of defense during the Kennedy-Johnson administrations and his role in those years prompted questions about his view on U.S. involvement in Vietnam.

"In the light of hindsight, I think it was a mistake," he told the committee.

He went on to say the United States was wrong in trying to prop up a regime that lacked popular support and in thinking it could impose western values on Southeast Asia. Other mistakes connected with U.S. policy in those years, he said, were failure to consult with allies and a belief that U.S. military might was unlimited.

Army officials reported that the Arkansas man was arrested by the provost marshal after a pickup bulletin was broadcast.

"The arrest was made on information primarily furnished by Juanita," Williams said.

She was listed in fair condition at Pulaski County Hospital, where she was taken by sheriff's officials.

"She had walked about six miles over some of the roughest terrain you can imagine, with wounds from a .45-caliber weapon," Williams said. She was wounded in the breast and arm.

and as a man of courage and integrity."

"The Duke of Edinburgh (her husband) joins me in sending our sincere sympathy to you and to Nicholas," the queen said. Nicholas is Eden's only son, who succeeds him to the title of Lord Avon.

The suave, aristocratic statesman who resigned from Neville Chamberlain's cabinet to protest Chamberlain's appeasement of Mussolini and Hitler, was a brave soldier in World War I, a member of the House of Commons for 34 years, a brilliant diplomat before, during and after World War II, and a bitter and disillusioned loser in the Suez war that destroyed him as a political leader.

The British Press Association in its obituary commented that the tragedy of Eden's political career was that it remains identified with the failure of the 1956 Suez adventure.

"It obliterated all his achievements, and to this day more is remembered about this abortive affair than all his diplomatic success," the news agency said.

Eden, who was elevated to the peerage as Earl of Avon in 1961, became gravely ill while spending the winter at the Florida home of American diplomat Averell Harriman, and a Royal Air Force plane equipped as a flying hospital was sent from London to bring him and his wife home.

"Lord Avon was an eternal Englishman," a close friend said. "He had told his family that if he looked like he were dying they must do all they could to see he died in Britain."

He is survived by his second wife, Clarissa, a niece of Sir Winston Churchill, whom he married in 1952, and one son by his first marriage, Viscount Eden, 46, who succeeds to his title. His first wife, whom he divorced in 1950, died of cancer of the liver in 1957, and their elder son was killed in World War II.

Born June 12, 1897, Robert Anthony Eden was a baronet's younger son whose ancestors included a governor of colonial Maryland. He went to France as a soldier of 18, survived World War I as the youngest brigade major in the British army, won the Military Cross and lost two of his brothers on the battlefields. His experiences gave Eden a hatred of war and a profound understanding of military force as an instrument of national power.

After the war he went to Oxford, studied Persian and Arabic, graduated with top honors and developed a lifelong interest in the Middle East.

Eden lost his first race for the House of Commons in 1922 but won a year later in the constituency of Warwick and Leamington. His rise in politics was rapid: undersecretary for foreign affairs in his early 30s, lord privy seal at 37, minister of state for League of Nations affairs at 37 and foreign secretary at 38, in 1935.

His impeccably tailored pinstripes and black homburg became a model for diplomats. He once said he adopted the homburg because "I looked such a fool in a bowler." But Eden was a diplomat of great skill and a man of sturdy character who argued for rearmament and a firm stand against Mussolini and Hitler.

Heroin Trade Public Service? Police Say No

NEW YORK (AP) – Isaac Michael Webb had the world on a string, and at the same time he thought he was performing a public service. The police thought not.

Authorities said Webb, 39, was carrying on a lively heroin trade by lowering a tin can on a string from the fifth-floor window of his Brooklyn apartment.

The district attorney's office quoted Webb as saying after his apartment was raided:

"I'm performing a public service by selling to people who otherwise would be potential violent criminals."

When investigators from Dist. Atty. Eugene Gold's office first raided Webb's apartment last September, they said they found "tons" of tape recorders, movie cameras, color television sets, coins and jewelry, as well as four handguns and two ounces of heroin.

The larger items, the investigators said, were carried into the apartment the conventional way. But the smaller stuff, they said, would be put in the lowered tin can, which Webb then hauled up through the window.

After removing the contributions, they said, he would lower the can again with a heroin fix for the donor.

Webb was released on low bail after that raid, but Tuesday night detectives searched the apartment again. They said they found two more ounces of heroin, lots more merchandise, and a sawed-off shotgun.

This time Webb was held on $100,000 bail.

"I'm glad I've been arrested," he was quoted as saying. "I need a vacation."

the diary that were not admitted into evidence and attached a note instructing the jurors not to open the forbidden pages.

The jury also asked to see birth certificates and documents Miss Yoshimura allegedly used to obtain a string of phony identifications to protect herself from capture.

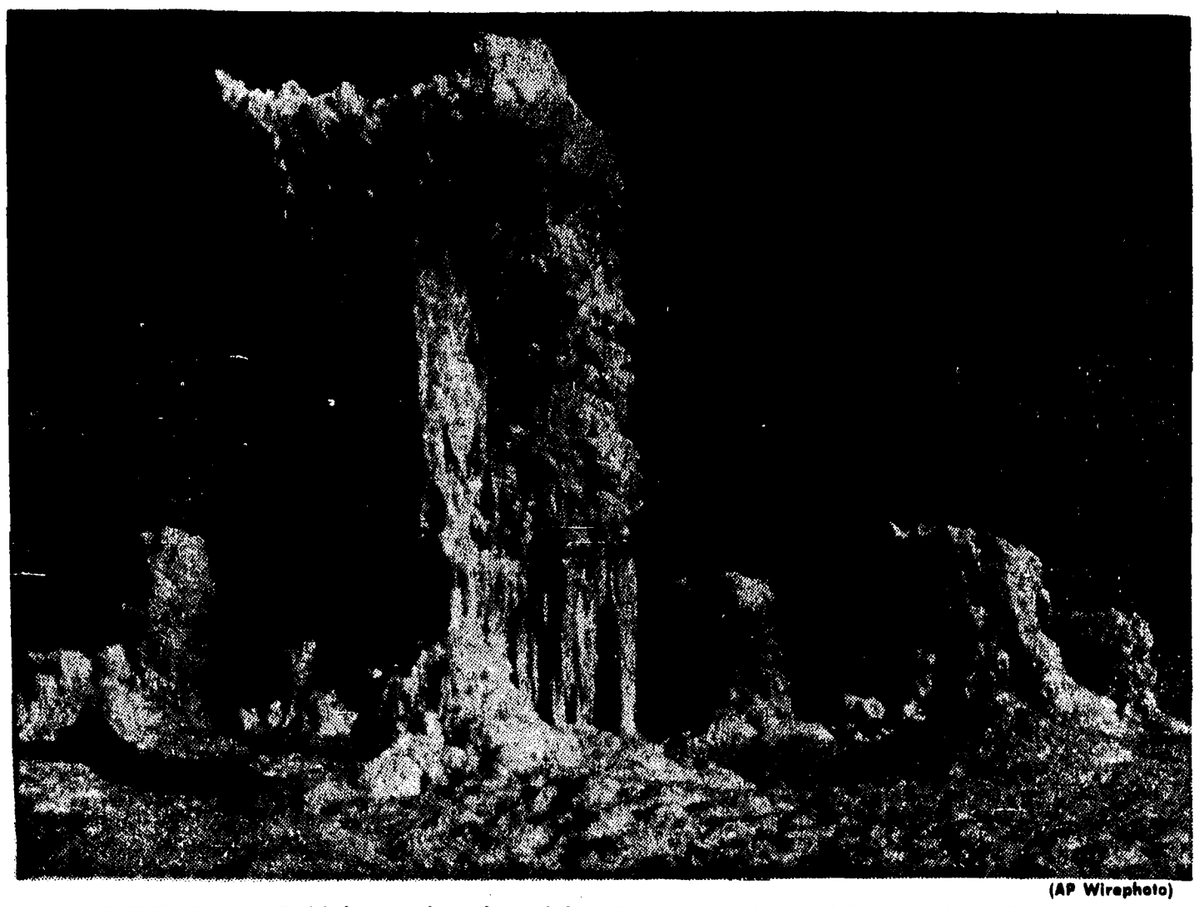

They also asked for an assortment of radical literature and at least one of the weapons seized by Berkeley police at a garage on March 31, 1972. Miss Yoshimura rented the garage some months earlier, and her boyfriend, William Brandt, was arrested there in a police raid that uncovered illegal weapons and explosives.

Miss Yoshimura's defense argued that although she and Brandt lived together, they had many separate interests and Miss Yoshimura was unaware of the garage's illegal contents. Defense attorney James Larson said Brandt was responsible for the arsenal.

Miss Yoshimura dropped out of sight immediately after the raid and spent 3½ years in the terrorist underground, where she met Miss Hearst and the Harrises.

She was indicted in 1972 on charges of possessing an explosive, a machine gun, substances or materials with intent to make a destructive device, and a destructive device with the intent to harm people or destroy property.

She has been free on $25,000 bail. Conviction for possessing a destructive device carries the stiffest penalty – five years to life in prison.

FANTASY IN ICE – Bubbling water shaped by cold, hard winds, formed some artistic pillars of ice at a waste treatment plant in Marshall, Minn. Despite the icing problem, the plant continues to operate normally.

Harshest Winter In Years Chokes Waterway Traffic

By The Associated Press

The harshest winter in years has most of the nation in its icy grip, forcing up the price of heating bills, shutting down factories and schools and slowing navigation on major waterways.

And the National Weather Service predicts no big thaws for at least 30 days.

Robert Dickson, deputy chief of the weather service's long-range prediction section, said a drastic shift in normal wind patterns is bringing weather from the Arctic Circle as far south as Texas.

About two-thirds of the nation is feeling the chill in what the weather service said was the harshest winter in at least five years.

The demand for more heating fuels, such as natural gas, is threatening reserves, officials say.

In Binghamton, N.Y., one supplier, the Columbia Natural Gas Co., cut off service to industries with back-up capability. Other industries without such dual capacity have been cut back to 60 per cent of the normal supply.

Elsewhere, fuel supplies have been increased by as much as 50 per cent and more to heat homes and businesses.

Some factories in South Carolina and New Jersey have been idled because of a natural gas shortage.

On Thursday, government officials and businessmen from the Carolinas, Virginia, Maryland and other states asked the Federal Power Commission for authority to buy natural gas from Texas that is not subject to federal price controls.

The group, including Sen. Strom Thurmond, R-S.C., contended that without new supplies schools will be shut, tens of thousands of workers will be jobless and public health will be endangered.

The cold snap is causing the heaviest ice buildup in years on the Great Lakes, the Coast Guard said. And in Chesapeake Bay, five vessels were trapped in the Tangier Bay area near the Eastern Shore of Maryland. The Coast Guard reported today that two oil barges that had been trapped by the ice were freed today with no loss of the more than million gallons of heavy fuel oil they were carrying.

In the Great Lakes, Lake Erie was almost completely frozen; Lake Michigan was in danger of freezing over for only the fourth time this century and a western portion of Lake Superior was covered with ice as well.

The Detroit River was frozen from the American to the Canadian shores for the first time in 10 years. Ice was solid from near the Ambassador Bridge at Detroit to Lake Erie. Officials said river traffic had slowed but continued to move through the ice.

The Coast Guard said the most critical problem could develop at Sault Ste. Marie where four-foot-thick ice threatened to shut down St. Mary's River, the major artery of the Great Lakes system.

The Coast Guard halted traffic along 20 miles of the Mississippi River near Cape Girardeau, Mo., when a collapsing ice dam separated 11 barges from a towboat.

Thomas L. Gladders, president of a St. Louis towing company, said the greatest danger from the weather could be a sudden thaw followed by another freeze-up. That, he said, would cause formation of huge dams of solid ice at river bends, halting navigation altogether.

Assembly In Sex Battle Over A 'Waddayacallit'

SACRAMENTO (AP) – The California Assembly voted Thursday to take the sex out of its legislation, but the battle is not over.

Assemblywoman Maxine Waters, D-Los Angeles, won a 48-27 vote for a resolution that would give all members of the Assembly the title "Assembly Member" on bills they introduce, eliminating the titles "Assemblyman" and "Assemblywoman."

But a male colleague, Republican William Craven of Oceanside, blocked final adoption of the resolution by a parliamentary maneuver seeking reconsideration next week.

It was Ms. Waters' second try at changing the titles given legislators on bills. After extensive debate she pleaded, "I do consider that the resolution I am offering is a serious one. I would respectfully ask my colleagues to take it seriously."

After the first vote on her measure came up 38-28, three short of the 41-vote majority required, she told reporters, "It's just a correction of language. I guess the problem is some of the men want to be called assemblymen."

Assemblyman Jerry Lewis, R-Highland, challenged the change: "How are you going to go? Are you going to try to amend the state Constitution every place where it says 'assemblyman?' " he asked.

Assemblyman Howard Berman, D-Beverly Hills, replied the legislature already did that two years ago, substituting "Member of the Assembly."

Assemblyman William Dannemeyer, R-Fullerton, told Ms. Waters, "I can see how you as a lady don't want to be referred to as an assemblyman. Now you seek to take the masculinity out of my title."

Ms. Waters, one of five women in the 80-member Assembly, attempted a few days after she took office last month to change rules on titles.

In past years, the titles "Assemblyman" and "Assemblywoman" were used on bills, but when male and female legislators co-authored a bill, they carried the common title "Assemblymen."

In December, the Assembly adopted her proposal to use "Assembly Members" for male and female co-authors, and retain "Assemblyman" and "Assemblywoman" in other cases.

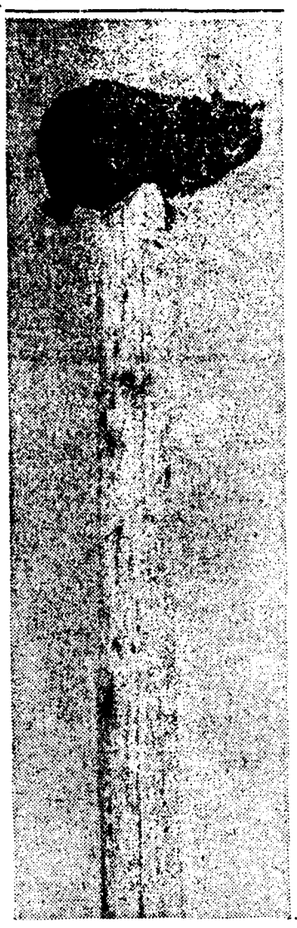

But a day after that resolution was adopted, the rule change was repealed.

Carter Still Stands Firm On Amnesty

WASHINGTON (AP) – President-elect Carter has told 106 House members that he will not reconsider his pledge to grant a general amnesty to Vietnam-era draft evaders as one of his first actions after becoming President, Rep. Charles Wilson, D-Tex., said Thursday night.

"I appreciate your comments asking me to reconsider my decision to issue a pardon for Vietnam draft evaders and am sorry we disagree on this matter," Wilson quoted Carter as saying in response to a letter from a group of Democratic and Republican representatives.

Rep. G.V. Montgomery, D-Miss., initiated the letter.

POLE CAT – Tiger, owned by Mr. and Mrs. Mitch Jurgens of Brandon, S.D., likes to be able to see around the family's farm. He doesn't know yet, but he'll lose his roost when the 12-foot pole is incorporated into a new barn.

South's Black Leaders Back Bell Nomination

WASHINGTON (AP) – Northern and Southern blacks are giving the Senate Judiciary Committee sharply contrasting assessments of the civil rights commitment of Griffin B. Bell, President-elect Carter's choice for attorney general.

With the committee in its fourth day of hearings, there was uncertainty about when members might reach a vote on whether to recommend Senate confirmation of Bell, an Atlanta lawyer and former judge on the 5th U.S. Circuit Court.

Two blacks from Atlanta, Warren Cochrane and Lonnie King, strongly backed Bell for the Cabinet post in testimony Thursday after Rep. Parren J. Mitchell, D-Md., chairman of the Congressional Black Caucus, and Clarence Mitchell, director of the Washington office of the NAACP, had urged his rejection.

King, a former president of the Atlanta chapter of the NAACP, testified that Bell has "the background, the capacity, and the commitment to be a superb attorney general."

And Cochrane, a former secretary of the Negro Voters League in Atlanta, said blacks will have "a real friend" as attorney general if Bell is confirmed by the Senate.

The two Mitchells, who are brothers, had told the committee that Bell, as a legal adviser to former Georgia Gov. Ernest Vandiver and later as a federal judge, had held out as long as he could against desegregation of public schools.

GRIFFIN BELL Meets Panel

Supporting this view was Joseph L. Rauh, Jr., testifying for the liberal Americans for Democratic Action. He said Bell, both as a lawyer and a judge, "gave aid and comfort to segregationists."

But former special Watergate prosecutor Leon Jaworski testified that he knew of no racial bias on Bell's part and that he had a good record on the federal bench.

James E. McKinney, a black Georgia state legislator, testified: "It hurts me to have to come here and say anything contrary to the NAACP. But I can't sit there and let them degrade Judge Bell."

A. Jay Cooper Jr., the black mayor of Pritchard, Ala., said he argued desegregation cases before Bell, who was "a judge who treated black lawyers with dignity and respect. We must move beyond the past if there is to be a biracial future for America. Judge Bell ... is committed to working toward that biracial future."

Jaworski said Bell "had the courage of his convictions and went right down the line in support of the rule of law" in the 1962 contempt case against former Mississippi Gov. Ross Barnett for trying to block the enrollment of James Meredith in the state university.

Later, Rauh said "what Mr. Jaworski forgot to tell you" was that Bell voted with the court majority in a 4 to 3 decision to let Barnett off without any penalty after Meredith was admitted as the first black at the university.

Much opposition to Bell has centered on his role as legal adviser to Vandiver, an avowed segregationist, elected as governor in 1958.

The Mitchell brothers and Rauh rejected Bell's testimony that he tried to be a moderating force and worked to convince Vandiver that, under rulings of the Supreme Court, he could not carry out his campaign commitment to keep Georgia schools segregated.

But Cochrane said Bell met secretly with Atlanta black leaders after Vandiver's election and kept them informed of what was going on in the governor's office. He said Bell told them he was trying to change Vandiver's stand and asked them to be a moderating influence.

Asked if Bell might have been delaying for Vandiver, Cochrane said he felt Bell was trying to play fair with the black community. "We had to delay. The times called for it," Cochrane said. "We were afraid of confrontation, of chaos."

He also credited Bell with bringing about creation of a commission that for the first time brought Georgia blacks and whites together to discuss the change from segregated to integrated schools.

ACCEPTS FELLOWSHIP

Ford Plans Sessions At Yale University

WASHINGTON (AP) – President Ford will take part in a series of classes and informal meetings with students and faculty at Yale University early next month, the White House announced Thursday.

A spokesman said Ford, who leaves office a week from today, has accepted a Visiting Chubb Fellowship at the university's Timothy Dwight College and will be on the campus Feb. 6-8.

Ford will participate in a series of meetings with history and law classes, informal sessions with students and discussions with faculty members.

The Chubb Fellowship program, which was established in 1936, is devoted to encouraging and aiding students interested in the operations of government and public service careers.

Previous fellows include President Harry S. Truman, former Secretary of State Dean Acheson and former British Prime Ministers Clement Attlee and Edward Heath.

The White House also announced two other post-presidential plans for Ford.

On Jan. 27 he and Mrs. Ford will attend the seventh annual Vince Lombardi Award dinner in Houston. The dinner is a benefit for the American Cancer Society.

Ford will speak and will present the Lombardi Award honoring the collegiate football lineman of the year.

On Feb. 9 to 13, Ford will play in the annual Bob Hope Desert Golf Classic in Palm Springs, Calif.

Previously it had been announced that Ford will play in two other golf tournaments, the Bing Crosby Classic in Pebble Beach, Calif., next week and the Jackie Gleason tournament in Lauderhill.

CUT YOUR OWN TAXES – 6

Tax Options Vary On Sale Of Homes

By RAY DE CRANE

The gain on the sale of a home by someone under 65 may or may not be immediately taxable. It depends on what you do with the proceeds.

But the loss on a home sale is never deductible on your federal income tax return.

If you purchase a replacement home whose cost is equal to or greater than the adjusted selling price of the home sold, the tax on the gain is deferred. It is not forgiven; it is delayed to a later day.

This, then, calls for a second step. The deferred gain is subtracted from the cost price of the replacement home, producing what is called an adjusted basis.

When that second home is sold for more than the adjusted basis there is a gain. Of course, you can continue stepping up to more expensive housing, pushing ahead further the eventual day of reckoning.

If you sell at a gain and do not buy another home, but, instead, move into rented quarters, the suspense is over. Whatever your gain, over your total investment in the property, it is immediately taxable. If you owned the property for longer than six months, it is treated as a long-term capital gain and only half of it is taxable.

There is also the possibility you sold at a profit and then bought a replacement home whose cost was less than the adjusted selling price of home No. 1.

In this case you could have both an immediate gain and a deferred gain.

The immediate taxable gain is either the actual gain on the sale or, if it produces a smaller amount, the difference between the adjusted selling price of home No. 1 and the cost price of home No. 2.

If there is still gain remaining after subtracting that difference from the gain realized on the sale, it is treated as a deferred gain. Subtract that amount from the cost basis of home No. 2, giving you a different starting point on that home in the event of a future sale.

In Thursday's tax story, the fourth and fifth paragraphs had words missing. They should have read:

"Let's assume you sold your home for an adjusted selling price of $40,000 and realized a $10,000 profit. How much of that $10,000 is taxable?

"You divide $20,000 by $40,000 and get 50 per cent. So 50 per cent of the $10,000 is free of tax. The other $5,000 is taxable. Since it will be reported on Schedule D as a long-term capital gain only half of the gain, or $2,500, will eventually be taxed."

The Register regrets the error.

Boy Ticking, Not Kidding, Gulped Watch

HENDERSON, Ky. (AP) – After 28½ hours, Chris Cleveland's stomach has quit ticking.

The noise came from a watch which surgeons removed from the 12-year-old youngster on Wednesday.

The watch, minus its band, wouldn't have been there so long if Chris could have convinced his parents, John and Tina Cleveland, that he had swallowed it.

"That boy is just like I am. He's an inveterate joker," said his father, recalling that Chris informed him Tuesday morning "he had swallowed the watch."

Cleveland, thinking his son was joking, took him sledding with a number of other boys in the neighborhood.

That evening, Chris began to feel feverish and managed to persuade his mother that he was telling the truth about the watch, with a diameter the size of a quarter.

FDA Plans To Test 2,100 Food Additives For Safety

WASHINGTON (AP) – The Food and Drug Administration said Thursday it plans to begin testing all 2,100 food additives now on the market to assure their safety. A consumer activist immediately condemned the program as a means for buying time while consumers remain exposed to dangerous chemicals.

Acting FDA Commissioner Sherwin Gardner announced the new tests in testimony to a Senate committee headed by Gaylord Nelson, D-Wis. Nelson has criticized FDA for allowing some chemical food additives to remain on the market after scientists have linked them to cancer and other diseases.

Gardner said all preservatives, colors, flavors and substances that may get into food from packaging will undergo scientific re-evaluation beginning in March. "Science is dynamic and a food additive judged safe by the science of 1970 may very will be suspect by the science of 1977," he said.

He said that profiles on each of the food additives will be established within 18 months and FDA may then restrict use of some additives or remove them from the market.

Nelson did not comment on the announcement, which began on page 21 of Gardner's written testimony. The FDA commissioner had read only 18 pages of his testimony when Nelson asked him to make way for the next witness.

However, the next witness, Dr. Sidney Wolfe, director of Ralph Nader's Health Research Group, attacked the FDA action. "The FDA is buying time and allowing more and more consumption of chemicals that may be dangerous."

He accused the agency of "protecting the food industry, instead of protecting the public" and said chemicals should be taken off the market as soon as there is scientific doubt about their safety.

TO SAVE 70 MILLION LIVES

Nuclear Evacuation Plan Eyed

WASHINGTON (AP) – Federal Civil Defense officials say about 70 million American lives could be saved by evacuating 400 "high-risk" areas before any threatened nuclear missile attack.

Planning for such an emergency evacuation will soon start in all 50 states following completion of pilot projects in eight areas.

Officials of the Pentagon's Civil Preparedness Agency believe that state and local planning, supported by federal funds, can produce a stand-by evacuation blueprint within five years.

The program is called "crisis relocation." It is based on the premise that the inhabitants of prime target communities can be moved to safer, lightly populated areas during rising international tension expected to precede any outbreak of war.

The 400 high-risk areas are urban-industrial centers and areas around military bases.

Pilot studies were conducted in Utica-Rome, N.Y., Dover, Del., Macon, Ga., Duluth, Minn., Oklahoma City, Colorado Springs, Tucson, Ariz., and Great Falls, Mont.

Officials estimate the planning will cost about $45 million to $50 million. They have no idea of the potential cost of an actual emergency relocation. The states would be expected to share the financial burden.

The Council of State Governments is exploring questions of funding a population evacuation and what new laws and executive orders may be required at the federal and state levels.

According to calculations by federal specialists, about 80 million persons out of a total U.S. population of about 215 million would be likely to survive any Soviet missile attack if there were a civil defense program.

An additional 30 million persons could be saved by taking refuge in nuclear fall-out shelters in the target areas, the specialists say.

Congress alloted $82.5 million for civil defense this year and the Ford administration's final defense budget is expected to propose an increase of only about $5 million next year.

Some Pentagon officials and members of Congress claim that the U.S. civil defense program is too small. They have expressed concern about what they claim is a massive Soviet civil defense effort. In their view, this could leave the U.S. population more vulnerable than the Russian people and undermine mutual deterrence of nuclear attack.

However, Defense Secretary-designate Harold Brown is on record as doubting that the Russians actually are engaged in a large-scale civil defense program. Brown also has indicated he is skeptical that such a program would give the Russians a significant strategic advantage.

FROM MILITARY

Tougher Laws Asked To Curb Gun Thefts

WASHINGTON (AP) – As a Senate subcommittee probing links between drugs and weapons smuggling across the U.S. Mexico border heard secret testimony, a Texas lawmaker called on Thursday for tougher controls to curb the theft of weapons from U.S. military installations.

Sen. Lloyd Bentsen, D-Tex., said there was evidence to indicate that large numbers of arms stolen from the military had been traded for drugs from Mexico.

The Senate investigations subcommittee is looking into possible links between the drug and arms traffic and also is trying to determine whether weapons smuggled from the United States are being delivered to terrorists or revolutionaries.

The heads of three law enforcement agencies, testifying in open session, disagreed about the extent to which the arms traffic might be tied to the flow of narcotics into the United States.

Vernon D. Acree, director of the Customs Service, said his agency had worked with the FBI on the question of military arms thefts and had obtained no "concrete evidence" to show that weapons were being smuggled to Mexico.

But Bentsen said U.S. law enforcement agencies had given him "example after example of cases which smugglers in Mexico have exchanged drugs for stolen U.S. military weapons," and that U.S. agents have documented plans by a subversive Mexican organization to trade marijuana for automatic weapons.

Bentsen cited Pentagon reports that more than 10,000 weapons have been stolen from military installations in the last decade, a loss he said was actually much higher because many thefts are written off as inventory errors without investigation.

The senator proposes a bill to tighten control of weapons by setting up a central Pentagon security office, improving inventory procedures and requiring closer coordination between law enforcement and military officials.

"If stolen arms are being provided revolutionary groups in Mexico – and there is evidence that they are – then it is a threat not only to the people of that country but also to the U.S., and it is a threat we must work together to solve," Bentsen said.

The subcommittee headed by Sen. Sam Nunn, D-Ga., closed its doors after hearing testimony from Acree and the heads of the Drug Enforcement Agency and the Treasury Department's bureau of Alcohol, Tobacco and Firearms.

Those officials were scheduled to testify further in closed session, but committee sources would not divulge any details of their testimony nor that of other witnesses.

The only other witnesses identified as scheduled to appear in the secret session were Lt. Booth Shaw, a Los Angeles police officer who figured in the alleged attempt by narcotics smuggling ring to buy weapons for antigovernment activities in Latin America, and David Williams, identified as a former DEA informer who is now under indictment in New Mexico for bank robbery and murder.

4th Man Given Life Sentence In Slaying Of 2

SANTA ANA – Thomas Frank Dunker, 29, of Long Beach, was sentenced to life in prison Thursday for the double "execution style" slaying of a Sunset Beach couple in November 1975.

He joins three other men already serving life terms for their involvement in the murders of Ronald Cauwels, 27, and Janet Mae Metz.

The couple was gunned down on Nov. 8, 1975 by eight men who stormed into Cauwels' plush apartment. The raid was allegedly to recover $20,000 worth of marijuana which Cauwels reportedly had stolen a week earlier.

Seven other persons drew lighter sentences for their roles in the killings.

Cauwels was killed by a single bullet to the head. Mrs. Metz' body was raked by machine gun fire.

Dunker pleaded guilty to one count of first degree murder, one count of second degree murder and one count of conspiracy to commit armed robbery. Superior Court Judge Robert P. Kneeland ordered that he served all sentences concurrently.

EARLY 'LIVING WILLS' REJECTED

Assemblyman Barry Keene, D-Eureka, who wrote the controversial bill signed three months ago by Gov. Edmund Brown Jr., authored the follow-up bill.

He said "several dozen, perhaps several hundred" persons executed wills between the time Brown signed the measure in October and the effective date Jan. 1. He added they didn't understand the delay before the bill became law.

The law allows persons to write instructions that if they are terminally ill, life-sustaining procedures which artificially keep them alive should be unplugged.

Keene said there are serious legal questions about possible prosecution of a doctor who in good faith followed instructions in a living will that later found to be invalid because it was written before the legislation took effect.

"Anyone who was opposed to the original legislation should be opposed to this," said Assemblyman Alister McAlister, D-San Jose.

Keene's followup bill died on a 37-32 ballot. It requires 54 votes. Keene said he would try to revive the measure next week.

It is AB 14.

Bolles Case Judge Becomes Ill

TUCSON, Ariz. (AP) – Jury selection in the trial of a man charged with killing Arizona Republic reporter Don Bolles was stopped short four jurors short of completion Thursday when the judge became ill.

Pima County Superior Court Judge Ben Birdsall, after interviewing six potential jurors and impaneling four of them, said he had a fever and was going to see a doctor.

Birdsall said he hoped the selection process, which began Dec. 30, would be completed today. But he said if he remains ill, he will conduct a Saturday session to finish seating the jury.

The judge has said he wants to start testimony in the case against John Harvey Adamson on Monday. Adamson, 33, is charged with murder in the June car bombing death of Bolles. Among the jurors selected Thursday was the mother of a newspaper reporter who covers superior court here. She said her daughter's occupation would not enter into the verdict.

Others selected were a fire department paramedic, a junior high school teacher and a woman who owns an arts and crafts shop.

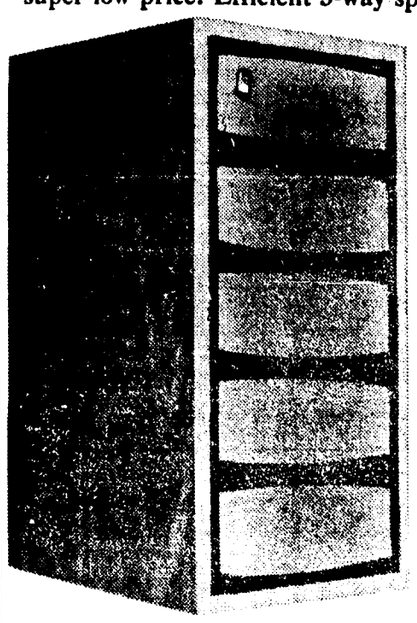

Thirty-seven jurors must be impaneled before the defense and prosecution can eliminate 10 each. That process, expected to take one-half day, will cut the panel to 12 regular jurors and five alternates.

Once testimony begins, the jury will be sequestered for an estimated four weeks while evidence is presented, Birdsall has decided.

Keep Sleepwear Labels For Safety

The U.S. Consumer Product Safety Commission has asked makers of children's sleepwear to stop using coarse or abrasive materials in care labels for these flame-retardant garments.

Concern was voiced that labels which might be irritating to children's skin could lead parents to remove them, thus eliminating manufacturers' instructions, causing the sleepwear to be improperly laundered and to lose its flame-retardancy.

Stout-Hearted Wanted For 'Epic Journey'

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — If you go rubber-legged at the sight of deadly snakes, have trouble dealing with cannibalistic natives or get the shivers at the first frost, Bill Barriere doesn't want you.

He wants 20 stout-hearted people willing to risk their lives on his 13,000-mile "epic journey" from frigid Point Barrow, Alaska, to Punta Arenas, Chile.

And his ads, placed in a number of West Coast newspapers, make no bones about that: "Expedition seeks men for hazardous journey — bitter cold — torrid heat — long months of constant danger — your only consolation, honor and recognition, in case of success."

Barriere, a 40-year-old former Palm Springs waiter, claims 2,500 persons have applied but only four Americans have come up to his standards. The expedition members will need $15,000 in the bank, prior training in jungle and tundra survival and the psychological and physical makeup to handle a seven-month ordeal.

Applicants are screened through a 15-page form that includes some hypothetical questions like:

"Supposing you became lost in the Darien jungle of Panama where malaria is everywhere, bandits abide, smugglers shoot strangers on sight and the jungle is so intense that you may not make more than 500 feet headway a day ... What would you do?"

This grand thinker is 5-5 and 140 pounds and lists among his qualifications wanderings through a dozen countries and tiger hunting in Southeast Asia. He says he has been organizing the journey for 2½ years.

The tangible goals are to be the "first, across the Western Hemisphere by land from top to bottom, using jeeps, dog sleds, canoes; first from the Arctic to the Antarctic Ocean by land; first to cross the Pan American Highway in its entirety...

Barriere said in a recent interview the trek originally was planned as a Bicentennial tribute, but now is planned for September or October.

And why do it? "Why – it's every man's dream," he replied.

Insomnia Cause

The insomnia sufferer is usually a person who keeps an emotional problem bottled up during waking hours, according to researchers at the Sleep Research and Treatment Cent, Hershey, Pa.

Funds Urged For 'Citizens' Voice' In Policy

WASHINGTON (AP) – A congressionally chartered committee has recommended that the government subsidize public interest organizations to give citizens a greater voice in making national policy.

"The government should provide direct financial assistance to those groups which cannot afford to participate fully on their own," the Advisory Committee on National Growth Processes said.

The recommendation, one of several being submitted to Congress as the result of a one-year, $250,000 study, drew dissents from four of the committee's 19 members.

John W. Gardner, chairman of the citizen organization Common Cause, said such subsidies "could easily create a class of kept critics."

Other members dissenting were Roger S. Ahlbrandt, chairman of Allegheny-Ludlum Industries Corp.; Herbert Stein, a professor at the University of Virginia, and Eric A. Walker, president emeritus of Pennsylvania State University.

The committee also recommended:

– Establishing a National Growth and Development Commission empowered to make recommendations to which the president and Congress would be required to respond.

– Expanding the president's annual economic report to include such things as suggestions on how Congress might respond to actions taken by independent regulatory agencies.

– Creating a Center for Statistical Policy and Analysis, with 250 technicians and analysts, to collect and interpret economic data.

– Giving party leaders and caucuses in Congress a larger role in determining the congressional response to proposals by the president.

– Requiring that each bill emerging from a congressional committee carry a statement of its long-range effects, even on "regions or segments of our society that are not explicit objects of the legislation."

– Extending federal budgets over several years instead of one year as they now do.

– Establishing a national grain stockpile to stabilize supplies, assure orderly markets and curb speculation.

The committee's report was submitted to Congress, but only partially endorsed, by its parent group, the National Commission on Supplies and Shortages.

The commission said it had reservations about the proposed National Growth and Development Commission and believed the proposed Center for Statistical and Policy Analysis was not feasible. The commission took no position on the recommendation for subsidies to public interest groups.

Reward Posted To Catch SF Pet Poisoner

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) – A reward is posted for the arrest and conviction of a killer of dogs in "the worst attempt here of mass poisoning of pets that we can remember."

A spokesman for the Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals said this week a search of the the Sunset district uncovered some 30 hamburger patties heavily dosed with deadly strychnine.

Four dogs, a mixed breed, schnauzer, dalmatian and malamute, have suffered horrible deaths from strychnine this week, the SPCA said.

The latest was the mixed breed, a puppy named Baco, whose death Tuesday was mourned by the Rodezno family.

"My son Frank was sick when he heard about it," said Elena Rodezno, his mother. "I cried so much. It was terrible, a horrible death."

The poisoned patties were found in an area bordering Sunset Boulevard and 36th Avenue, the SPCA said, announcing a $250 reward for the arrest and conviction of the poisoner.

SPCA officials said notices of the offer which were pinned up in the neighborhood have been torn down..

"In my experience, there's never been a similar attempt here of mass execution of pets," said Richard Avanzino, local SPCA president.

Some of the dogs killed were on leashes being walked by their owners when the animals found the hamburger. Soon afterward, they showed extreme nervousness, grew stiff, salivated heavily and went into convulsions.

Last September, one dog was killed and 10 others sickened from poisoned meat scattered in the same area.

Avanzino said an anonymous caller telephoned the SPCA, warning that the poisonings would continue if "owners let their dogs run loose."

The time to think at the bridge table is when it is up to you to find the right play and not after you have thrown the contract out the window.

South was delighted with the heart lead and when East let dummy's queen hold, he wasted no time playing a low heart from his own hand. Then he was ready to do his thinking, but it was too late. The contract had found its way to that point in space from which there is no return.

Just a little thought before playing from his own hand at trick one and South would see that if he played his ace of hearts there would be a sure entry to dummy.

Then he could lead the king of diamonds, overtake with dummy's ace and lead the jack of diamonds.

West would win with the queen. He could lead a second heart or a spade or a club. It wouldn't make any difference. South would have time to knock out East's king of hearts and wind up with two spades, two hearts, five diamonds and the smile of a Cheshire cat.

DOES BELIEF IN SANTA HURT LITTLE CHILDREN?

By Abigail Van Buren

© 1977 by Chicago Tribune-N.Y. News Synd. Inc.

DEAR ABBY: Is there a way my child can enjoy the fun of believing in Santa Claus and the Easter Bunny without being lied to?

It doesn't seem fair to tell a trusting child such lies, and yet I hate to deprive him of the pleasure of fantasizing about these make-believe characters.

My son is still a wee baby, and I hate lying to him, knowing that one day he'll learn the truth and wonder how many others things I lied about.

DEBBIE

DEAR DEBBIE: Childhood fantasies are not only fun for children, but also useful aids in developing healthy imaginations and creativity. If you tell your child from the start that Santa, The Easter Bunny (and don't forget the Tooth Fairy) are all make-believe characters, they won't feel deceived when they learn the truth.

The mistake most parents make is to insist that these imaginary characters actually exist after the child has questioned their authenticity.

DEAR ABBY: This may read like a soap opera, but every word is true.

I am 17 and for two years I dated a certain boy. We loved each other very much and even planned to marry some day.

Last spring we had a terrible fight when I discovered he had dated someone behind my back. We said some awful things to each other, and I told him I never wanted to see him again.

Three days later he signed up for the Air Force and started dating another girl. Before leaving for the service they announced their wedding plans. He left without even saying goodby.

Six months later he wrote me, saying that regardless of his plans, he could not forget me or what we meant to each other. (Lord knows, I've never forgotten him!)

I'm heartbroken about his engagement and want so much to write back and tell him so. My friends insist that his is marrying the girl on the rebound. Even his family was stunned by his announcement.

Abby, what should I do? Should I keep quiet and preserve my pride? Or should I speak the truth, even though it may be worth nothing?

TORN

DEAR TORN: Common courtesy demands that you answer the letter. I see no harm in writing truthfully about the depth of your feelings for this "certain boy." But the next move must be his.

DEAR ABBY: Our parents have been asking us what we want for our birthdays. (We're twins.) O.K., you tell them for us, Abby. Other kids might like the same "present."

Dear Mom and Dad: We would like you both to quit smoking, for your sake and ours. Here are our reasons.

First, there's a good chance you'll get cancer, and we love you too much for that. Second, the smoke bothers us, especially when you sit by us watching TV or at the dinner table. Third, nothing in our home smells clean and fresh. The stale scent of smoke is everywhere. Fourth, smoking gives you bad breath, and we find ourselves holding our breaths when we kiss you hello and goodby.

We hope you understand that we love you and are not asking this just for ourselves.

RAPE-KIDNAPING TRIAL

Open Session For Sanity Hearing

BY LARRY WELBORN
Register Staff Writer

SANTA ANA – The long-delayed sanity hearing for Kenneth R. Hulbert, charged with the rape-slaying of a Whittier housewife a year ago, is scheduled to begin Jan. 24 if there are no further problems.

The way was cleared Thursday when the California Supreme Court declined to hear a motion filed by Hulbert's attorney to close the sanity hearing to the public and the press.

Public defender Walter Zech had appealed a decision by Superior Court Judge William S. Lee to keep the hearing open, but his appeals were denied by the 4th District Court of Appeal, and, on Thursday, the Supreme Court.

Zech had claimed that publicity during the sanity hearing would damage Hulbert's right to a fair trial, and would also violate the attorney-client privilege.

Judge Lee, who will preside over what is expected to be a four-to-six week hearing, urged Zech to attempt to begin his case Jan. 17, but the public defender said he needed extra time to contact psychiatrists who have examined the 24-year-old Hulbert.

Lee also indicated there may be problems with the jury, which was originally sworn in late in November. He said at least one juror has asked to be relieved because of a change in job status, and others may also ask to be dismissed because of the many delays.

Lee said his clerk will canvass the jurors today to determine if additional jurors must be selected.

Prosecutor Frank Briseno and Zech said there is a possibility that the entire original jury will be dismissed if enough individual jurors say they cannot serve. Selection of the present jury took approximately one week in mid-November. The possible selection of a second jury may push the trial date back once again.

The two attorneys said there is also the possibility that only one or two new jurors may be selected to fill spots vacated by those asking to be dismissed from the original panel.

The sanity hearing is to determine if Hulbert of Fullerton is mentally able to stand trial. Zech has contended that his client is unable to understand the proceedings and is unable to aid in his own defense.

Hulbert is accused in a 14-count grand jury indictment with rape attacks on three women in December 1975 and January 1976. Those attacks included one against Gina Marie Tisher, 19, of Whittier. Her body was discovered a few days later in the back seat of her car, which was abandoned in a Fullerton apartment parking lot. She had been strangled.

He also is charged with kidnaping, raping, robbing and beating a Fullerton College coed, who was left for dead in a ditch in the south county area. The woman survived.

A Los Angeles Grand Jury also has indicted Hulbert for rape attacks in Los Angeles area on six other women.

Hulbert was arrested Jan. 30, 1976 after Fullerton police were given information by his girl friend. The girl friend later married Hulbert in the Orange County jail.

Carter Choice For HEW Post Abortion Foe

WASHINGTON (AP) – Joseph A. Califano Jr., secretary-designate of Health, Education and Welfare, told the Senate Thursday he believes abortion is wrong and federal funds should not be spent to give women abortions if they want them.

Under pointed questioning by Sen. Bob Packwood, R-Ore., before the Senate Finance Committee, Califano said he would oppose a constitutional amendment to outlaw abortions but would also oppose using Medicaid or National Health Insurance funds to pay for them.

He insisted that despite his personal conviction he would enforce the law on abortion as enacted by Congress or interpreted by the courts.

Dissidents Fare Worse In Russia, Group Says

VIENNA, Austria (AP) – The Soviet Union has convicted at least 90 dissidents since signing the supposedly liberating Helsinki accords in 1975 and is increasingly applying new techniques of political persecution, Amnesty International said Thursday.

The Austrian section of the international human rights organization said the techniques include harassment of political prisoners, reprisals against friends and relatives and false criminal charges lodged in order to bring political cases into criminal courts.

The group's latest report said that in addition to those convicted, at least 15 completely sane persons have been examined in mental hospitals or have been declared insane and sent to institutions since the Helsinki agreement was signed on Aug. 1, 1975.

The accords, signed by President Ford and the heads of 34 other nations, were a major step in East-West detente. They ratified the post-World War II boundaries of Europe, tacitly recognizing Soviet control of Eastern Europe, in exchange for nonbinding promises of greater civil liberties for Russians and East Europeans.

The Amnesty International report said the Soviets maintain the convicted dissidents were guilty of "anti-Soviet agitation and propaganda" and spreading slanderous information.

The human rights group said spectacular releases of Soviet dissidents such as that of Vladimir Bukovsky could not change the fact that hundreds of others, gravely ill, were still in jail and thousands more were deprived of their freedom, penalized or harassed because they exercised their constitutional right of freedom of opinion.

Bukovsky, who became known in the West for exposing the Soviet practice of putting dissidents in mental institutions, has criticized the Western policy of detente as "positively murderous" for the human rights movement in the Soviet Union.

"All this East-West trade is paid for in our blood," the 34-year-old biologist reportedly told the London Times last weekend.

Bukovsky was freed from a Soviet prison camp and flown to the West last month in exchange for Chile's release of Communist party chief Luis Corvalan, who is now in the Soviet Union.

Exiled Russian author Alexander Solzhenitsyn has said on British television that detente and the "spirit of Helsinki" have brought more totalitarianism to the Soviet Union.

New Solons Hold Mixed Views On Tax Paid 'Conveniences'

WASHINGTON (AP) – Seventy-seven men and two women are now eligible to borrow tax-nurtured potted plants, receive free outpatient medical care and use a swimming pool in the building where they work.

The reason: they were sworn in last week as members of Congress.

Interviews with a sampling of the freshman lawmakers indicate they have a mixed reaction to the perquisites of a member of Congress, which also include such things as loans of government-owned art reproductions.

Rep. John J. Cavanaugh, D-Neb., sees the taxpayer-supplied favors as "a danger to any person who comes here, and a danger to which many succumb.

"As the pressures mount on your time, these conveniences become necessities and you can come to view it as almost a natural right that you should have a special parking place, a special elevator and be deferred to all the time," said Cavanaugh, a 30-year-old former state legislator. "Unless you are able to keep things in perspective, you can lose sight of the effect of your legislative actions and of inflation on people."

Rep. Robert K. Dornan, R-Calif., also expressed reservations about the fringe benefits of office.

"Congress will never discipline itself, so the president should appoint a no-nonsense committee, which accurately describes to the taxpayers exactly how bad the situation is and then test the constitutionality of an executive order putting a lid on growth of privileges," Dornan said.

But Rep. Norm Dicks, D-Wash., took a different view: "I don't think it's going to change my own perspective or view on things."

Dicks, a former University of Washington football player, especially defended the House and Senate gymnasiums, which are complete with steam rooms, swimming pools and saunas. Women have a separate facility but use the men's pool.

"People who try to stay fit are going to do a better job, and there is a real vacuum of places to get exercise in Washington," Dicks said. "The only thing they've got is a kind of old broken down YMCA."

Tennessee's new Democratic Sen. James Sasser agreed. "I don't think the minor emoluments of office are going to turn my head," he said.

These emoluments include outpatient medical care by Capitol physicians; foreign travel for stated official purposes, with wives often going along for "protocol reasons" and funeral expenses for members who die in office.

Only members of the congressional leadership are entitled to their own chauffeured limousines, but Senate Sergeant-at-Arms Nordy Hoffman told senators-elect at a pre-session meeting to "just call my office" if they needed one.

"We might use it if it is the most expeditious way to get official business done," said Sen. Harrison H. Schmitt, R-N.M. Schmitt, a former astronaut, said officials he knew in the National Aeronautics and Space Administration "used the limousine as a way to get work done away from the telephone."

For some lawmakers who are veterans of public office, coming to Congress will actually mean giving up some of their tax-paid privileges.

Take Democratic Sen. Wendell Anderson for instance. As governor of Minnesota, he had his own chauffeured car and lived in an official residence, all paid for by the state.

By succeeding Vice President-elect Walter Mondale in the Senate, Anderson gave all this up and will have to drive to and from his Washington apartment in his own station wagon.

But Anderson can borrow reproductions from the National Gallery of Art at no cost to hang in his office, get free plants from the U.S. Botanical Gardens for office use and perhaps have his hair cut free.

Senate Secretary Francis Valeo said the long-standing practice of free trims in the Senate barber shop, where each member has his own private shaving mug, may be discontinued. If so, he said, senators will have to pay the going rate.

Under a federal law all members of Congress, regardless of age, are entitled, along with other federal employes, to $45,000 worth of life insurance for $321 per year. They become vested in the federal pension plan after five years.

Both these provisions drew the fire of newly elected Sen. Dennis DeConcini, D-Ariz.

"I am taking advantage of them because they are there, but I would vote to take them away," DeConcini said. He said both programs should be made comparable with those in private industry.

DeConcini also argued that the subsidized Senate dining room should raise its prices and "run on a profit basis or very close to it."

None of the lawmakers contacted, regardless of their views, said they planned to turn any of the benefits down.

"After all," said Cavanaugh, "I would find it difficult not to ride in the members' elevator or not to park in the members' parking lot."

Grand Jury Blasts Camarillo Hospital

VENTURA (AP) – The grand jury that indicted eight Camarillo State Hospital employes in patient deaths Thursday issued a report criticizing the facility for a lack of qualified nursing care, weak leadership and the "ominous" overuse of drugs.

The result of a three-week investigation last November into unexplained patient deaths the report included a list of specific recommendations. Without better care, said the report, "there is just pretense and the facility becomes only a warehouse with warehouse staff."

The nine-page report also reaffirmed the jury's belief that all eight persons indicted – three doctors and five psychiatric technicians – had "crossed the line into gross negligence and criminal behavior." Ventura County Dist. Atty. C. Stanley Trom has, however, dismissed charges against four of the eight.

Camarillo's executive director, Clinton Rust, responded to the report by saying "we appreciate their suggestions and we agree with many if not all of them...we are on the same wave length."

Rust, who took over the post Nov. 1 and thus was not director during the four years covered in the jury's probe, said action had already been taken in many areas mentioned in the report.

A total of 54 cases of unexplained deaths were presented to the 16-member jury by the district attorney's office, which carried out an investigation lasting more than a year.

"No part of this investigation seems more ominous than the use of drugs," said the report. "The evidence discloses what we believe to be the general indiscriminate use of (tranquilizer) drugs."

Rust said that Camarillo physicians had been ordered to stop prescribing psychotropic drugs in combinations, and that a pharmacology training course for physicians had been given.

The most serious deficiency at the hospital "seems to be the need for real quality nursing care," said the report.

Gov. Brown has approved the hiring of an additional 700 nursing personnel at the 11 state mental hospitals, and Rust said about 93 of them would be hired for Camarillo. In addition, said the administrator, Camarillo has begun an "aggressive" recruitment program.

"We note a lack of real, formal leadership and direction," said the report, "and we are not impressed with the administration at the hospital as it has unfolded in the testimony. There seems to be no plan, controls, feedback or evaluation."

Rust said an Office of Program Review has already been directed to suggest steps for improvement.

Rust spoke in an interview in which he said the hospital's one-year certification by a national accreditation agency had run out and the hospita had not yet applied for a new one.

Strict Super Tanker Safety Rules Urged

TALLAHASSEE, Fla. (AP) – A federal agreement requiring strict safety precautions on super tankers using the Gulf of Mexico should serve as a model for the entire country, Florida Atty. Gen. Robert Shevin says.

He announced Thursday that U.S. Transportation Secretary William Coleman has agreed to impose the strict safety standards sought by Florida officials when he licenses offshore supertanker ports for Louisiana and Texas.

In return, Shevin said, the state has agreed to halt its suit against Coleman. Florida officials went to court after Coleman rejected their call for stricter safety standards on super tankers in the Gulf.

Shevin outlined these key safety requirements that Coleman agreed to impose in licensing the two proposed deepwater ports:

– A 15-year phase-in of compartments for holding wastes normally dumped into the sea. Coast Guard regulations prohibit emptying the tanks within 50 miles of the coast but are frequently violated.

– Improved navigation and safety equipment on the super tankers.

– Two sets of engines on the tankers to provide a back up in case the main engine fails.

– Oil discharge and control systems.

Shevin said that Coleman, who is expected to license the offshore Gulf of Mexico ports next week, agreed to impose the requirements before the ports are completed. Shevin said it would take about four years to build the offshore ports.

Board Probing Tanker Sinking Off East Coast

BOSTON (AP) – As the Coast Guard begins hearings on why one tanker broke up off New England, it is saying another wreck might still hold 1.3 million gallons of heavy fuel oil after all.

A board of investigators convened today to look into the sinking of the empty 281-foot Chester A. Poling off Gloucester on Monday, a sinking that resulted in the loss of one man of the crew of eight.

A spokesman said the hearing was not designed to assess blame but to try to find facts that might prevent similar accidents.

Meanwhile, Rear Adm James P. Stewart told a news conference Thursday it had not been determined exactly how much oil remained aboard the 641-foot Argo Merchant, which broke up on Dec. 22 on Nantucket Shoals.

Divers who have visited the wreck reported there might be some oil aboard, the admiral said.

The Coast Guard said at the time she spilled the entire cargo of 7.6 million gallons of heavy No. 6 oil into the Atlantic.

The bow section of the Liberian-flag vessel had to be sunk by gunfire later.

Adm. Stewart, who is commander of the 1st Coast Guard District, said at a news conference officials had considered detonating the oil or heating it and drawing it into barges. Getting the oil out of the sunken bow into barges would be extremely difficult because of strong currents.

Whatever is done should be done before Feb. 15, when the fish spawning season on Georges Bank some 150 miles to the east begins, he said.

Oil Ship Leak In NY Harbor Quickly Halted

NEW YORK (AP) – A possible catastrophe in New York Harbor was averted when a Liberian-registered tanker carrying 25 million gallons of oil sprung a leak that was stopped after only about 50 gallons escaped.

The master of the 875-foot Harmonic told the Coast Guard Thursday that his vessel had been battered by 90-foot waves en route here and the heavy seas could have caused a seam to split.

Fearing a huge spill like those caused by other Liberian-registered tankers along the coast in recent weeks, the Coast Guard rushed oil-containing equipment to the ship's anchorage in Gravesend Bay.

A sheen of oil spread across the water, and first estimates were that 300 gallons had escaped, but the Coast Guard later revised the estimate downward.

Two barges were brought alongside the tanker to begin taking off her oil, and a private cleanup contractor was called in to remove the oil from the bay.

Brazilian Farmer Hoards Coffee Beans For Higher Price

(EDITOR'S NOTE – Amid reports of a sharp drop in the world's coffee supply, one farmer who escaped the 1975 frost that killed a large part of the crop in Brazil has more than a million pounds of coffee beans stored in a barn. He has no plans to sell now, even with prices at record-high levels. The following dispatch tells why.

ASSAI, Brazil (AP) – On Julio Koguishi's 1,000-acre coffee plantation here a weatherbeaten wooden barn with a rusty metal hinge holds 8,000 bags of unhusked coffee beans.

Each bag weighs 60.5 kilograms – 133.1 pounds each or 1,064,800 pounds in all – and at current prices the beans, grown in 1975, are worth about $1.92 million on the world market.

If he sold his coffee, Koguishi would receive $830,400 after taxes, insurance, freight and handling, but not including labor and other costs that run him $71,500 a year.

Koguishi is not selling.

"I'll wait until the price goes up," said the 43-year-old son of Japanese immigrants.

Unlike other farmers in this area, stricken by Brazil's worst frost 18 months ago, Koguishi continues to grow coffee. Other farmers, fearing another frost, have planted wheat and soybeans. The valleys here in Parana State were once the pride of Brazil's coffee industry but there is little coffee now.

"Coffee will come back here some day," Koguishi said. "It will take time but it will come back. It's the only way we Brazilians can make any money."

The Brazilian government says it has no idea how many farmers are holding back coffee as Koguishi is doing. But whenever the tax goes up on coffee exports, as it has in Brazil, more and more farmers hold back supplies to await higher prices, according to trade experts.

Experts in London, a coffee-trading center, say there is a shortage of top-quality coffees such as those grown in Brazil but normal supplies of low-quality types. These experts attribute the upsurge in coffee prices, up to $3 a pound in the United States, to the Brazilian frost that killed 70 per cent of the nation's two billion coffee trees.

Koguishi estimates his average annual gross income over the past 10 years from coffee sales to be $115,500 with a net of $44,000.

What about the $1.92 million worth of coffee in the barn?

Under Brazil's system of coffee export taxes, increased more than 300 per cent since the frost in July 1975, Koguishi is prevented from realizing the full value of the coffee's skyrocketing world price. For every bag he now exports for $240 he must pay the government $100. Before the frost this export tax was only $30.

In addition to the export tax there is a merchandise tax, amounting to $30 a bag, freight and bagging costs of $1.20 per bag, and a social security contribution for rural farm workers of $5 a bag. That leaves Koguishi with $103.80 – less labor and other costs – for each of the bags he has stored in his barn.

He said he thinks they will soon be worth more than the 80 cents or so a pound he now gets after taxes and handling costs.

"There's a world shortage," he added. "Demand is greater than supply and nothing is going to stop that price from going up."

Koguishi sells his coffee through a producer's cooperative here which markets the beans through the offices of several large multinational firms in Londrina, the commercial center 40 miles west of here and 300 miles west of Sao Paulo.

Unlike other plantation owners who live in Londrina and leave operations to managers, Koguishi stays on his land, squeezing every cent out of coffee beans, because he wants to buy more land.

"This area is going to continue to be important in Brazil and it will continue to produce coffee," he said. "I am going to use the money that's left over to buy land."

He pointed to an aerial photograph of his farm. Beyond the farm's boundaries it showed several thousands acres of land planted in soybeans and corn, stretching out toward a range of hills.

"I'd like to see coffee planted there someday," Koguishi said. "That's my ambition."

Tried To Shame Me, Richardson Says Of Nixon

WASHINGTON (AP) – In a footnote to the history of Watergate, Elliot L. Richardson discloses that then-President Richard M. Nixon sought to shame him into abandoning, or delaying, his resignation as attorney general in 1973.

Richardson, who quit office rather than obey Nixon's order to fire Special Watergate Prosecutor Archibald Cox, also says he believes the former president, and his White House staff chief, Gen. Alexander Haig, exaggerated dangers of an American-Soviet military confrontation "to shake my resolve" to quit.

The drama that became known as the "Saturday Night Massacre" was enacted on Oct. 20, 1973, when Arab and Israeli forces were locked in combat and American and Soviet authorities were bracing.

Richardson confirmed in an interview this week that after he refused to fire Cox and instead submitted his resignation, he was asked by Nixon to do one of two things: either, in view of the national emergency then existing, not to resign at all, or to defer his resignation until the emergency with the Soviets had passed.

Richardson related that his meeting that night with Nixon at the White House was low-keyed but tense with a lot left unsaid.

According to one new account, Nixon told him that to delay his resignation would be to serve the national interest. Richardson then replied in so many words: "You, Mr. President, should have thought of that before."

Asked in the interview if this account was accurate Richardson responded: "Well, that's approximately correct."

Richardson, commerce secretary in President Ford's outgoing administration, then went into greater detail: "He (Nixon) said to me in effect he regretted that I did not see fit to put the national interest ahead of my personal commitments.

"I replied to him with some force that I believed that what I was doing was in the national interest."

At this point Richardson recalled that Nixon then remarked: "Evidently we do not perceive the national interest in the same way."

Early that day, Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger had flown secretly to Moscow to confer with Leonid Brezhnev. The Soviet Communist leader and fellow Soviet officials had become acutely concerned at the thrust that took Israeli forces across the Suez Canal into Egypt and on the road to Cairo with a capacity to cut off and destroy an entire Egyptian army.

HAPPY ENDING

Dear Trouble Shooter

Response to the letter you printed about my Christmas card houses has been fantastic. I've been flooded with mail! Packages of cards have been left on my doorstep. I cannot thank people enough.

We are having a fun time sorting, visions of lovely houses floating through our heads. I want to thank everyone for their time and effort. It warms our hearts.

I've had many requests for instructions to make the houses. The directions are all in my head. Trying to explain them is sort of like trying to explain how to pat your head or rub your stomach. I have to get my thinking hat on and my husband and I will try to compile a detailed way to make them, and mail the directions to those who requested the pattern.

Several church groups have asked me to come and show them how to make the Christmas card houses. I plan to help as many of them as I can.

The recent rain was wonderful for sweeping the sky, but my one and only old '60 Comet objected to all the wet. She is not too well, so please tell all the good folks that we will pick up their cards as soon as possible. It may take a couple of months, but please hang onto them!

How much love there is in the world. If only more could share! Something like this is sort of like a smile. It catches on and doesn't cost a thing.

A.A.
Costa Mesa

If you'll furnish the Ol' Trouble Shooter with a copy of your directions for making the Christmas card houses, he'll have it reproduced and send the instructions to anyone interested enough to send him a stamped addressed envelope. This'll save you a lot of time and effort.

Happy that things worked out so well. Reckon things won't be dull around your bunkhouse for some time to come.

YOU HELPED!

Dear Trouble Shooter

It is with tremendous gratitude that I express my appreciation to your readers for their generosity to Orange County foster children served by Operation Santa Claus this year.

The response to my letter in your Dec. 9 column was overwhelming! Because of it, Sergio, Jennifer, Freddie, Sam, Kate and many other children were reassured that Santa had not forgotten them after all.

It is heartwarming that so many people cared enough to give so that children separated from their own parents during the holidays could enjoy a happy Christmas.

To all of them, from all our foster children, I wish a joyous and prosperous year filled with love.

S.A.
Santa Ana

Folks who helped are bound to feel a glow of warm satisfaction in knowing they are responsible for making a passel of young 'uns happy. Thank you for writing.

COYOTE PICNIC

Dear Trouble Shooter

The annual South Dakota Picnic will be held Jan. 30 from 10 a.m. to 3 p.m. in Sycamore Grove, 4600 N. Figueroa, Los Angeles. (Turn off on Avenue 52 from the Pasadena Freeway to Figueroa Street, then turn left (south) four blocks to the picnic grounds.)

Please help us "round up" our former neighbors for this big get-together.

R.E.H.
Orange

Always happy to help round folks up for their hometown picnics, podnah. Hope those of you who hail from the Coyote State have a good time at yours.

CAN YOU HELP?

Dear Trouble Shooter

I have a 15-month-old son I am trying to enroll in a parent-child participation class somewhere in Orange County. We live in Garden Grove. I knew of similar classes in the San Gabriel Valley where we lived until six months ago.

We lost our 11-year-old son in a tragic sea accident 10 days ago, and I feel it is imperative that my baby and I get involved in some sort of activity to try to keep us together, but active.

I don't want somebody to "baby-sit" with him, but am looking for a group of mothers who are involved in child observation and parent-child participation activities.

If some of your readers have information along these lines, I'd appreciate hearing from them.

R.L.
Garden Grove

More than likely there's a cooperative group in your own hometown, Ma'am. Let's ask folks who can put you in contact to give you a jingle at 638-7513.

SHORT ON POISE?

Dear Trouble Shooter

Orange County's Toastmistress Clubs are looking for women and men who wish to gain poise and confidence in everyday conversation, public speaking or club procedures.

Each of our six clubs in this area (Anaheim, Garden Grove, Santa Ana, Laguna Beach, Newport Beach and Huntington Beach) offers a proven non-competitive training program. Each member learns by doing assignments varying in difficulty from leading The Pledge of Allegiance to presiding over meetings. Clubs meet on different days, at different times. Dues vary from club to club. Persons can join the most convenient club, regardless of its location.

Please tell your readers who need more information to call Mary Evelyn Smith at 636-2358 or Benita Kasten at 539-7272.

B.K.
Garden Grove

Happy to oblige.

NOSTALGIA TRIP

Dear Trouble Shooter

While watching the Rose Parade on New Year's Day, our neighbors and friends were wracking their brains trying to recall the name of the legendary character who "attended" every Rose Parade reported by the old Los Angeles Examiner.

If we recall correctly, one year this fictitious character was a dentist from Canton, Ohio. Another year, he suffered a heart attack just as the parade started (after waiting all night beside a campfire) and was carted off to the hospital. Another year, he was the father of 11 children, all of whom were watching the parade with him. Reporters who "covered" the Rose Parade dreamed up this phony character, and he became a traditional "put-on" in The Examiner's story.

Can you come up with his name?

J.H.D.
Costa Mesa

You betcha!

The character's name was "Homer Frisbee", except for one year when he was described as an Australian artillery officer named "H.G.R. Frisbee."

The Trouble Shooter's favorite was the year that Ol' "Frisbee" reportedly saved the day, and the Rose Parade, by lending the battery from his car to operators of a stalled float. Those were the days!

AKC PAPERS

Dear Trouble Shooter

In November 1975, my family moved from Westminster to Norwich, Conn. We left our one-year-old male Irish setter, Casey, with my parents on Arizona Street, and asked them to find a good home for him. This they did.

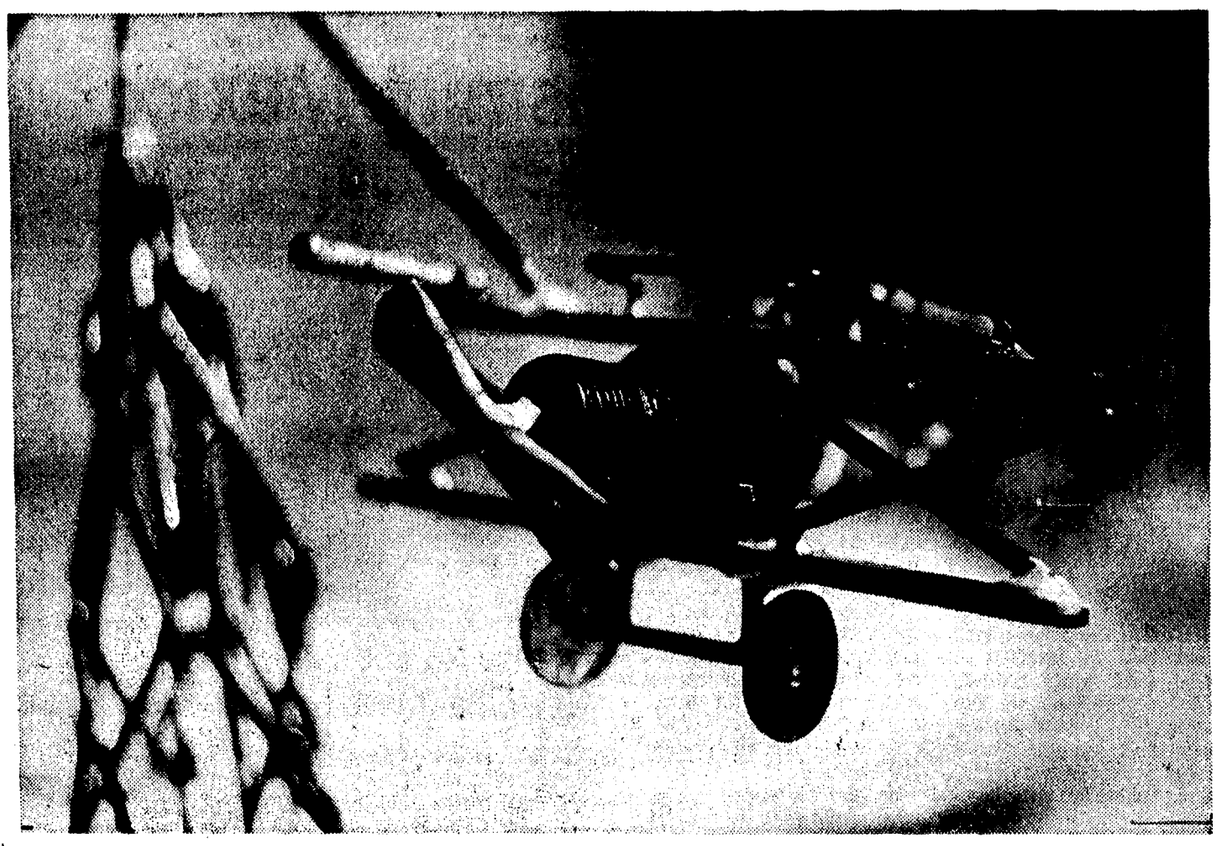

I am now trying to locate Casey's new owners, but I don't know their name. We moved from Connecticut to South Carolina a few months ago. During the move, we ran across Casey's papers and I'd like to send them to the rightful owners.

Will you help me locate them?

D.S.
Moncks Corner, S.C.

Best the Ol' Trouble Shooter can do is suggest that Casey's new owner drop you a note. The address is: Donna Stewart, RR 4, Box 5-B, Moncks Corner, S.C. 29461.

Got a Problem? write The Trouble Shooter, P.O. Box 11626 Santa Ana, Calif., 92711. PLEASE DO NOT TELEPHONE YOUR PROBLEM TO US. ONE OF TWO DELICATELY BALANCED MODEL AIRPLANES BY REID LUNDSTROM

Modelers Let Imagination Soar

By CAROLE KEMP
Register Staff Writer

The Wright brothers wouldn't have believed their eyes if they had seen the fanciful creations made of such unlikely materials as nuts and bolts, bread dough, pink and purple felt, devil's food cake and even a wilted carrot.

Though most of them obviously would never get off the ground, the creations of members of Alpha Signa Chi (air transportation students) at Santa Ana College were model airplanes.

Some entrants in the model plane building contest were promised class credit for participating in the event held this week on the campus.

The 42 entries were judged by representatives from Air California, Continental, American and Western airlines and Stewart Case, community services director.

The grand prize, two round trip tickets to San Francisco, was won by Lisa Holck for her string art project. Wanda Durand won a Hughes Air West beach towel for her imaginative "Wanda's plane-old eggs."

The remaining winners qualified for such prizes as a Hughes Air West tote bag, a free haircut and styling from Hair Happenings, and two free tickets each from Knott's Berry Farm and Movieland Wax Museum.

Approximately 200 students are enrolled in the air transportation program. It offers pilot ground school as well as flight attendants' training.

CLUB PRESIDENT BRENDA McCOSH

Transit Panel Chief Elected

By CHARLES ROBERTS
Register Staff Writer

SANTA ANA – Fountain Valley Mayor Al Hollinden was unanimously elected chairman Thursday of the new Orange County Transportation Commission which will have sweeping powers over how federal and state highway and mass transit funds will be spent.

County Supervisor Ralph Diedrich was elected vice-chairman at the commission's founding meeting.

Rounding out the commission membership were Supervisor Ralph Clark and Santa Ana City Councilman David Brandt.

Among the commission's first acts was to begin the search for a fifth member to be chosen from the public at-large. The only stipulation is that the person cannot have been an elected official within the past 10 years.

In other housekeeping chores handled by the commission:

– The second and fourth Mondays of each month at 9 a.m. were selected as regular meeting dates. Meetings will be held in the supervisors' hearing room in the county hall of administration.

– Two committees, of two commissioners each, were created to develop recommendations as to how to acquire interim staff and legal service, and interim office space and financial planning.

The commission was created by AB 1246 which became effective Jan. 1. Authored by Assemblyman Walter Ingalls, D-Riverside, the bill also created commissions in Los Angeles, Riverside and San Bernardino counties.

Each commission will serve as an umbrella agency over each county's transportation planning. Its power will come from its control of the federal and state tax funds that flow to local agencies.

Exactly how the commission may exert that power is left pretty much up to the commissioners to decide, said D.J. Smith, an aide to Ingalls who attended the meeting.

However, he recommended moving swiftly to find a staff to begin reviewing the incoming flood of applications for federal and state funds.

William Ackerman, director of transportation planning for the Southern California Association of Governments (SCAG), a regional clearinghouse for applications for federal grants told commissioners that by July they will need to review the following:

– A 1977-78 Unified Work Program which includes funding for studies and plans requested by Orange County Transit District and the county's multi-model transportation committee.

– A SCAG Regional Transportation Plan which calls for a two-cent a gallon increase in gasoline taxes to be used in local highway improvements and mass transit operations.

– A Federal Aid Urban (FAU) program drafted by the county FAU committee identifying road projects for funding.

– SB325 (state taxes earmarked for transportation) funds which are a principle source of the transit district's finances.

– A priority list of transportation projects throughout the county which involve state and federal funding.

TO FIGHT CONTRACTOR'S $3 MILLION SUIT

Irvine District To Hire Lawyer

By RICH SEELEY
Register Staff Writer

IRVINE – A private attorney will be hired to defend the Irvine Unified School District against a $3 million suit filed by the concrete contractor involved in the construction of Irvine High School.

District trustees this week authorized the administration to find an attorney after the county counsel, the trustees' legal adviser, said his office had too heavy a case load to handle the Superior Court suit.

Once the attorney is hired, a counter claim will be filed against the Olson Construction Company, which filed suit against the district in December, Supt. Stanley Corey said.

The Olson firm alleges that the district owes it over $3 million in damages and construction costs because of delays, interference and added work caused through breach of contract by the district.

The charges and suit result from the trustees refusal to accept as completed the concrete work Olson did last year on the new high school under a $2.5 million contract with the district.

Although Olson said it completed work on the school on June 18, 1976, the district has withheld a final payment of $259,969.30.

The district has refused to approve Olson's work or make the final payment because the color and finish of the outer concrete walls of the school buildings are not acceptable under contract specifications, a district spokesman said.

While Olson has set the $3 million figure for damages, the amount of any award it wins will be determined by the court, according to Oscar F. Irwin, attorney for the construction firm.

District trustees denied Olson's claim for the funds in November.

A district spokesman said the suit might be settled out of court, but so far negotiations between Olson and the district have been "frustrating for both sides."

Irvine High School opened in September to approximately 750 ninth and tenth grade students.

Cabinet work and other finishing work is being done on a few remaining buildings, but most construction work on the high school is finished, the district spokesman said.

Anthony Campaign Took In $288,526

By LARRY PETERSON
Register Staff Writer

SANTA ANA – Philip Anthony received more than three times as much campaign money as his opponent in his successful bid last fall for the first district supervisor slot, figures made public this week indicate.

On the surface, a $10,000 donation from Amco Builders supply of Costa Mesa appears to dominate the $122,700 in contributions reported by Anthony since Oct. 19, just before the election.

But that amount is almost equaled by the $3,200 he got from Phillip Reilly, president of the Mission Viejo Co., and the $2,000 each he was given by Hon Development Co. of Laguna Hills, Rancho Mission Viejo and the Presley Co. of Newport Beach.

Anthony got $1,000 from each of more than a dozen other contributors, most of them Newport Beach developers.

His biggest individual contributor was one-time Howard Hughes attorney Frank Waters, a member of the county assessment appeals board. He gave $5,000.

Other major givers were Newport Beach businessman James Roosevelt, $4,000; the locally active Shappell Industries development firm of Beverly Hills, lobbyist Frank Michelena; and the Political Action Committee of Fullerton, $2,750 each.

Contributing $2,500 each were Huntington Beach realtor Harold Morr, Calabasas jeweler Martin Kirschner, the Irvine-based Pension Funds of America, and Land Recovery Systems and Orange County Steel Salvage, both of Anaheim.

Pension Funds of America is owned by onetime organized crime informant Gene Conrad, who has filed a $170 million federal wiretapping suit against the district attorney's office.

MINI MURAL – The scene is at ground level and curbside at the home of Lynn Kelley, 6192 Briarcliff Drive, Huntington Beach. Her friend, Kath Stoltz of Ontario, a mural painter, got down to the nitty gritty when she painted this scene to enhance the house number on the curb. If you're an ant it's a huge mural, but for humans it is definitely a "miniature."

Private Water Company Sues City Of Orange

SANTA ANA – A privately owned water company filed suit in Superior Court here Thursday seeking to halt the expansion of city of Orange water service into its area.

Orange Park Acres Mutual Water Co. is seeking $300,000 in damages and in injunction prohibiting the city from future extensions of water service into the east Orange area where it operates.

The suit alleges that the city has constructed water facilities and required property owners and developers in an annexed area to accept city water service.

Orange City Atty. Furman Roberts said the city has not taken away any existing customers of the water company but has only required new housing tracts to connect up to the city's system.

He said the city requires a developer to put in the water line as part of the street construction and then turn over ownership of the streets and pipeline to the city.

Media Blasted For Decline In Tourism In Mexico

By RITA ROBINSON
Register Staff Writer

COSTA MESA – The tourism committee chairman for the Commission of the Californias said Thursday a nationwide news media conspiracy has caused a "drastic decline" in tourists visiting Baja California.

Bernard R. Thompson was the key speaker at a luncheon for members of the commission, a group formed to improve relations between the border states of Mexico and North America. The commission is conducting a three-day convention at South Coast Plaza.

He said Mexico should be booming with tourists because of the devaluation of the peso and the market-place bargains it has produced.

"It is an ideal time for renewed interest in tourism, but there also has been a renewed effort by those responsible for propaganda against Mexico," he said.

Thompson said the conspiracy began shortly after Nov. 19, 1975, the date when then-president Luis Escheverria of Mexico joined with the third world countries at the United Nations and denounced Israel.

He said that since then, there have been exaggerated news accounts of crimes in Mexico against American tourists.

"Mexico has received negative publicity, some deserved, some not. Many of the stories, but not all, are factual," he said.

Thompson blamed much of the negative publicity on exaggerated headlines. "The headlines take something minor in the story out of context and blow it up," he said.

He called it taking "editorial liberties."

He also charged that U.S. news media have the habit of taking news from Mexico that is old news and making it a big story at the opportune moment, such as when the peso was devalued.

"It is old news," he said. "It happened weeks before."

He noted an incident that occurred early last year.

At a camp south of Ensenada, a raid by bandits, some in uniform, converged on the campers with guns drawn, robbing them of their money while telling them they were searching for illegal drugs, he said.

The incident has come to be referred to as Punta Banda. Thompson, who is a California member of the commission, admits the incident is true. But, he said, the results have been different from what would have happened in the U.S.

"Those bandits were caught, tried, convicted and are currently serving long prison terms," he said. "I might add that the system here wouldn't work that quickly."

Thompson made an analogy of the overplay of crime stories from Mexico: "It would be the same thing in the U.S. if we printed a story on every mugging in Washington, D.C. or Central Park."

Thompson, who ended his speech to a standing ovation, said it is up to the commission to stop the conspiracy by "stepping forward with the truth."

Day Care Center Gains Irvine Council Support

IRVINE – The city council has decided to co-sponsor the Irvine Community Nursery School whose directors, a group of local mothers, recently were forced to postpone a cooperative day care operation because a city building the group planned to use failed to meet state preschool standards.

The city will provide no tax money for the project.

The school has been in operation for five years. Through most of that time, the school directors had an agreement for use of a local church. That agreement ended Jan. 3 and the 60 parents of the 3- and 4-year-old youngsters had to look for a new location. Since at least one parent of each child is involved in the operation of the school, the parents sought an inexpensive alternative.

City co-sponsorship, the group believes, will add strength to their "low cost" and "high quality teaching" objective, in their attempt to find a location for its three classes.

Negotiations are under way to occupy one of the portable Woodbridge Instant School sites located at West Yale Loop.

To use a school site, said Gene Hartline, Irvine Unified School District business superintendant, the group has to meet the criteria as being "non-profit" and has "open enrollment" for residents of the district, which Hartline says the group has done. Tentatively, plans are to let the group begin using the Woodbridge school site Jan. 17, through June 30, said Hartline.

In September, the operation will be shifted to the Greentree Elementary School, 4200 Manzanita, where a kindergarten classroom and play areas will be available, Hartline said.

The cost to the parents will be limited to custodial, maintenance and utility expenses, which will be approximately $150 per month, Hartline said.

Agency Names New Chairman

SANTA ANA – Tustin Councilman Don Saltarelli has been elected chairman of the county Local Agency Formation Commission.

Saltarelli, a three-year veteran on the panel and immediate past vice-chairman, replaces fifth district Supervisor Thomas Riley at the helm of the group. Riley remains a member of the commission.

Home Builders Crack Down On 'Speculators'

MISSION VIEJO – Two of the largest builders and land developers in south Orange County have announced a crackdown on "housing speculation" aimed at preventing new homebuyers from selling their homes without living in them.

Both the Mission Viejo Company and the Laguna Niguel Realty Company subsidiary of Avco Community Developers Inc., disclosed plans to prevent the immediate resale of new homes by buyers who decide to sell at a profit before the homes clear escrow.

In Mission Viejo a new home purchase policy now limits buyers to one owner-occupied home per customer. In addition, the company will cancel the sale of any home put on the market for speculation. The company will cancel any sale if the new owner tries to list the property for sale or make any agreement to resell the home, rather than occupy it.

The Laguna Niguel company has taken similar steps and, like Mission Viejo, has tightened restrictions on home lotteries or drawings so that title cannot be transferred before the home clears escrow.

Work To Begin On LN Housing Development

LAGUNA NIGUEL – Grading will start next week on a 32.5 acre development near the Orange County regional courthouse with 125 homes to be offered at $80,000 to $100,000.

The $9 million tract will feature a dedicated park and "ocean views" according to a spokesman for the Hollenbeck Development Company of Santa Ana which is developing the tract as a joint venture with Mariners Saving and Loan Association of Newport Beach.

Irvine Board Accepts $3.5 Million Grant For New Woodbridge School

IRVINE — A $3.5 million federal grant for construction of the planned Woodbridge Middle School was officially accepted by Irvine Unified School District trustees this week.

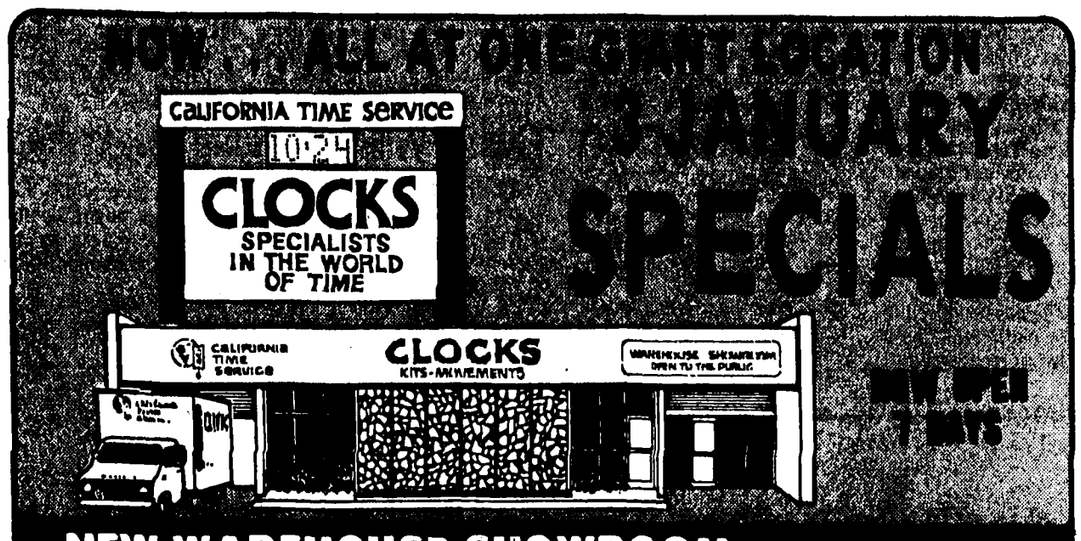

Trustees also authorized the district administration to complete the remaining paperwork required by the Economic Development Administration of the U.S. Department of Commerce before it can officially grant the money.

Final approval is expected within a month, said David E. King, director of facilities planning and development for the district. Under the terms of the grant, construction must begin within 90 days after the district receives the money.

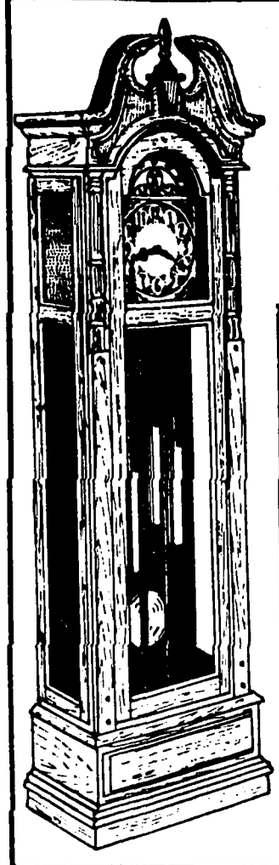

That will be no problem, King said. "We're ready to start construction, right now."

The grant is authorized under the Federal Public Works Act of 1976.

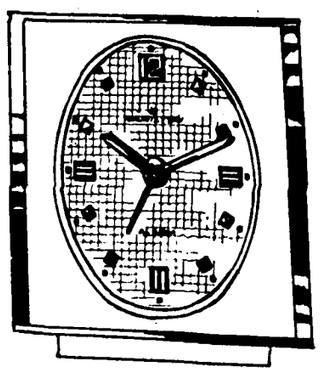

The Woodbridge Middle School is to be located at 3 Lemongrass. Construction is scheduled to be completed in time for school in Sept. 1977, a district spokesman said.

VICTIM OF ATTACK PROTESTS BROWN DEATH PENALTY STAND

By CHERYL PRUETT
Register Staff Writer

ORANGE – Mrs. Mary Campbell has a very personal reason for supporting the death penalty and she's letting Gov. Edmund Brown Jr. know about it.

Mrs. Campbell, a near-murder victim, mailed the governor a letter Thursday concerning the current controversy over the death penalty and its constitutionality, and taking the opposite view from the governor's stated position.

"I'm not one who would wish anyone death, but I think it would prevent these men from committing crimes," said Mrs. Campbell.

On Oct. 31, 1975, Mrs. Campbell was the victim of a brutal assault in which she was left for dead in an orange grove in the El Modena area. She was found with severe cuts on the face and throat, stabbed in the chest and with her left wrist cut nearly to the bone.

The 28-year-old cab driver who attacked her was arrested and convicted of attempted murder. He is now serving a life sentence.

The 45-year-old Mrs. Campbell wrote the governor, "I know it is difficult to make such a decision to put another human to death. I wouldn't want that on my conscience, either, as you have so expressed in the news media...

"But I do believe that the fear of a death sentence would stop an individual who goes out to commit rape, kidnap and torture...

"I am a living example of being a victim of assault with a deadly weapon with an attempt to commit rape and murder."

In her letter Mrs. Campbell described her ordeal and the four-hour operation during which doctors worked to keep her alive. She said she still has very little use of her hand and fingers, is scarred, has a wired breastbone and will require more surgery on her wrist.

"I only hope and pray that you will read this letter and maybe know the fear that I still go through, fear not just for myself, but also for my 12-year-old daughter and other daughters and their mothers and, yes, even their grandmothers...

"If the death penalty had not been vetoed by you the criminals would not feel free to roam the streets...The irony of this whole matter is that the vote of the taxpayers of this state doesn't mean a thing."

California voters approved capital punishment by a 2-1 margin in 1972, but last month the California Supreme Court declared it unconstitutional. Since then three bills have been introduced to re-instate the death penalty. The first hearings are scheduled in one week.

Brown, who has promised to veto death penalty bills "as a matter of conscience," proposed as an alternative a new penalty of life in prison without possibility of parole.

In 1960, Brown, then 22, urged his father, Gov. Edmund Brown Sr., to stay the execution of Caryl Chessman. After eight stays of execution on a 1948 case convicting him of robbery, kidnaping and attempted rape, Chessman was put to death May 2, 1960.

In 1967, the younger Brown picketed outside San Quentin against what has proved to be the last execution in California.

Mrs. Campbell, who said she believes the death penalty will deter criminals, hopes that something will come out of her writing to Gov. Brown and that "maybe other people will write, too."

Barking Dog's Owner Will Get Rude Awakening

ABERDEEN, N.C. (AP) – There is a measure of justice here for people whose night's sleep is broken by a neighbor's barking dog.

The town board has established an "Awake-the-Owner Program."

All an involuntary insomniac has to do is call the police with the name of a barking dog's owner. Police will wake up the owner too.

The program has gotten mixed reviews. Its founder, Clifton Blue Jr., says it's working. Blue is on the town board, oversees the police department and is managing editor of the Sandhill Citizen.

But Walter Woodcock, a local resident, says, "It's just a good write-up for the Citizen"

NB Will Fund Counseling Program

NEWPORT BEACH – A counseling program for juveniles in trouble with the law is expected to receive about $9,000 from the city this year.

Councilmen have decided to contribute $90 for each youth referred to the Assessment Treatment Services Center, where an estimated 100 juveniles from here are expected to be referred.

It marks the first time the city has helped fund the ATSC, which has been financed almost entirely through private donations from individuals, corporations and foundations, an ATSC spokesman said.

Since the counseling center opened two years ago, city officials have turned down funding requests because they said the program should be financed by the county.

But the police department put in a good word for the program, which apparently led to the council's decision this week.

"It's a terrific place. I don't know how we got along without it," said one juvenile officer of the ATSC.

Police claim new legislation that dilutes the authority of law enforcement officers in dealing with truants, incorrigibles, runaways and other status offenders makes the counseling center's program a valuable tool in dealing with difficult family problems.

The counseling center, located at 1640 E. Bristol St. just south of Orange County Airport, has a $70,000 annual operating budget and is staffed by one deputy probation officer and one psychologist. Officials at the center say they have counseled more than 400 families since opening in December 1974.

Their clientele, referred by police departments, come from Irvine, Tustin, Huntington Beach, Costa Mesa and Newport Beach.

Last year, however, Costa Mesa contributed $3,500 to ATSC and will be asked to increase its support this year to help foot the center's operation.

Costa Mesa referred about 40 juveniles to the center last year, and Newport Beach referred about 100, an ATSC spokesman said.

Village Laguna Slates Forum

LAGUNA BEACH – Village Laguna, Inc., is sponsoring a public forum on Laguna Canyon Road at 8 p.m. Jan 17 in city council chambers, 505 Forest Ave.

Fran Engelhardt of Village Laguna, an agency to preserve the city's village atmosphere, said city, county and state officials will discuss proposals to widen the road, install a divider or bus line, or keep it as it is.

Michael Sobley, Laguna Greenbelt executive director will speak against widening. City Councilman Jack McDowell will present pro-widening arguments.

Environmental Law Specialist Named

SANTA ANA — John R. Griset has been named by county Counsel Adrian Kuyper to replace Ralph Benson as the county's environmental law specialist.

Griset, a deputy counsel for eight years, has supervised the county counsel's school law specialists.

Benson quit last month, charging that county supervisors ordered him assigned to other duties because of pressure from developers' lobbyists.

Kuyper claimed – and the supervisors denied — that the supervisors made Benson's transfer a condition of retaining Kuyper in his $51,288-a-year post.

Supervisor Laurence Schmit said supervisors asked Kuyper to reassign Benson because he let his "environmentalist" viewpoint affect legal advice he gave the county. Benson denied the charge.

SB Councilman Resigns Post

SEAL BEACH – Veteran councilman Harold Holden, 82, who attempted to resign Dec. 27 provided he could name his successor, made the resignation stick the second time around. He dropped the demand that he name his replacement.

Councilmen accepted his letter of resignation this week 4-1.

Councilmen were advised by the city attorney that they have 30 days to name a replacement for Holden whose term expires in 1978.

Mini-Skateboard Park Study OKd

LAGUNA BEACH – The city council this week directed its skateboard committee to study the feasibility of a mini-skateboard park behind Riddle softball field.

"I think we all see the need for a small skateboard park operated by the city," vice mayor John Brand said.

Brand said a meeting would be called next month for reports on insurance costs and availability, resurfacing expenses and the possiblity of skateboarders forming a dues-paying association to offset those costs. Insurance was estimated at $3,000 per month.

The skateboard park, however, would not solve the problem of four-wheelers speeding down Laguna streets, an activity that has drawn numerous complaints from motorists and pedestrians in recent months.

Skateboarding enthusiast Ed Gottschlich of Oak Street Inc., surf shop, said skateboarding is becoming an essential mode of transportation. He said the park would be primarily a "service for the kids."

But, said Brand, "Instead of 200 kids in the streets, there may be 100 kids in the streets."

"They'll probably skateboard in the streets to get there," quipped an audience member.

Love Oil Firm Gets Fine For Shortweighing

LOS ANGELES (AP) – A "love oil" distributing firm apparently was operated on the belief that its potion was so potent that not too much was needed.

But a court didn't see things that way.

Municipal Court Commissioner Meyer Newman fined Jefferson Sales Co. $1,000 after the distributor pleaded no contest to two counts of short-weighting. The firm was also placed on two years' probation.

Tustin Sets Special Projects Fund

TUSTIN – A special fund to pay for such projects as parks, street improvements and flood control devices is being set up by the city council, which is adding a safeguard against the money being used for other reasons.

No money is in the capital improvements fund, yet. But under the plan, the revenue will be set aside in an account similar to a trust fund. The money could be derived from such sources as gifts, budget surpluses, or an appropriated amount set aside each year to pay for a future project, said City Administrator Bill Bopf.

But once the money is in the fund, it will take a two-thirds vote of the electorate to withdraw it for uses other than its original purpose, Bopf said. For example, if money was needed to balance the budget or to hire another employe, an election would have to be held to withdraw the money from the special fund.

The special fund will be up for a final vote Monday. It is being pushed through in anticipation of the city's Jan. 28 hearing before the Local Agency Formation Commission for the proposed annexation of 500 acres of Irvine Co. land.

The land, located north of the Santa Ana Freeway and bounded by Browning and Bryan avenues and Myford Road, now is in agricultural preserve but is expected to be developed when that designation expires in seven years. It is in Tustin's sphere of influence.

The council has indicated it wants to put 70 per cent of the general tax revenue it will receive from the land, after it is annexed to the city, into the special fund. In seven years, when the land is apt to be developed, the city then will be prepared to make the necessary improvements, Bopf said.

The city is pre-zoning the land for four planned community residential units per acre, Bopf said.

The mayor also has signed an agreement that the city will cooperate in planning the development of the land, so that the plans can be enacted quickly once the land no longer is in agricultural preserve.

Man Found Guilty In Vandal Attacks

LOS ANGELES – The former business agent of a theater union has been convicted of arranging a series of attacks by vandals at several non-union theaters in Los Angeles and Orange counties, including the Broadway in Santa Ana.

Frank McBryde was found guilty Tuesday of 12 felony charges of conspiracy, arson, grand theft and burglary. He is to be sentenced Feb. 4.

The verdict was returned after three days of deliberations by the Los Angeles Superior Court jury.

McBryde formerly was an official with the International Alliance of Theatrical Stage Employes Theater Projectionists union Local 150.

Another member of the union, Harry Brotton, is to go on trial on similar charges next month, and a third man charged in the case, Merlin Adler, was sentenced to a year in county jail after pleading guilty to conspiracy and burglary in June 1975.

Adler testified as a prosecution witness about stink-bombings, fire-bombings and break-ins at the theaters, and said that McBryde and Brotton used him as a conduit to get money and instructions to young groups of vandals.

The charges against McBryde and Brotton were filed following an 18-month investigation by the organized crime intelligence unit of the Los Angeles County district attorney's office.

Court Impounds Art Treasures

KYOTO, Japan (AP) – A Kyoto district court impounded hundreds of art treasures Thursday from the Higashi Hongwanji temple, one of Japan's major Buddhist temples, for failure to pay off two promissory notes.

The notes, each for about $170,000, were issued by Koyo Otani, 73-year-old chief abbot of the Shinshu sect's Otani school and a brother-in-law of Empress Nagako. The money was used to build a welfare center.

Court officials said the items seized included a scripture written by the sect's 17th Century founder, St. Shinran.

Carter Son Denies Part In Firm Promotion

CHICAGO (AP) – Jack Carter, eldest son of President-elect Jimmy Carter, has denied any intentional use of his family name to promote a Calhoun, Ga., carpet company which he represents as corporate attorney.

"I am the son of the next president of the United States," he said. "If somebody wants to say that, I can't stop them."

But he added, "It's not something I would have done if I was in charge," referring to the use of his family relationship in promoting Commercial Contract Carpet Mill, Inc., a subsidiary of Contract Carpet & Interiors, Inc., of Chicago.

Jack Carter was identified as the son of President-elect Carter in both the release announcing a promotional news conference Wednesday and an invitation for a carpet company reception later Wednesday night.

Carter said, "You can make a story out of just anything. I think this has been blown out of proportion....What I did for this corporation was purely legal business."

Carter said his father was not aware of the matter, adding, "I never would have thought to talk to Dad about it."

Carter, who works for his father-in-law's law firm, Langford, Pope and Bailey, in Calhoun, said CCM already was represented by the firm when he returned to Georgia and the firm after the presidential campaign.

He said he received approximately $650 in fees for handling initial legal business for CCM and expected to receive between $35 and $40 an hour from the company while representing it Wednesday in Chicago.

"They wanted me to come (to Chicago). I didn't think it was an unfair request," Carter said.

Herb Kraus of Manning, Selvage and Lee, Inc., a public relations firm, said he took responsibility for including Carter's presidential relationship in the initial press release and invitation. "I just put it in to identify who he was," Kraus added.

CCM's parent company, Contract Carpet & Interiors, provides carpeting and design services for government and commercial buildings. It carpeted Chicago's Sears Tower, the nation's largest building, as well as several other major Chicago office buildings.

Plan To Lower Radiation Levels Eyed

WASHINGTON (AP) – The Environmental Protection Agency has proposed lowering the amount of radiation the general public can receive from intentional discharge of radioactive material by nuclear power production.

EPA Administrator Russell E. Train said the new standards would allow about 20 times less permissible exposure than current rules.

"These standards establish an important precedent in radiation protection because they consider the long-term potential buildup of radiation in the environment," Train said in a statement.

"We believe it is essential to deal with this total potential impact because long-lived radionuclides in the environment represent an irreversible exposure to future generations," he said.

Under the new standards, any member of the public would be limited to a maximum annual radiation dose of 25 millirems to the whole body and most internal organs. Current rules put the maximum annual dose at 500 millirems.

A millirem is one one thousandth of a rem, the basic radiation protection dose unit.

Dose limits apply to all sources of radiation except that from medical activities, such as X rays, and natural background radiation already present in the environment.

The EPA also would cut the quantities of long-lived radioactive isotopes and other material allowed to be released throughout the nuclear fuel cycles. This covers fuel operations from the time uranium ore leaves mines, becomes fuel, is used up and eventually is recycled back into the fuel supply, the EPA said.

Long-lived radioactive material, which can remain highly radioactive for thousands of years, included in the new standards are plutonium, krypton-85, iodine-129 and other isotopes from uranium.

The proposed regulations will be published for public comment and implemented afterward after possible revisions.

The WEEDERS GUIDE

By EARL ARONSON
AP Newsfeatures

Apartment dwellers with no land tell me on occasion that I neglect them when it comes to gardening. Well, we spotted an apartment dweller's dream among Ortho's book of "Gardening Shortcuts" that we'd like to pass on to those with an available porch.

It is called "Salad Tree" and can produce lettuce, tomatoes and cucumbers. Here's what you need: A board one inch thick, a foot wide and five feet tall. Fasten two-inch mesh hog wire to the board so that the wire rounds outward. Set the "tree" in a box or big bucket of sphagnum moss and soil on your porch and plant. The secret is the five-foot height. The tomatoes and cucumbers will climb the wire. Plant lettuce at the bottom.

Free Compost Booklet

You can get a free, 20-page booklet written in cooperation with the non-profit Soil Assn. Entitled "A Lot of Rot on Gardens" the booklet explains simply how garden compost can act as a soil conditioner and a fertilizer to improve your flowers and vegetables (without chemical fertilizers).

A compost pile is a man-made device by which the natural process of decomposition is speeded up so that animal and vegetable waste can be used to improve the soil and make plant nutrients more readily available to plants.

"Compost made from a good variety of common ingredients can directly supply your plants with all the nitrogen, phosphorus and potassium they need, as well as many other minerals," says the booklet. Compost can be used as a mulch to establish a weed-free blanket between rows to protect plant roots from drought and cold. Compost is a soil conditioner that encourages earthworms that enrich the ground.

Good composting materials to use from the garden include remains of vegetable crops, weeds, lawn clippings, leaves and hedge trimmings.

From the household add to the compost pile wood ashes, orange peels, egg shells, coffee grounds and scraps of wool and cotton, well mixed and moistened.

The booklet is available through Rotocrop, (58 Buttonwood St., New Hope, Pa.), manufacturers of compost bins.

New Garden Books

Spring will come sooner to those who read "The Language of Flowers," a delightful tiny book that first appeared in 1913 when "Father wanted to give Mother a present on their golden wedding anniversary." The author remains secret. In his little English book, published in a pretty, facsimile edition by Harmony Books (Crown Publishers, New York) "Father" fashioned a dictionary of traditional meanings of more than 700 flowers. The book is handscripted with dainty water colored flowers and plants from abatina (fickleness) to zinnia (thoughts of absent friends).

For those who fancy raising plants in self-contained environments comes a new paperback book, "Terrariums," by Allan A. Swenson, (Fawcett, Greenwich, Conn.), an old acquaintance who has moved to the Maine we left many years ago.

In his own words, "Terrariums" provides just about all you'll need to know about "this wonderful way of raising plants and flowers indoors."

The proper soil mix, light and water, propagating plants, tropical fish and aquatic plants, and where to buy — these are some of the aspects Swenson discusses.

GARDENER'S CALENDAR

1. It pays to buy a good pair of sharp shears to prune trees and shrubs. When thinning never leave stubs long enough to hang your hat on. Cut flush to the limb. When heading back limbs cut to a bud that will grow in the desired direction.

2. Spray for peach leaf curl now. Peach trees and nectarines may suffer the severe fungus attack this spring without it.

3. Watch roses for signs that buds are beginning to swell. When they do, sharpen the pruning shears and go to work.

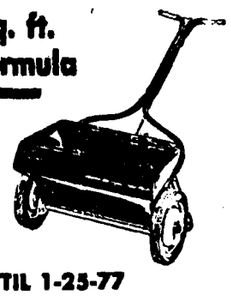

4. Houseplants requiring the most light should be rotated in winter to windows with a southern exposure.

5. Don't neglect watering duties just because it's cold. Container plants especially should be watered during the dry spells between winter rains.

CARING FOR YOUR CAR: TIPS ON BATTERY

By RAY HILL

Sooner or later your battery is going to get tired and expire. With a little planning, you can replace that tired battery with a new one before the old one gives up the ghost. And by installing the new battery yourself, you can save the installation charge, plus check out a few things that your local gas station attendant might miss.

How do you know when your battery is going to that battery hunting ground in the sky? Well, the average battery's life span is four years – if it's taken care of (more on battery care a little later). But it could give up the ghost before then or it might last a little longer.

To keep on top of how your battery is doing, add water to the cells regularly and check the battery with a hydrometer once every couple of months. You can buy a hydrometer yourself – it's only a dollar or two – or you can have the gas station attendant use his. The hydrometer is easy to use, and instructions that come with it tell you how to use it.

Also, every three or four months, and certainly before each winter sets in, have your local gas station attendant or mechanic run a check on your battery with his voltmeter – this is to measure the battery's ability to hold a charge. The test is quick, easy and won't cost anything. If the battery is losing its ability to hold a charge, then replacement time is getting near.

Okay, let's say your old battery isn't cranking the engine over as strongly as it used to, and your local mechanic says it's new battery time. Buy one and take it home.

Next step is to remove the old battery.

First, remove the two battery cables. They may be bolted on to the side of the battery. If so, remove the two bolts and lay the cables off to one side. Others are connected on top of the battery. The terminal connections may be held together by a bolt and nut, or they may be the type that you squeeze apart with pliers.

Regardless of which type of connection you have, remove the ground terminal (that's the post marked with a minus sign) first. That's to keep sparks from flying if you accidentally touch the wrench or pliers against other metal.

Next step is to remove the battery hold-down. That's the strap-like device that runs across the top of the battery or around its top edge and holds it in place. The hold-down is usually held on by a couple of bolts or nuts. Just remove them and lift the hold-down off.

Now the battery can be lifted out of its tray. It's heavy though. So position your legs and back so you've got a good strong stance before you lift it out.

After you've removed the battery, don't immediately put the new one in. Inspect the tray that the battery sets in. If it's badly rusted and looks like it's about to give way at any time, scoot over to your auto parts store and get another one. Letting your battery fall into the fan is a sure way to ruin the battery and do some other expensive damage.

If the tray is rusting, but not severely, remove the rust with a scraper and sandpaper and paint the tray. If you must buy a replacement tray, try to find one that's plastic, then the rust problem is eliminated.

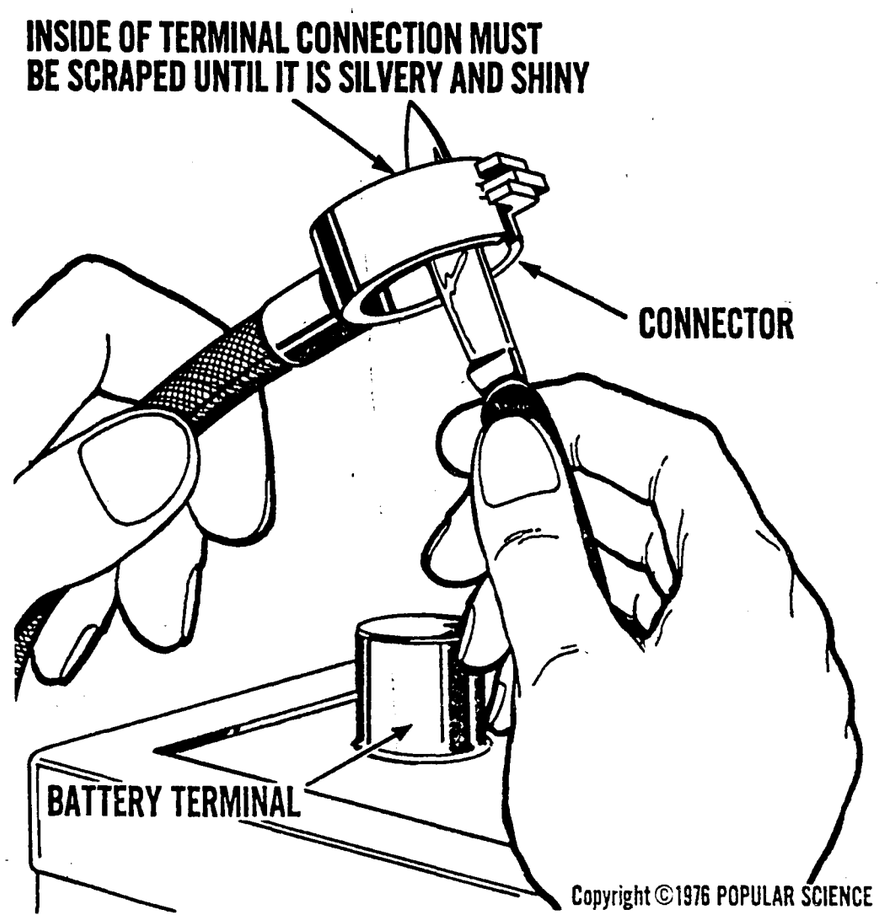

Next, inspect the battery cables throughout their entire length, paying particular attention to the terminal ends where they attach to the battery posts. Cables should not be frayed or nearly broken in two. If they are, replace them.

The cables are easy to replace. Just remove the bolt at the other end of each cable. Be careful, though, that any other wires that may be attached to the cable are reattached when you bolt the new cable on.

Clean any corrosion from the cable ends where they attach to the battery. If you have a terminal cleaner (available at auto-parts stores), use that. If not, use a knife to scrape the corrosion away. Regardless of whether corrosion is present, the inside of each cable terminal where it fits against the battery post should be scraped with a knife until it is bright and shiny. This makes possible a good electrical connection.

Okay, set the new battery in the tray, with the negative and positive posts in the same position as the old battery. Re-install the battery hold-down. Next re-attach the battery cables. Put the plus cable (that's the cable that attaches to the battery post marked with a plus sign), then attach the minus cable. Now your new battery is ready for service.

HIRING-HALL PRACTICES DECLARED ILLEGAL

Iron Workers Union Found Guilty

By JOHN O'DELL
Register Staff Writer

A major Southern California iron workers' union with 800 Orange County members has been found guilty of 76 violations of the National Labor Relations Act because of its hiring-hall practices.

The union, International Association of Bridge, Structural and Ornamental Iron Workers, Local 433, represents 3,250 workers in an area stretching south from Santa Barbara County to San Clemente and east into Las Vegas, Nev.

A federal administrative law judge ruled, in a case brought by a union member, that several business agents of the local were ignoring hiring rules and were illegally giving unqualified friends jobs that should have gone to others.

One of the cases involved a construction job at the Water Factory 21 water desalting facility in Fountain Valley.

The union, according to NLRB rules, has until Jan. 21 to appeal the administrative judge's findings to the labor board's appeals hearing group in Washington, D.C.

A spokesman for Local 433 said Thursday the union will appeal the decision.

Richard Taplitz, the administrative law judge who heard the case in seven days of hearings last year, said in his 45-page statement of findings that 76 separate instances of illegal hiring practices by the union were proven by disgruntled union members who testified in the case.

He said several instances in which union business agents beat, seriously injured or threatened to injure or kill members for protesting the illegal practices were substantiated by testimony.

According to the union's contract with dozens of construction firms, all hiring of union-represented ironworkers is to be done exclusively through hiring halls located in various parts of Local 433's vast district.

Hiring, in most cases, is to be based on skill and the amount of time an individual ironworker has been without a job, the rules state.

Workers can be hired directly by an employer only if they have worked for the same employer within the previous 12-month period.

In his decision, Taplitz said he found those rules were ignored in 76 cases. He said, "It is apparent that (the) respondent's (labor union's) business agents divided...jurisdiction into fiefdoms from which they dispensed patronage.

"...applicants for employment (had) a reasonable basis for believing that access to employment depended on securing the good will of the business agents rather than on the objective criteria of the hiring hall."

Taplitz' order — subject to the NLRB if the union appeals — orders the union to pay lost wages to each of the 76 members who lost jobs to business agents' friends.

A spokesman for the NLRB's Los Angeles regional office said if Taplitz' order stands, his office would compute the exact amount owed each worker.

Neil Herring, attorney for the employes who brought the action against Local 433, said he believes the union was found guilty of one of the longest lists of labor relations act violations on record.

He said settlement of back wages could amount to "several hundred thousand dollars."

Carter's Labor Choice Differs With New Boss

WASHINGTON (AP) — Labor Secretary-designate Ray Marshall expressed disappointment Thursday with parts of President-elect Carter's program to boost the economy, saying it doesn't provide enough jobs.

"I would have opted for a much larger package of public works and housing than we got in the package," said Marshall, the first of Carter's Cabinet choices to indicate disagreement with their new boss.

The Carter plan is a two-year, $30-billion package of tax cuts and job creation programs.

Sen. Paul Laxalt, R-Nev., said he would oppose the nomination when the committee votes next week because of Marshall's support for legislation that would expand union picketing powers at construction sites and repeal of a controversial provision in the Taft-Hartley Act, section 14-B, which authorizes states to ban union shop agreements.

STATE DENIES EQUIPMENT, MONEY LOSS

SACRAMENTO (AP) — California's top rehabilitation official Thursday denied allegations of lost equipment in the state-run work program for the blind.

But Ed Roberts, director of the Department of Rehabilitation, told a news conference that articles this week in the San Francisco Examiner triggered a stepped-up inventory to verify his belief that every dollar and all equipment can be accounted for.

Roberts said the allegations in the Examiner stories were "outrageous" and blew out of proportion problems that have been solved or are being solved.

Yet he said that after the first article appeared he went to top aides of Gov. Edmund Brown Jr. and beefed up an ongoing inventory with as much effort and expense as it takes to get the job done.

Roberts said the department had been working to correct problems brought out in the Examiner articles, and denied a report the department could not account for $3 million to $5 million in its trust fund for the blind.

Auditor General John Williams, in an interview, said the audit at the order of the Joint Legislative Audit Committee began last week. He said the audit will take about two months.

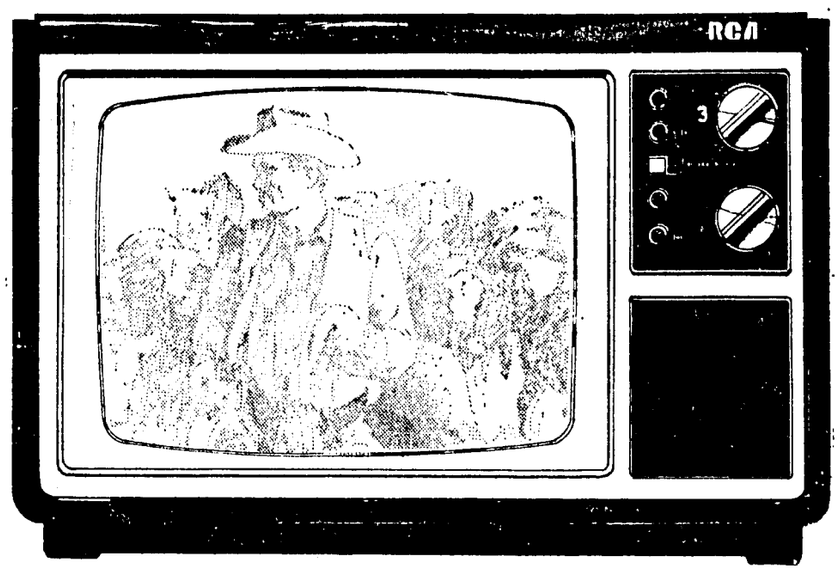

The state-run Business Enterprise Program for the Blind in California has 307 blind operators, employing 770 persons, many also handicapped, and a payroll exceeding $3 million a year, Roberts said. The program involves vending stands in state and federal buildings.

your horoscope

By Jeane Dixon

SATURDAY, JAN. 15

Your birthday today: You're at a pivotal point on the way into a new phase of personal development. Focus on latent potentials, seek effective channels to convert them into tangible achievements. Relationships run to deep involvement or detachment, depending on how your emerging character meshes or clashes with other parties. Today's natives are in professions requiring scholarly talents, seasoned judgment. Those born this year are magnetic, natural leaders of large groups.

Aries [March 21-April 19]: Your personal cycles are overridden by major celestial situations. It's a day for a fresh view, celebration mood, getting right to what interests you most.

Taurus [April 20-May 20]: A stream of family events sweeps you along. If alone, you form a temporary "family" with others in a similar state. Let each carry a fair share of expense.

Gemini [May 21-June 20]: No harm in asking for what you want. The worst that can happen is refusal; you're entitled to know why. Dealing with people in authority is easier.

Cancer [June 21-July 22]: Strong stimuli plunge you into a streak of creative effort. If you can begin a new business venture, make final preparations now to begin next Tuesday.

Leo [July 23-Aug. 22]: Today marks a transition to a different orientation that attracts new people, stirs revelations among old friends. All so natural you wonder why changes weren't made long ago.

Virgo [Aug. 23-Sept. 22]: Reconcile discrepancies, revise group plans. New contacts promise well for important future relationships. Diligence allows time for purely personal affairs.

Libra [Sept. 23-Oct. 22]: Assert your views, be definite about getting in on existing benefits. If you don't, other voices prevail, and you'll have to adapt to another program.

Scorpio [Oct. 23-Nov. 21]: A bright idea forces changes. With so much to do, time so short, you must let some items go, people fend for themselves, risk upsets by your blunt rush.

Sagittarius [Nov. 22-Dec. 21]: Try a direct approach only if tactful effort fails to bring the connection you want. Emotional ties are renewed or come into being where they didn't exist.

Capricorn [Dec. 22-Jan. 19]: Nothing is to be hurried. The emphasis is on savoring fine nuances of experience. If you must work, get it over with. Then share happiness with one who cares.

Aquarius [Jan. 20-Feb. 18]: Today is a broad but subtle turning point. Join friends in their rounds instead of expecting them to help you out. The unattached find new romantic appeal.

Pisces [Feb. 19-March 20]: You have a streak of luck running for you. Give others benefit of any doubt. Organize what's been hanging fire. Get ready for a new business activity next week.

Garcia's Bid To Move Trial To Another County Rejected

SAN FRANCISCO AP – A state appeals court has rejected Inez Garcia's bid to move her second murder trial out of Monterey County.

Mrs. Garcia, accused of killing a man she says held her while another man raped her, is scheduled to be back in Superior Court in Salinas Monday for continued questing of prospective jurors.

The state Court of Appeal declined Wednesday to hear her request for a venue change, which defense attorneys had sought on grounds that pretrial publicity and community prejudice made a fair trial impossible.

Monterey County Asst. Dist. Atty. Arthur Braudrich opposed the venue change, saying a switch to another county would mean added costs and there is "no reason this case should get special attention."

Mrs. Garcia was convicted Oct. 4, 1974, of second-degree murder in the shooting death of Miguel Jiminez. The case was overturned on appeal and a new trial ordered because of improper instructions given by the judge to the jury.

The case has become a cause celebre within the women's movement. Mrs. Garcia is currently free on $5,000 bail after serving 15 months of a five years to life prison sentence ordered before she won a new trial.

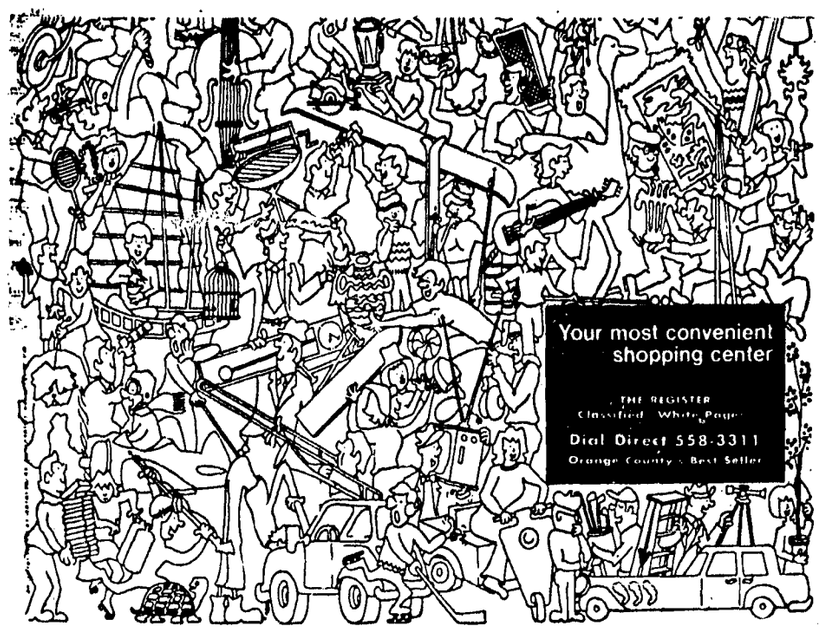

ACLU Legal Chief Gets Ax

NEW YORK (AP) – The American Civil Liberties Union's legal director, Melvin Wulf, has been forced to resign because of what he called "irreconcilable differences" with other ACLU officials over strategy and tactics.

Wulf's resignation was demanded and received by Executive Director Aryeh Neier and Chairman Norman Dorsen. It will be effective Feb. 1.

Wulf, 49, joined the ACLU in 1958 and became its legal director in 1962. Among those whose constitutional rights he has successfully defended before the U.S. Supreme Court were antiwar protestors, the Students for a Democratic Society and a newspaper editor who published an abortion advertisement.

The ACLU's Washington director, Charles Morgan Jr., quit last April and denounced what he called the "arrogance and bigotry often displayed by the Eastern Liberal Establishment."

SEAL BEACH BUZZ CASE TRIAL SET FOR MARCH 2

LONG BEACH – Theodore LaBelle, the 20-year-old Cal State Long Beach student accused of stealing an airplane and buzzing Seal Beach last Nov. 30, will go on trial in Superior Court here March 2.

Judge Charles Litwin set the trial date following LaBelle's arraignment in his court Thursday.

LaBelle is charged with theft of an aircraft and assault with a deadly weapon after he allegedly tried to ram a police helicopter during the buzzing incident.

Authorities said LaBelle, of Seal Beach, was distraught over a quarrel with his girl friend when he allegedly stole the plane from Long Beach Municipal Airport and repeatedly buzzed her Seal Beach home.

LaBelle finally landed in a field at the Seal Beach Naval Weapons Depot, brandished a shotgun as police approached, then surrendered without a struggle, police said.

He is free on the $10,000 bail he posted four days after the incident.

Monthly School Bus Inspections OKd By Panel

SACRAMENTO (AP) – A compromise school bus inspection program, prompted by a crash that killed 26 Yuba City high school students and a teacher, was approved Thursday by a state school board committee.

The rules would require inspection once a month, or every 2,000 miles if that comes sooner, of bus hoses, belts, hydraulic brake fluid lines and reservoirs, and tank mounting brackets.

Failure of a brake system compressor belt has been blamed for the fatal bus crash on a highway offramp last May 21 near Martinez, east of San Francisco.

Last month the board approved requirements for weekly inspection of bus doors, seats and many other parts, in response to legislation that was passed after the bus crash.

But it put off action on inspection of such parts as belts and hoses because of testimony about the local cost involved.

Aides to state school Supt. Wilson Riles say such inspections once a week would cost about $17.5 million statewide because of the need for lifts and other equipment and the labor involved.

The monthly inspection is a compromise between weekly checks and the system in use now, which varies from district to district. Some areas already have monthly inspections of all parts, but in others it is much less frequent.

There are no estimates of the program's cost, but it is expected to be much less than weekly inspections would be.

The board committee voted to recommend the requirement to the full board meeting Friday despite reservations by committee chairman Michael Kirst.

"I'm still somewhat bothered by imposing costs when we don't know what the costs are," he said. "We've sort of nickeled and dimed the districts into significant costs."

Districts can apply to the state for reimbursement of costs from any program required by the state, but the process is sometimes cumbersome.

BY ATTORNEY GENERAL

Separate Hospital Death Probe Sought

SACRAMENTO (AP) – The state's Little Hoover Commission voted Thursday to ask the state attorney general to conduct a separate investigation of patient deaths at state mental hospitals.

The vote came at a public hearing where a staff doctor at Metropolitan State Hospital in Norwalk accused another doctor at the same hospital of being responsible for patient deaths, and accused other employes of sadistic mistreatment of patients.

Raymond Procunier, who is already heading a probe of the state hospital deaths at Gov. Edmund Brown Jr.'s request, said he would welcome a second investigation by the attorney general.

Procunier has said he has screened reports on 1,100 deaths at the state hospitals in the last three years, and has determined that 139 of them are highly questionable.

Last week he announced that all 139 cases will be submitted to local district attorneys, although he expected very few to result in criminal prosecutions.

He said that some employes who are cleared by district attorneys will be subject to disciplinary action by the department.

The probe suggestion came from member Sen. Milton Marks, R-San Francisco, who said he didn't believe that people can investigate themselves. Before he started his probe, Procunier, who once headed the state prison system, was named by Brown as chief deputy director of the state Health Department, which operates the hospitals.

The commission also approved another Marks suggestion: that the attorney general investigate charges by Dr. Glenn Wright, a staff doctor at Metropolitan State Hospital, that he has been harassed and threatened with disciplinary action since his testimony before the commission in November in Santa Ana.

At that hearing, and again Thursday, Wright denounced Dr. Alexander Buehler, another Metropolitan psychiatrist, charging him with responsibility for patient deaths.

Wright said that since his Santa Ana testimony he had been put on "administrative leave" with pay.

He also gave the commission and reporters copies of a "peer review," signed by two other Metropolitan doctors, dated Dec. 23, which states that Wright was suffering from "a paranoid state characterized by grandiosity and delusions of persecution."

Procunier told a reporter that Buehler has been on extended sick leave.

He told the commission that he is investigating 15 deaths at Metropolitan, and that five of the cases are set for a coroner's inquest.

Procunier denied Wright's charge that the Metropolitan staff was sadistic. He said there might be an occasional "bad apple," but "I think it's horrible for anyone to say that the staff is sadistic."

Wright countered that Procunier "believes what he wants to believe at the verbal level."

Health Director Jerome Lackner, who was in the audience, told a reporter he also would welcome an attorney general's investigation of the hospitals. But he said he believed local district attorneys would be more objective, since the attorney general is the Health Department's lawyer.

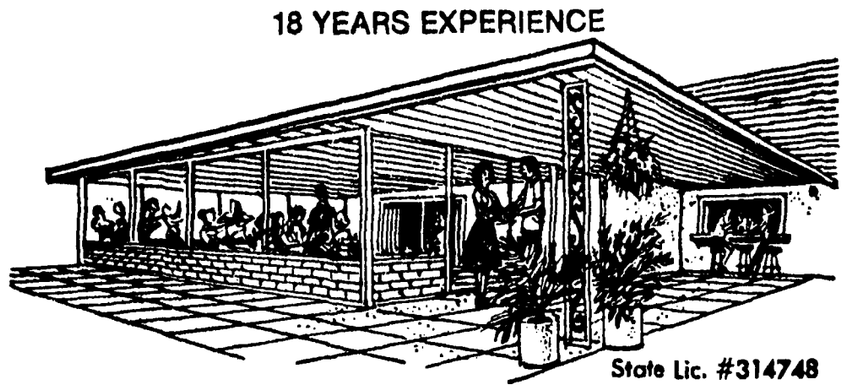

Bergland Policy To Accommodate 'The Inevitable'

WASHINGTON (AP) – Rep. Robert Bergland said Thursday that as secretary of agriculture in the Carter administration he intends to adopt a policy "that accommodates the inevitable" rather than assuming normal weather every year.

The Minnesota Democrat told a news conference that "I intend to be resourceful and try some things we've never tried before." He added that "I am not afraid of consumers and I am not satisfied with the status quo."

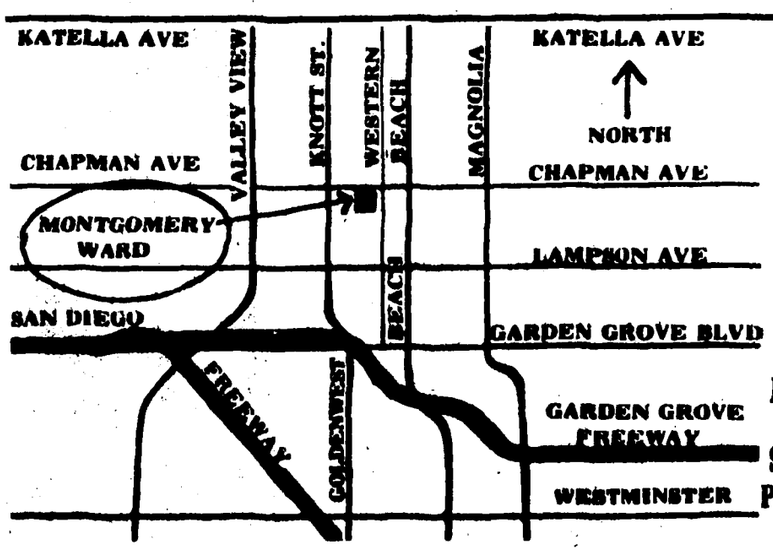

Bergland was endorsed Tuesday for the Carter Cabinet post by the Senate Agriculture Committee and is expected to be confirmed next week. He said he would announce other political appointments in the department then.

PRE-TRIAL VIDEO TAPING OKAYED FOR COURT USE

FRESNO (AP) - Video tapes can be made of depositions or testimony prior to a trial if they also are recorded stenographically, the state's 5th District Court of Appeal has ruled.

The decision, the first of its kind in California, came with Associate Justices Donald R. Franson and Roy J. Gargano in the majority and Presiding Justice George A. Brown dissenting.

The ruling said "writing is defined very broadly to include all forms of tangible expression, including pictures and sound recordings."

However, Brown called the decision "a distressing example of unauthorized judicial legislation." He said the legislature should decide standards for allowing video taping.

The appeal stemmed from a Kern County Superior Court case in which Paul Sherod Bailey contended that Sears, Roebuck and Co. negligently designed and built a radial arm saw.

Four fingers on Bailey's right hand were severed while he was using the saw.

Company attorneys obtained a court order to video tape and stenographically record a reenactment of the saw's operation without the power on, and Bailey appealed.

The appellate decision affirmed a lower court pretrial ruling.

Rejected Nominee Carswell 'Happy' Carpenter

TALLAHASSEE, Fla. (AP) - G. Harrold Carswell, the onetime U.S. Supreme Court nominee who was arrested on a men's room morals charge last June, says he's "just doing fine, thank you," living on a pension, remodeling an old house and mixing in Tallahassee society.

Carswell no longer practices law, however, according to a former law partner.

"When this happened to Harrold, old Tallahassee kind of closed ranks," says Dorothy Clifford, editor of the Tallahassee Democrat's society pages. "It doesn't matter what others think. They think the whole family's been abused, and they're behind them 100 per cent."

Casual friends who talked to Carswell and his wife Virginia at the Colonels Club Christmas Ball and the Cotillion on New Year's Eve say they seemed happy and were in high spirits.

Carswell, then 56, reportedly threatened suicide and underwent extensive psychiatric treatment after he was accused of making a homosexual advance to a vice squad officer whom he met in a shopping mall men's room. The former federal court judge pleaded no contest to a charge of battery and was fined $100 on Oct. 31. A charge of attempting a lewd and lascivious act was dropped.

Carswell was nominated to the Supreme Court by then-president Richard Nixon in 1970, but the U.S. Senate rejected him after it was reported that Carswell had endorsed racial segregation years earlier as a young legislative candidate in Georgia.

His name surfaced again recently in connection with another former judge, Griffin Bell, who is President-elect Carter's attorney general-designate.

Bell's support for Carswell's appointment to the high court is one of the matters on which Bell was expected to face questioning Tuesday from the Senate Judiciary Committee.

Carswell no longer practices law, according to W. Guy McKenzie Jr., his former law partner. McKenzie said he took over the cases Carswell was involved in at the time of his arrest.

A friend said Carswell draws a disability pension based on four years of World War II Navy service, five years as U.S. attorney in Tallahassee and 12 years as a federal court judge.

Carswell devotes much of his time these days to restoring an old house he had moved from the Bainbridge, Ga., area to rural Jefferson County, Fla., about 30 miles east of Tallahassee.

Friends say that remodeling the house with his son, George, is a labor of love for Carswell. The family has been living in a condominium, but friends say they plan to move to the house soon.

From MRS. GEORGE L. SNIDER, JR., 1501 E. Maple Ave., Orange:

"We are sorry we did not contact you sooner about this. We wrote Mr. Tarkenton at the South Coast Plaza Hotel (where the Minnesota Vikings were in residence the week before the Super Bowl) and also talked to the team's assistant public relations man, but there was a matter of security and time. Anyway, here is the information:

"Craig Snider, 10, has been oil painting since Feb. of '72 (two months shy of his sixth birthday) and has been doing so ever since primarily in the summer months when school is out. He is the youngest student his teacher ever has had.

"He has won a couple of ribbons but the 'best' was last November when he won a first place in the 8-13 category in his teacher's,

"His room, as you can see by the enclosed photos, is covered with Viking posters and he not only has a purple Viking shirt but a jersey and pants, helmet, sox, jacket, pajamas, mug and, believe it or not, pillow cases! In his stocking for Christmas was a copy of 'No Time for Losing.'

"Win or lose, Corky, as he prefers to be called, is a loyal fan. (CORKY: Nice going. You are one Viking who won)

From CHARLES WILLIAM RICE, 1011 N. Towner, Santa Ana:

"Would it be possible for you to plug our young men's baseball league? We have participants from Orange, Villa Park, El Modena, Santa Ana and other nearby communities. We've always had good coverage from The Register.

"I hope you can run the fact that signups for the Orange Pony, Colt and Thorobred Leagues will be conducted Saturday (Jan. 15) from 8:30 a.m. to 5 p.m. and on Sunday from 1 p.m. to 5 p.m.

"These signups will be conducted at Serrano elementary school, 1774k Serrano Ave., Villa Park. Age groups are Pony 13-14; Colt 15-16, Thorobreds, 17-20. Those wishing additional information should call 774-3959."

From JOSEPH ARO, Vice president, Garden Globetrotters, 5746 Sunset Blvd., Los Angeles:

"An item appeared in your column recently which mentioned my most favorite basketball team. Mr. Max P. Sitter of 829 Lemon, Anaheim said, 'The Real Globetrotters are Meadowlark Lemon and his entourage. To watch them we have always had to travel to L.A. The team that visits Anaheim are rated Globetrotters No. 2-3- or is it No. 4 team?'

"I've taken so long to comment on Mr. Sitter's letter because I've been traveling around the country visiting unCalifornia-like places such as Chicago, Pittsburgh, Cincinnati, several cities in Montana, western Canada and the ever popular Emporia, Kansas. Now, on the eve of our 50th birthday I can watch the rain fall and write a letter to an old, old friend of Abe, Morry and the Harlem Globetrotters.

"I wonder how those fellows, who 50 years ago went to Hinckley, Ill. for the first Globetrotter game, would feel about Mr. Sitter's claim that only Meadowlark Lemon and 'his entourage' are the real Globetrotters. Since that first game we've been fortunate enough to have several hundred outstanding athletes wear our familiar red, white and blue uniform. All were real Globetrotters, Eddie.

"This is not to say we are taking anything away from Meadowlark, who is indeed an incredible athlete and performer. But, we do NOT rate our units 1 or 2. We have one team with 20 men under contract to play Harlem Globetrotters-style basketball. These 20 men are divided into two touring units, each as spectacular as the other.

UNITS WORK ALTERNATELY

"The fact of the matter is, we have scheduled both units for several years into cities on alternate years, both have played the same city during the same season, and there are places Meadowlark has never been seen in this country. Tonight he is with our National Unit in Murray, Kentucky. Tomorrow he's going to be in Memphis, Saturday Atlanta, Sunday Birmingham and Monday Pine Bluff, Arkansas.

"The International Unit is playing in Sioux City as they head toward the Pacific Northwest and Vancouver, Portland and Seattle. What I'm trying to say is both units play cities large and small throughout the country. Each Unit has its stars and particular talents. Our International

Judge To Delay Historic Decision

CHICAGO (AP) – The trial in Charles O. Finley's $3.5 million suit against Baseball Commissioner Bowie Kuhn ended Thursday with cross-examination of Kuhn's testimony, but no decision was handed down.

U.S. District Judge Frank J. McGarr gave attorneys for both sides 45 days to file their final briefs on or before Feb. 28 before he reaches a decision as the trial closed on its 15th day.

Finley, owner of the Oakland A's, last June sold pitcher Vida Blue to the New York Yankees for $1.5 million and outfielder Joe Rudi and pitcher Rollie Fingers to the Boston Red Sox for a million dollars each.

Kuhn negated the deals as "not in the best interests of baseball" and Finley followed with his suit.

McGarr repeatedly said the issue before him was whether Kuhn had the power and authority to void the deals. The judge also dismissed the Boston Red Sox and the New York Yankees from the suit and said it was clearly an issue between Finley and Kuhn.

Finley's chief counsel, Neil Papiano, cross-examined Kuhn in the trial's final hours with Kuhn admitting that none of the major league clubs complained to him about disrupting competitive balance in baseball because of Finley's sales.

The defense repeatedly has argued about competitive balance and of richer clubs gaining star players in Finley's mode of operation.

Kuhn, asked if there were any restrictions against richer clubs outbidding the poorer clubs, said no.

When asked if he realized that three months after he voided the deals both Rudi and Fingers, who had played out their options, would be available to richer clubs, he replied, "I wouldn't put it that way, no."

Q–Did you know any way that the Oakland club could recoup its investments in Rudi and Fingers other than sales?

A–He (Finley) already had the players for many years and it is safe to say he had recouped his investments.

Kuhn also admitted that Rudi and Fingers had substantial value.

"One million dollars each?" asked Papiano.

"I wouldn't put a price on it," said Kuhn, "But the fact the Boston club would pay one million dollars for each is some indication."

Kuhn insisted that Finley's conduct was inconsistent with policy set through the Players' Relations Committee and that his disapproval of the sales would help develop the re-entry system "That would help preserve competitive balance."

Papiano asked if there was any reason Kuhn singled out the Oakland club and Kuhn said, "It made the unprecedented deal. No one else had."

Kuhn, asked if he were aware that other clubs were having difficulty signing players, said yes.

"Was Oakland having the most difficulties?"

"I don't know," said Kuhn. "Boston...Baltimore."

"On June 15, 1976," asked Papiano.

"I would surmise Oakland," said Kuhn.

Papiano also brought up the deal in which Curt Flood was sent from St. Louis to Philadelphia and Flood had asked Kuhn to void the deal but Kuhn had written back to Flood that he could see no specific objections and couldn't take any action.

Asked if he had unilateral power to create, adopt or revoke contract assignments, Kuhn said, "Create or adopt, no. Revoke, yes, under the best interest clause."

Kuhn also admitted that at a hearing he called last June 17 before voiding the deals, the New York Yankees felt he did not have the authority to void the transactions.

Kuhn also used the term "cannibalizing his team" when he asked Lee MacPhail, president of the American League, to talk Finley out of making the sales. He said MacPhail's response was, "'I can't, he hung up on me.'"

Both sides seemed confident at the end of the trial and McGarr, who has been hearing the case before "full houses," commended attorneys on both sides for conducting a fine trial "which I enjoyed," then made a reference to "popcorn concessions."

BERKELEY, Calif. (AP) – UCLA forward David Greenwood scored a career-high 34 points and teammate Marques Johnson added 20 as the 12th ranked Bruins defeated California 82-74 in a Pacific-8 basketball game Thursday night.

Wrigley Rips Madlock, Other Holdouts

CHICAGO (AP) – Chicago Cubs owner Philip K. Wrigley says he does not think the team can sign third baseman Bill Madlock to a new contract and threatened to trade the two-time National League batting champion.

"I frankly don't expect we'll be able to sign Madlock," Wrigley said in a copyrighted interview in Friday editions of The Chicago Tribune. "Yes, we'll surely trade him if we can find somebody foolish enough to take him."

Madlock says he wants a multi-year contract and that Wrigley has indicated he would consider such a pact but has balked at going much over the $100,000 mark. Told of the owner's threat to trade him, the batting champion replied:

"My bags are packed."

"If the Cubs don't think I'm worth it, fine," Madlock said. "They can send me on. I'd be stupid to sign for $105,000 or $110,000."

Wrigley's comments came on the heels of a trade of star center fielder Rick Monday. The Cubs owner said it was the high salary demands of Monday that triggered the swap for the Dodgers' Bill Buckner, who already says he is disappointed to be coming to a non-contender. The Cubs have not won a pennant in more than three decades.

Of Monday, long a mainstay of the Cub lineup, Wrigley said, "A player like that who tries to deal with us is going to be sorry."

Asked if Buckner also might seek a multi-year contract, Wrigley said, "We're still talking to him."

Wrigley referred to a statement made by new Cubs Vice President Bob Kennedy, who has assumed the duties of general manager.

"I liked it when Kennedy said, 'Nobody ever won anything with mercenaries,'" Wrigley said, adding that the late Tom Yawkey had failed to build a championship team out of the Boston Red Sox in the 1930s, even though he paid large amounts of cash for players.

"Yawkey proved conclusively that you can't buy a pennant," Wrigley said.

"Nobody is worth over $100,000," said Wrigley, who is chairman of the Wrigley Co., which manufactures chewing gum. "Three years ago, I signed Billy Williams for the biggest contract he ever got with us, $150,000.

"When he walked out of my office, I said to him, 'Do you realize what you're getting? Three times what I'm making as chairman of the board of the Wrigley Co.' Know what he said to me? 'So what?'"

Ray Townsend Hospitalized

BERKELEY (AP) – Starting UCLA guard Raymond Townsend was reported in satisfactory condition today after being hospitalized for abdominal pains following a basketball game against California.

Rhonda Salisbury, information officer for Alta Bates Hospital, said Townsend was checked in at 11:45 p.m. Thursday and was in the intensive care unit undergoing tests.

The 6-foot-3 Bruin played 23 minutes against Cal, scoring four points, before complaining of severe stomach pains. The Bruins went on to defeat Cal 82-74.

Delayed Birdie Gives Fesler Tie For Lead

By BOB GREEN

TUCSON, Ariz. (AP) – Forrest Fezler scored a delayed birdie on his final hole today, finished off a five-under-par 67 and joined five others in a tie for the first-round lead in the $200,000 Joe Garagiola-Tucson Open Golf Tournament.

Fezler and 26 others were stranded on the 7,305-yard Tucson National Golf Club course by darkness and had to return today to finish their rounds. Thursday's play had been held up more than one-half hour by frost and frozen greens and officials were unable to get the full field around the longest course on the tour before darkness halted play.

Fezler had only one hole – the tough ninth – to play and scored a birdie three that lifted him into a tie for the lead with former British Open king Tom Watson, Dr. Gil Morgan, Andy North, Alan Taple and Gary McCord, all of whom finished play Thursday.

Kings Falter

BOSTON (AP) — Earl Anderson, who sat out most of last season with a leg injury, scored his sixth goal in 12 games early in the third period Thursday night to propel the Boston Bruins to a 4-3 victory in over the Los Angeles Kings in a National Hockey League game.

Veteran winger Frank St. Marseille had two goals for the Kings, who dropped their fifth game in six on their current road trip.

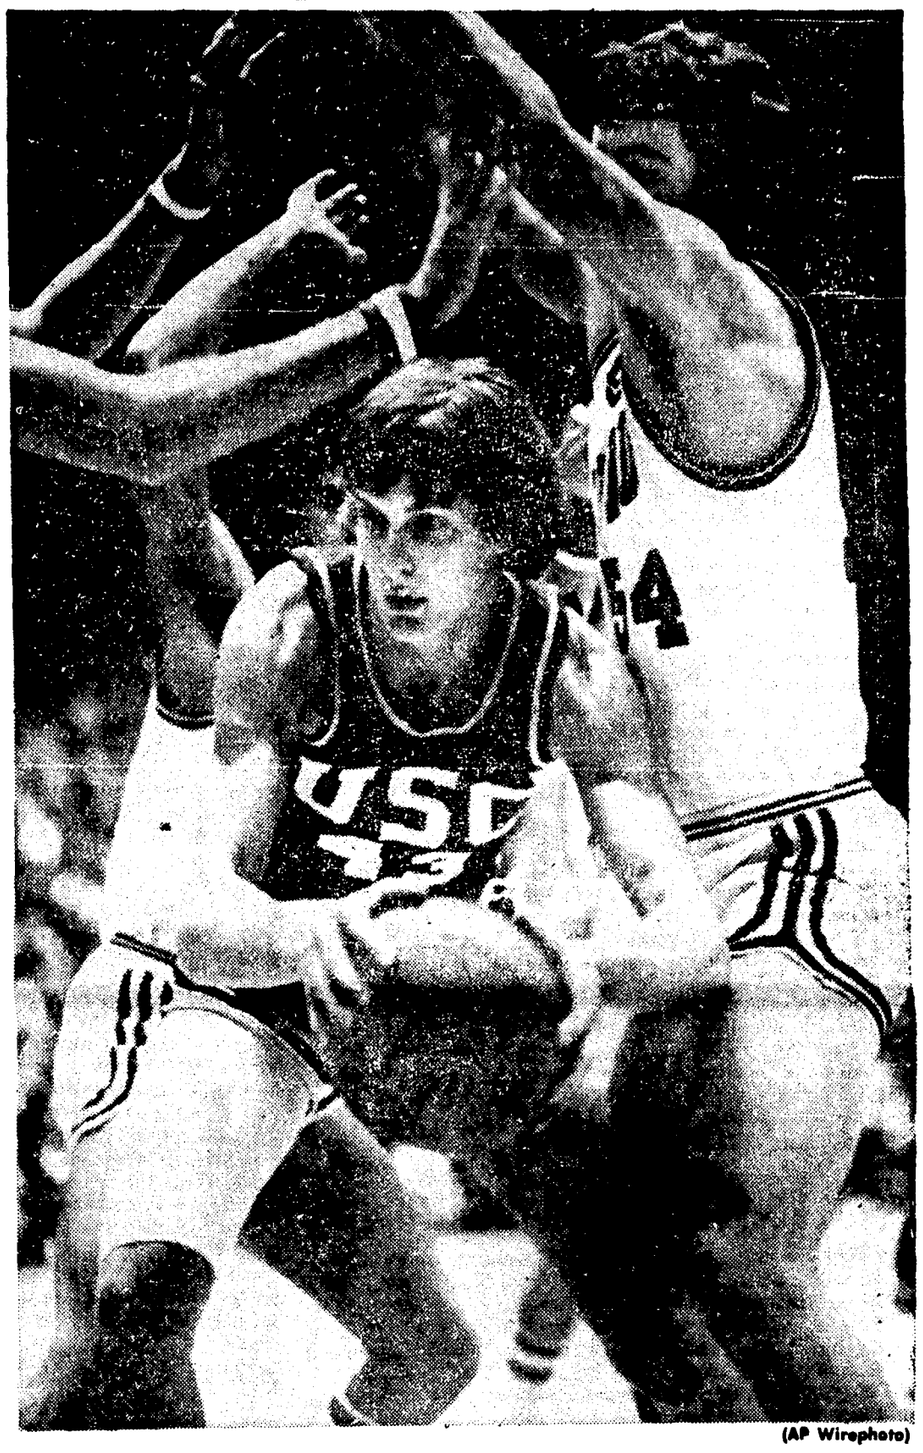

The Bruins kept coming from behind to tie through the first two periods.

Marcel Dionne popped in the first goal, his 24th, with only 13 seconds gone in the first period. But Terry O'Reilly matched it on a backhander with Dave Hutchison draped over his at 4:45.

St. Marseille got the first of his par at 11:28 with a drive that bounced in off Brad Park. But Johnny Bucyk scored his 15th of the season on a power play at 15:17 to even it.

STANFORD, Calif. (AP) – Senior guard Mike Bratz scored 21 points, including 15 in the second half, to lead Stanford to a 68-64 Pacific-8 basketball win over Southern California Thursday night.

Bratz sparked a comeback that saw the Cardinals rebound from a 31-28 halftime deficit to take the lead for the first time with less than five minutes left.

With the score tied 58-58 and three minutes remaining, Stanford scored six straight points on lay-ups to take an insurmountable 64-58 lead.

Cuba Offered $1 Million For Spinks-Teofilo Bout

NEW YORK (AP) – A $1 million bid has been made to the Cuban government in an effort to match Olympic heavyweight champion Teofilo Stevenson with Leon Spinks of the United States, the light heavyweight gold medalist, it was announced Thursday.

Promoter Bob Arum of Top Rank, Inc., made the offer to Cuban Premier Fidel Castro in a letter delivered to the Cuban mission to the United Nations. Arum said the $1 million purse would be posted in New York next week.

Spinks, discharged from the Marines last month, will make his professional debut Saturday at Las Vegas in a nationally televised (CBS) bout against Lightning Bob Smith.

Arum's proposal would pay the $1 million to the Cuban government, allowing Stevenson to maintain his amateur status. Top Rank would like to stage the 10-round fight in Kingston, Jamaica with Lucien Chen as co-promoter.

Quick Whistles Stir Boo-Birds

By CARL SAWYER

Blake Taylor did it again the other night at Long Beach Sports Arena. He dribbled the basketball across the top of the key, executed a miraculous U-turn in midair, then twisted toward the basket for a stuff shot.

An official blew his whistle, claiming Taylor had taken steps, disallowing the basket. The call was met by a chorus of booos from the stands.

Taylor executed the same fantastic move last March in the semi-finals of the Sunkist-State JC Tournament at Fresno when he led Santa Ana College against Compton College. Again, an official refused to believe that a 6-2 player of Taylor's dimensions could make such a move.

Good officials outnumber bad officials, so most of Taylor's fantastic moves with the basketball are not halted by knowledgeable officials who recognize a great offensive player when they see one.

A JC All-American in his only season with the Dons, Taylor now is exciting crowds which watch Arizona State play basketball. Taylor's latest heroics came at the expense of Long Beach State.

Taylor scored seven points in the final three minutes to lead the Sun Devils to a 79-78 victory over the 49ers. He made a three-point play, stole a pass for a driving slam dunk and then sank two free throws with 11 seconds left to put the win in escrow for Arizona State.

He finished with 17 points in only 20 minutes of action.

Community college basketball coaches are reluctant to berate officials who work their games, but most agree that many of the bad calls seen on the JC level spring from officials who work more prep games than college contests, so aren't prepared to believe that today's JC cagers can execute such spectacular and perfectly legal offensive moves.

Anticipation Causes Problems

Orange County's rapid rise in the development of high school basketball talent also has been marked by improvement in the officiating ranks, but fans and coaches still become infuriated on occasions by some officials who are guilty of anticipating infractions that never occur.

There are high school players in Orange County today able to make unbelievable offensive moves that some officials refuse to believe are possible. A whistle toot by an unknowing official quickly erases many great moves seen on the high school courts and it follows then, that the problem is transferred to the JC level when those same officials work community college games.

Thankfully, Orange County is far ahead of other areas in insuring the best officiating possible. Officials working games in this area are more knowledgeable of rules and regulations than other spots because they work at it harder.

It's always popular to put the knock on officials working basketball games, but it should be pointed out that a lot of great players have managed to sparkle and move to the major college level regardless of the caliber of officiating they encountered along the way.

Taylor isn't the only JC phenom from Orange County and the surrounding area who now makes headlines on the major college level.

Santa Ana College probably has the most standouts in the collegiate ranks because of the success of the Don program over the past six years, but there are many others from other schools also doing well.

The list of ex-Dons in college basketball is impressive when you consider Taylor at Arizona State, Jim Cunningham at Portland State, George Weaver at University of New Orleans, Steve Snodgress at Occidental, Paul Stewart and Gregg Green at Los Angeles State, Barrie Elliott at Point Loma College and Bart Penfold at Cal Poly of San Luis Obispo.

Lovelace Helps Hilo Win

Bob Holgate, out of Fullerton College, is one of Weber State's best shooters, Paul Schilleci from Golden West College is at Washington State and ex-Rustler Jack Fletcher is at Tulane, ex-Mt. San Antonio stars George Schrader is at Stanford, Kirk Christ is at UC Irvine, and Gary Malugin and Duaine Harding are at Chico State.

Saddleback College is represented by Mark Lovelace at University of Hawaii at Hilo, Mike Bokosky at Fort Lewis in Colorado and Dave Maze at Chapman College. Lovelace has been a key factor in Hawaii-Hilo being the surprise team of the college season with a 9-1 record following impressive wins over New Mexico and Nebraska.

Hawaii-Hilo's only loss was to the University of North Carolina at Charlotte, the runnerup to champion Kentucky in the National Invitational Tournament at Madison Square Garden.

And don't forget Willie Howard from Cerritos College who now sparkles at University of New Mexico. Cypress College has eight ex-Chargers active with Rick Quinn at San Jose State, Jeff Jones at Lewis and Clark, Pat Barrett at Southern Cal College, John J. Moore at Redlands, John E. Moore at Westmont, and the threesome of Randy Forgette, Phil Brake and Steve Jesser at Fresno-Pacific.

There are more where these collegians came from. They are now performing on your local high school and JC basketball courts.

Grandmother Wants A Score

Freeway Deadlock To End

By DAVID OSTERMAN

A first place deadlock in the Freeway League basketball race is on the line tonight as Lowell High and Sunny Hills High meet at the Lancer gym for an 8 p.m. game.

The two teams are both 3-0 in the loop race and Lowell coach Barry Gottula is expecting a fast and furious game for the showdown.

"Sunny Hills plays a pressure type defense which constantly attacks the ball," said Gottula, who coached at Sunny Hills before coming to Lowell. "We play a pressure defense, too, but not quite as hard as they do.

"We've also been running more since league play began," said Gottula, "but we're not the run and gun team Sunny Hills has been this year."

The two teams are both averaging over 60 points a game and Lowell is averaging 72 in league play. The big scorer for Sunny Hills has been 6-0 guard Sloan Carlson, who is averaging a 16 points game, while the brother act of Ron and Gary Heil has averaged 14.9 and 13.7, respectively, for Lowell.

In other key contests in Orange County tonight, Costa Mesa tries to get back into the South Coast race when the Mustangs invade Corona del Mar for an 8 p.m. game. The Mustangs are 1-2 in league play while the Sea Kings are 3-0. The game should be a battle of the front lines with Corona del Mar depending on 6-7 Alex Black and 6-6 Jack Tuz, while Costa Mesa looks to forward Steve Parrino and Gary Wills. All four players are averaging over 15 points a game.

In the Century League, Santa Ana invades Estancia in a battle for second place. The Saints and Estancia are both 10-4 on the year and a game behind 3-0 Santa Ana Valley in the league. Tustin, also 2-1 in league, meets Orange while Valley hosts Villa Park in other league games. All contests start at 8 p.m.

El Dorado, a surprise leader in the Orange League, invades Valencia for a 7:30 game. The Hawks were only 6-5 in preleague but are 3-0 in the loop. The Tigers are 10-4 on the year, but two of the losses have been in league. La Habra, 2-1 in league play, hosts Canyon in another key game.

Mater Dei and Servite also begin league wars as the Angelus League opens its 1977 season.

Mater Dei, with an impressive 12-4 mark, invades Pius X. Jim Schultz of Mater Dei needs only eight assists in the game to become the all-time CIF career leader in that category.

Servite hosts St. Paul in its league opener. The Friars are off to their best start in recent years, with an 8-4 mark.

St. Anthony travels to Bishop Amat in the other Angelus League game. All three games start at 7:30.

Biola Stops Vanguards

By CHUCK ABAIR

Biola College came from six points behind with an 11-2 spree starting the second half and lead the rest of the way to gain a 71-61 basketball triumph at Southern California College Thursday night.

The streaking Eagles made their record 11-4 and dropped the shorthanded Vanguards to 5-6.

SCC was playing without suspended No. 2 scorer Tom McCourt with veteran guard Fred Glaster ineligible temporarily.

Reserve Tim Siefkin scored 14 points in the second half for Biola to take game honors with 18. He didn't miss a shot in the last 20 minutes hitting five field goals and four fouls.

Mike Bunn, who had seven of the first nine Biola points after intermission followed with 13.

Ted Bergerson topped the balanced hosts with 15 to 14 for Jeff Malstead, Dave Barron's 12 and 10 for Randy Adams

Neither team shot well as halftime records of 14-37 for the losers and 13-36 for Biola indicated. Then after the rest period the home team could make just one of its next seven shots as the La Mirada cagers jumped out in front.

After dominating the early play and leading by eight, Biola trailed 34-42 before going on a 10-point streak to apparently break it open. Southern Cal narrowed the gap to six and the visitors went into a delay game.

It was 62-54 with 3:33 to play when the Vanguards committed two straight turnovers and then Biola made one. Trailing by eight, SCC came up with two steals and hit three ensuing free throws to make it 64-59, but get no closer.

Beavers Edge Washington St.

CORVALLIS, Ore. (AP) – Rocky Smith's basket with 3:15 left gave Oregon State the lead for keeps as the Beavers posted a 61-58 Pacific-8 Conference victory over Washington State Thursday night.

Smith led all scorers with 22 points. Steve Puidokas led Washington State scoring with 19 points.

A successful free throw by Stuart House cut the 59-57 advantage that Smith's field goal gave the Beavers, but George Tucker hit two free throws with 25 seconds remaining to complete the scoring.

County Girls Win In Field Hockey

Six Orange County teams won opening round matches in the CIF girls' field hockey playoffs Thursday afternoon with top-seeded La Habra High getting a scare.

La Habra and Claremont battled to a scoreless tie with the Highlanders advancing due to 100 seconds of penetration time more than Claremont.

Among the county teams advancing, Edison stopped Kennedy, 4-0, University blanked La Quinta, 3-0, Foothill edged Westminster, 1-0, and Sonora handled neighborhood rival Lowell, 4-0.

Garden Grove and Buena Park battled to a 1-1 tie in a contest in which the offenses dominated. Buena Park scored in the first half on a goal but Garden Grove bounced back with five minutes gone in the second half on Sue Doser's goal. Buena Park had two corner kicks against Garden Grove in the finals two minutes but goalie Sue Mercado turned back the attack. Lori Mitani and Nancy Mercado also stars for Garden Grove which had nearly eight minutes penetration time to 6 1/4 for Buena Park to pick up the win.

Shelly Holman scored just before halftime to give Edison a 1-0 lead and the Chargers scored three times in the second half to put the game out of reach. Randean Rona scored two goals and Tracy Hanlon scored on in the second half for the Sunset League champs.

Carol Gilliland scored early in the contest and the Foothill defense made the goal stand up in defeating Westminster. Ande Valle and Connie George helped to pace the defense.

University (13-0-1) remained undefeated as the young team, the CIF runnerup last year, blanked La Quinta. Grace McCarley scored two goals for University, one in each half while Sue Walker added a goal in the second half for University.

Unit features Marques Haynes, the world's greatest dribbler and Geese Ausbie, a man who has made millions laugh around the world.

"I can't fault anyone for having their favorites, as I've enjoyed many Globetrotters. My first game was watching Goose Tatum, Bobby Milton, Marques Haynes, Josh Grider and Pop Gates at the Coliseum in Baltimore, Maryland. What a night that was! The Coliseum, which was torn down many years ago, could hold perhaps 3000. Instead of risers for the floor seats, folding chairs were precariously perched on wooden soda pop cases.

"After that I marvelled at the ball-handling of J. C. Gipson, Showboat Hall, Rookie Brown and so many other outstanding Trotters. You can imagine how I felt eight years ago when offered the opportunity to work for this incredible floating basketball game!

"I guess I have to smile at those who think only one person represents 'the real Harlem Globetrotters.' I've traveled around the world seeing the joy in so many eyes as our magicians display their magic. I've watched a section of stands filled with children from a hospital for the blind 'watching' our team with unequaled glee. There's something special for me when I hear Sweet Georgia Brown and watch these fantastic black men play a brand of basketball that for years was considered hotdogging and undesireable by more orthodox exponents of the sport.

"I'm not writing to get anything off my chest, merely passing along a thought or two a few hours before our Golden Day. By the way, playing with the Harlem Globetrotters at the Anaheim Convention Center on February 2 will be Nate Branch from the University of Nebraska, Jackie Jackson of Virginia Union, Edmond Lawrence (a seven-foot rookie who was the second center to be drafted by the NBA last spring-from McNeese State College); Robert Paige-another seven-foot rookie from Houston Baptist University; Larry Rivers, an outstanding dribbler from Missouri Western; Dallas Thornton from the NAIA champion Kentucky Wesleyan Panthers, Jerry Venable of Kansas State, Curly Neal and Twiggy Sanders from Johnson C. Smith University and Meadowlark Lemon."

(All this and Meadowlark too?)

UCI Sizzles

Leading most of the way, UC Irvine shot 59.2 per cent from the floor Thursday night to hand Missouri of Kansas City a 79-69 defeat at Crawford Hall.

Lou Stephens sparked UCI's sixth win in 14 games with 27 points – 19 in the second half. Scott Jenkins added 15 while Frank Chandler paced a 32-25 rebound advantage with nine to go with nine points.

Mike Jones hit 25 as the visitors dropped to 9-4.

The Anteaters, who are now 5-2 at home, were behind three times in the first half, but went ahead to stay at 28-27 and were in front 34-31 at the intermission.

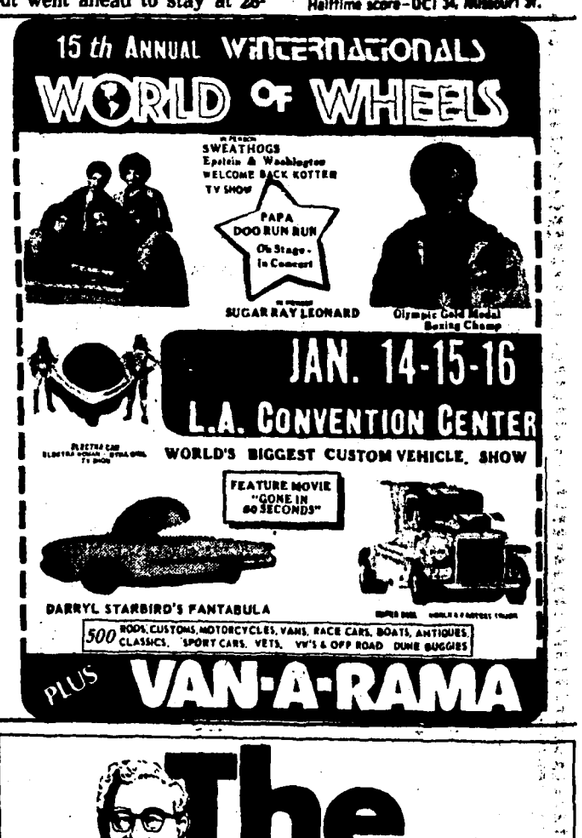

Then Stephens, who made 12 of 18 field attempts, got hot while the losers were hitting just 37.2 per cent.

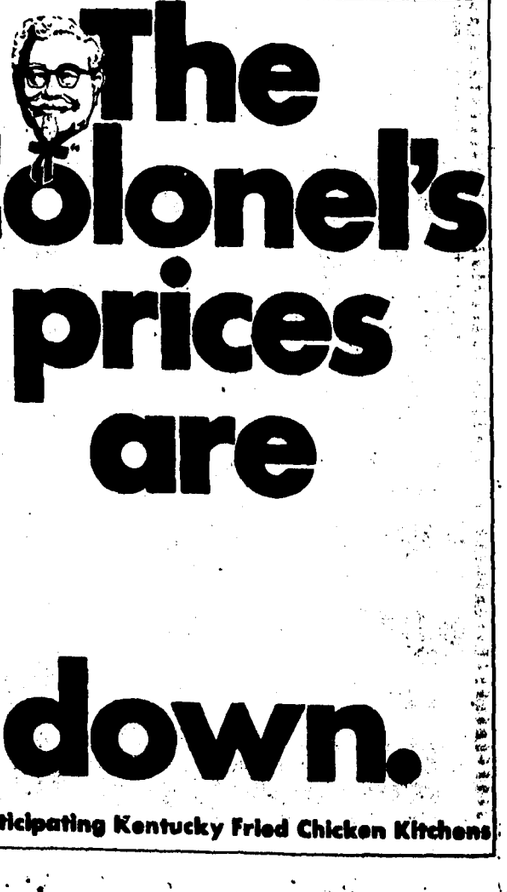

Irvine continues a homestand Saturday night against Northern Colorado.

MISSOURI (KC) (69) – W. Jones 5, M. Jones 25, Nickols 12, Bryant 6, Hatfield 2, R. Jenkins 10, Trigg 5, Daniels 4.

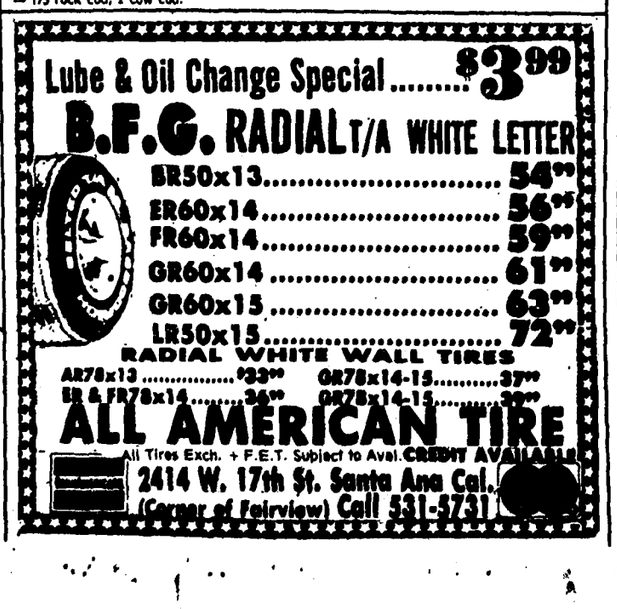

UC IRVINE (79) – Jenkins 15, Rodgers 4, Chandler 9, Tivenan 16, Stephens 27, Lovinger 2, Gonzalez 7, Carson 2, Christ 1, Knudsen 2.

Fouled out – W. Jones.

While the Chargers and Rustlers are going at it, Santa Monica visits Los Angeles City and Harbor travels to Rio Hondo.

Cypress, off to its best start which includes an impressive 88-77 win over Santa Monica, has its eyes set on a conference championship and Johnson has a cool crew of sharpshooters aiming and hitting at a remarkable rate.

Auto Racing Needs Education – Petty

RIVERSIDE – Richard Petty, the ordained king of the good ole boys, doesn't operate out of the back of a medicine wagon but he is nonetheless constantly involved in the hard sell.

"Maybe educate is a better word," Petty says. "We need more people so we had better work at getting 'em educated."

Petty's game is stock car racing, like the one at Riverside Raceway this weekend. Upwards of 40,000 will attend whereas if the thing were held in the South (where stock car racing is the national pastime) upwards of 100,000 would purchase tickets.

"That's what I mean about educating 'em." says Petty, known as The King.

I, for one, have never felt that learning was all that essential. You go to a stock car race and eyeball the broads in tight jeans and halters and read the inspirational messages written on the backs of the guys' T shirts. Then you watch the cars ride around the track.

Heavy Stuff

I know, some guys can tell you about carburators and fuel injection and manifolds. Some even lay on you the heavy stuff such as one mile is 1.60934 kilometers. Or, if you prefer, one kilometer is 0.62237 mile which makes the Riverside race 500 kilometers or 310 miles.

But all this knowledge hardly seems necessary. After all, a stock car is the same as we all drive to work except that it doesn't have any accessories and the driver gets in through the window.

"We need new people," Richard Petty insists. "There's hard core racing fans who come to the track just because you hold a race and racing is living off 'em.

"What we got to do is reach out to those folks who ain't never been to an auto race and educate 'em."

Petty is told that other sports have entertained similar notions and found it isn't easy.

Racing authorities fear the old horse players are dying off and new ones are not being born and therefore must be made. The equine operators have tried everything from rock and roll bands to wine tasting but progress has been slow, albeit sure.

Soccer is another sport which has launched a giant educational drive in this country. Often, the promoters are confused by the results of their efforts.

For instance, Pele, the most celebrated star in the history of the game , was brought to our town. His reception was cordial, but mild.

Then they brought in a sodden English lout with a reputation for staying up all night and chasing skirts. The press and public loved the guy and would not have noticed if he never scored a goal.

Richard Petty brings up the most abused word in sports, "promotion." One of the greatest drawbacks of the word is that nobody really knows what it means. Still, whenever a sports franchise suffers from ill attendance, thousands of experts emerge from the woodwork analyzing the trouble as promotion, or lack of it.

Buzzie Expansive

When Buzzie Bavasi was enduring terrible agonies in San Diego, he received a hundred such calls a day and invited the callers to come down and explain exactly what he was doing wrong. The only one who showed up was a guy who wanted to go underground at second base and set a new record for length of time buried alive.

"I often wonder why race promoters do things the same way every time," Richard Petty says. "They seem hard to put to try new or different stuff. It's like those cats all belong to the same family. I do believe they are all reading from the same book."

Petty doesn't suggest he knows all the answers but insists education is one of them.

Still, if you have sufficient moxie to study the tight jeans and T shirts, what else should you have to know?

"There are lots of things people can learn," Richard Petty says. "Engines, safety, techniques, gravity, fuel ... all sorts of things."

Me? I'll settle for tight jeans and T shirts lest I learn more about stock car racing than I care to know.

Drake Joins Bronco Staff

Bill Drake, a former linebacker coach at Colorado, Washington and both Nevada schools, will be the defensive and recruiting coordinator and linebacker coach under new Cal Poly Pomona head man Jim Jones.

Now 26, Drake played for Jones at South Hills High School before starting three years at Colorado.

Moving from South Hills as offensive line coach is Bob Green, who previously was head coach at Workman High and played spring football in 1959 at Pomona, but was injured when the season rolled around.

He had played at Modesto JC where present CPP Athletic Director Don Warhurst and physical education instructor Barney Anooshian once coached.

Brooks Anxious To Get Back On County Job

SAN DIEGO (AP) – Last week, Larry Brooks went back to learning the banking business, a bit burned out on football. Now, he's geared up for the sport as he looks to the Pro Bowl.

"An awful lot of players would love to have this chance, but all they get to do is watch it on television," said the Los Angeles Rams' defensive tackle following a Pro Bowl practice.

The all-stars from both National Football League conferences work out under San Diego's sunny skies until Departure Saturday for Seattle and Monday's game in the Kingdome.

Brooks admits he wanted to erase thoughts of football after the bitter defeat the Rams took in the National Conference championship game against Minnesota. It was his third year on a Rams team which came within a step of the Super Bowl.

He said his desire was to get back to his banking career in California's Orange County. He figured the next time he'd face an offensive lineman would be when training camp opened in July.

But then, Defensive tackle Alan Page of the Vikings begged off the ProBowl roster because of law school exams in Minneapolis.

Brooks, as first alternate, was tapped to fill the vacuum on the 40-man National Conference squad chosen by the National Football League's head coaches.

"It's an honor for me to be here," said Brooks, who adds he doesn't mind being a substitute.

The 6-foot-3, 260-pounder from Virginia State said he is surprised teammate Merlin Olsen wasn't in the Pro Bowl picks after being in the game every year since his rookie season in 1962.

"The only thing I can think is that people didn't want him to get hurt in his final game of football," Brooks said of the retiring Olsen.

As a first-timer in the Pro Bowl, Brooks doesn't see how the game can lack intensity, as some players claim.

"I don't know how to play 'soft shoulder' or 'powder puff' football when two people start hitting each other." he said.

And, of the training sessions, he said: "I like the atmosphere here. I'm finding that people I play against during the regular season and never get to know are just ordinary guys."

'Funny Cars' To Lift Lid At Raceway

A big field of drag racing's most popular vehicles, Funny Cars, is set to open the Orange County International Raceway '77 season Saturday night.

"With the majority of the nation in a deep freeze, it's this time of year we can offer our fans an exceptional lineup of top names at a reasonable admission price," explains OCIR promoter Steve Evans.

The only man to beat Don Prudhomme during 1976, Orange County's own Gary Burgin, crashed his brand new "Orange Baron" car testing at Irwindale Raceway last Friday. "Gary escaped without injuries and will be here Saturday night with the same Mustang II that carried him to th WHRA U.S. Nationals title in '76," says Evans.

Out to stop Burgin on his home court will be the sport's master showman from Pennsylvania, "Jungle Jim" Liberman, along with '75 national champ out of Dallas, Raymond Beadle and the "Blue Max," fellow Texan Billy Meyer, former actor and Mouseketeer "TV Tommy,"Ivo from Burbank, Ed (Ace) McCulloch out of Fresno and many more. All in all, 16 of the flip top fiberglass creations will go to it at 7 p.m.

Orange County Raceway is located at the Sand Canyon exit of the Santa Ana Freeway or the Moulton Parkway exit of the San Diego Freeway.

Chargers Raise Ticket Prices

SAN DIEGO (AP) – The team with the poorest attendance in the National Football League raised the price of tickets today.

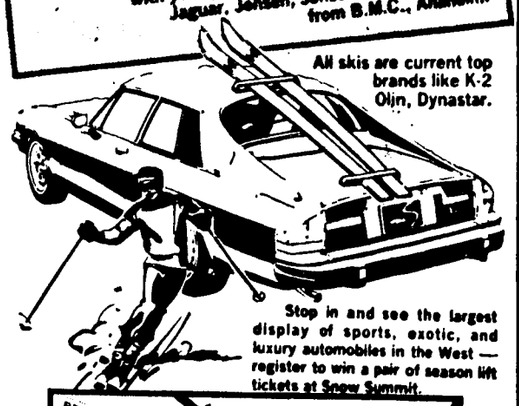

The price of general admission tickets for home games of the San Diego Chargers went from $4 to $5. The $7 seats went to $8.50, with $8.50 tickets to $10 and $13 seats to $15.

The Chargers drew 259,952 fans last year, a slight gain over 1975.

All Sports Clinic Open To Public

Headliners scheduled to speak at the seventh annual All Sports Clinic at Anaheim Convention Center Jan. 22 and 23 have stirred so much interest from the general public that director Jack Stovall has decided to open it for the first time to the public.

Football coaches Johnny Majors of Pittsburg, Johnny Robinson of USC, Terry Donahue of UCLA, Vince Dooley of Georgia and Joe Restic of Harvard give Stovall's all Sports Clinic an all-star lineup.

"We've had so many inquiries from the public that we've decided the general public deserves an opportunity to hear these fine coaches," said John Coury, manager of Inn of Tomorrow, the clinic headquarters. All persons interested in attending clinic sessions should contact the Inn of Tomorrow in Anaheim, 1110 West Katella Avenue.

Five-Way Scramble For Tucson Lead

TUCSON, Ariz. (AP) - Tom Watson made a scrambling par on the final hole just before darkness halted play Thursday and joined four others tied for the lead at 67 in the uncompleted first round of the $200,000 Joe Garagiola-Tucson Open Golf Tournament.

Tied with Watson at five under par were non-winners Dr. Gil Morgan, Gary McCord, Alan Tapie and Andy North, who held the lead alone until he bogeyed his last hole.

Craig Stadler was alone at 68, four under par, on the 7,305 yard Tucson National Golf Club course.

The start of play was delayed more than one-half hour by frost and frozen greens and 24 of the 153 players were unable to complete their round before darkness fell. They will complete play Friday morning.

None of those stranded on the course appeared to have a shot at the lead.

Johnny Miller, the British Open champion and winner of this event the last three years, continued to have his putting problems and went to a 74, seven shots back.

Rustlers, Cypress Clash

Sedan and Jim Sargent.

Depth and height give Golden West an edge in any conference matchup, but Golden West has a few guns of its own in John Hirschler, Todd Zirbel, Tom Rowan, Darryl Briggs, Dan Bush and Gary Sanders.

The Rustlers have a good thing going when they get the tempo going in their favor, a run-and-shoot atmosphere that drains the lungs and tires the legs.

Hirschler, a 6-9 sophomore at center, blocks shots with the best, then feeds to Zirbel and other Rustlers when Golden West gets control of a contest.

Harbor, problemed by a rash of ineligibilities, will try to stay in the race at Rio Hondo where coach Bob Bland's Roadrunners are languishing with a 1-2 conference record after a great preconference season.

Four key players were dumped from the Harbor squad by coach Jim White who runs one of the firmest ships in JC basketball, but there are enough talented Seahawks left to make Harbor a threat each outing.

"So far, my players have had a tough season," said White, "but they are reacting well under pressure."

Miley Drunk In Fatal Accident, Report Says

BATON ROUGE, La. (AP) – Mike Miley, former California Angels shortstop and Louisiana State University quarterback, was drunk when killed in a car wreck last week, the Louisiana crime laboratory reported.

The lab said Thursday that its tests found a reading of .23 per cent alcohol in Miley's blood. A reading of .10 is required for a person to be considered legally drunk in Louisiana.

Miley was killed Jan. 6 when his sports car missed a curve and hit a culvert about a mile from the LSU football stadium where he starred in 1973. Miley was alone in the car.

Miley reportedly had left a friend's home shortly after midnight and was headed for New Orleans when the wreck occurred.

Miley, 23, starred for LSU in baseball and football in 1972 and 1973. He passed up his senior year of eligibility and joined the Angels.

He played in only 14 games for the Angels last year. In 1975, he was called up from the minor leagues in mid-season and hit four homers, drove in 26 runs and scored 17 runs.

Packers Extend Starr's Pact

GREEN BAY, Wis. (AP) – Bart Starr's contract as coach and general manager of the Green Bay Packers is being extended for an additional two years, the Packers announced today.

The Executive Committee of the National Football League team agreed unanimously to the contract extension, which will carry through the 1979 season.

Starr, the former quarterback who helped lead the Packers to five NFL championships under the coaching of Vince Lombardi in the 1960s, succeeded Dan Devine as head coach and general manager after the 1974 season.

The Packers were 4-10 their first year under Starr, and 5-9 this past season.

Gillman Surfaces With Bears

CHICAGO (AP) – Sid Gillman, who has been head coach of the Houston Oilers, Los Angeles Rams and San Diego Chargers, is the new offensive coach of the Chicago Bears.

Gillman, 65, was hired Thursday by the Bears. In 18 years, he compiled a coaching record of 122-99-7 and won six championships.

From his home in La Costa, Calif., Gillman said, "I'm truly delighted. I feel like I'm starting on my first coaching job. The Bears are a team of young people and have fine potential."

Since leaving the Oilers in 1974, Gillman did scouting work for the Oakland Raiders, the National Football League's Super Bowl champions for the 1976 season.

Gillman's association with Bears Coach Jack Pardee goes back 20 years. He drafted Pardee as a player in 1957 while he was head coach of the Rams.

General Manager Jim Finks of the Bears said, "We are fortunate to bring in a man of Sid's knowledge and experience. This sure won't be a case of on-the-job-training. Sid knows the personnel in the National Football League and the defenses."

Finks said the contract of Jerry Stoltz, pass receiving coach, would not be renewed.

Ex-Hero Thomas Now Bankrupt

DALLAS (AP) – It was almost exactly five years ago that running back Duane Thomas led the Dallas Cowboys to a 24-3 victory over the Miami Dolphins in Super Bowl VI.

Thomas filed a voluntary bankruptcy petition in federal court here Thursday, three days short of the fifth anniversary of the greatest triumph in Cowboys' history.

The petition claimed Thomas owes $26,979.60, including $12,264 to the San Diego Chargers, a National Football League team Thomas was with for a short time after being traded by the Cowboys.

Thomas also said he was unemployed and looking for work outside sports to support himself, his pregnant wife and their two children.

A listing of his creditors indicated that Ford Motor Co. repossessed his automobile Dec. 27, 1976, and sold it at public auction.

San Diego Golf Field Expands

SAN DIEGO – Two more members of golf's top 10 money winners for 1976, Hubert Green and Don January, have entered the Andy Williams San Diego Open golf tournament Jan. 26-30 at Torrey Pines Golf Course, general chairman Hal Tebbetts has announced.

With entries already in from Ben Crenshaw, J.C. Snead, Ray Floyd, David Graham and Jerry Pate, the AWSDO has seven of the first 10 two weeks before entry deadline.

Green, fourth in earnings last year with $228,031, had a sensational streak, winning the Doral Eastern, Greater Jacksonville and Heritage Classic tournament in succession and taking second in the Tournament of Champions three weeks later. In the fall of 1976 he was runner-up in the Southern Open.

Jockeys Day, Saint-Martin Depart 'Anita

Jockey Pat Day, a late arrival on the Santa Anita riding scene only days prior to the Dec. 28 opening had his final three mounts on Thurday's program after returning to Aqueduct to resume his profession.

"I came out here at the last moment with some friends and realized before too long that was the wrong way to go about it when you're competing against the likes of Shoemaker and Pincay," Day stated. "I'm going back to New York to regroup and make some money before coming back because I really love it out here. Next time I'll be prepared."

Day will return for selected stakes engagements, most likely to handle Great Contractor, for whom he has become the regular rider after guiding the son of Selari to victory in the Jockey Club Gold Cup late last fall at Belmont Park.

French champion jockey Yves Saint-Martin has had a change of plans and will not compete at the Santa Anita meeting.

Saint-Martin, originally slated to ride yesterday in the sixth race canceled his southland stay to fulfill an obligation to ride for trainer Angel Penna in South Africa.

a 6-5 All-State prep at Alter High in Dayton before joining the Flyers. The Santa Ana grandmother is just as proud of her son James, the father of the Dayton sophomore. He's now an insurance executive in Dayton following a professional basketball career with the Lakers when the NBA franchise was in Minneapolis and later with the Cincinnati Royals . . . . Frosh recruit Dusty Dvorak, a prep All-American at Laguna Beach High, is the key to USC's volleyball success this season in the estimation of Trojan coach Ernie Hix. Dvorak has the ability to become "the best setter this country has ever produced," says Hix. Dvorak was a member of the U.S. junior national volleyball team last summer. Hix says he's extremely cool and experienced for his age and plans to use him as the hub of a 5-1 Trojan attack.

Dull Writers, Dull Coverage

One of the world's great newspapers sent its usual crew to cover the Super Bowl and the guy who wrote the lead story came back from Pasadena and reported, "Can anybody think of a way to bar the Minnesota Vikings from the Super Bowl? For the fourth time in eight winters, they proved Sunday that they don't belong in this company, blowing Super Bowl XI to the Oakland Raiders, 32-14." Really. Doesn't the writer remember that Minnesota earned the right to the Super Bowl by winning its division championship by eliminating his beloved Los Angeles Rams? Twenty-six NFL teams sat home on Super Sunday and watched Minnesota play the Oakland Raiders. None of them deserved to be in the Super Bowl ahead of Minnesota and Oakland because the Vikings and Raiders qualified with division titles. In its rush to get all of the cute sayings and play on words into print before Sports Illustrated each week, one of the world's great newspapers is doing its readers a great disservice and only adds to the growing belief that Los Angeles is major league in every department except for its sports coverage by the metropolitan press . . . . A final note on Super Bowl XI shows that on the combined rosters, there were 17 Pacific 8 Conference graduates, eight with the Vikings, nine with the Raiders. The Pac 8 outnumbered all other conferences represented followed by the Big Ten with 12 players, Big 8 with nine, Southeast with four and the WAC with three. What state produced the most players in Super Bowl XI? California of course with 15 players picking up Super Bowl checks.

Seabass, Yellowtail Spice Sea Action

A few white seabass and yellow tail are showing at the Coronado Islands and highlighting the very limited fishing now available off the southland coast.

Catches of the two species haven't been high – with the exception of one day recently – but landing officials at Point Loma Sportfishing and Fisherman's Landing say the yellowtail are ranging from 18 to 22 pounds and the white seabass are in the 25-to nearly 40-pound class.

Live squid has been the key to success and during the few days that squid isn't obtained, catches usually fall off and produce bonito and rockfish. The best day during the past week saw 12 fishermen on the boat New Lo-An account for 32 white seabass, topped by a 37-pound lunker landed by Violante Marcello of Coronado. On most days, however, catches of the two species are less than a fish per rod.

On Wednesday, Point Loma Sportfishing reported 34 passengers on the New Lo-An took five yellowtail, six white seabass, two halibut and 169 rockfish.

Locally, Davey's Locker Sportfishing official Robbie Robinson says the boat Matt Walsh has been sampling the 14-Mile Bank and finding a six to 10 fish-per-average for a mixture of salmon grouper, chilipeppers and miscellaneous bottom fish. Top day recently reported was 216 rockfish, one ling cod and one cow cod sacked by 27 fishermen on the boat.

Davey's Locker, by the way, is now operating whale watching trips each weekend through February. Trips leave at 9 a.m. and 1 p.m. on both Saturdays and Sundays, says landing spokesman Lee Clark, and reservations are required.

Art Gronsky at Art's Landing, Newport Harbor, says Santa Barbara Island continues to produce good fishing for anglers on the all-day boat Channel Isle. Rex Hunt of Huntington Beach topped catches in the past few days by decking an 18-pound ling cod at the isle.

Elsewhere along the coast, rockfish are supplying the bulk of the catch.

Hidden Reef, off Santa Barbara Island, has been a good bet for fishermen riding boats out of Queen's Wharf Sportfishing in Long Beach. The boat California is making the run.

To the north, CISCO Landing (Oxnard) owner Jack Ward says Harrison's Reef is a reliable producer of mixed rockfish and the heaviest sacks are weighing up to 70 pounds per fisherman.

Rincon Reef catches break down to about 50 per cent salmon grouper, 25 per cent chilipeppers and 25 per cent reds, cowdod and lingcod, says Bob Gendron at Ventura Sportfishing. He says the best action has been at the 600-foot level.

GOOD MUNCHIN'— Walter Munch of Pico Rivera will have some good table fare with these five rainbow trout caught recently at Irvine Lake in Orange County. The fish are typical of the average size trout being taken at the popular reservoir, although a few 4 to 5-pounders are being caught. Munch managed this limit in Sierra Cove, using live nightcrawlers for bait.

Fishing License Increase Looks Like Certainty

California's fishing license fees may have to be increased to help bail out the inflation-squeezed Department of Fish and Game, the head of the state Resources Agency says.

Claire Dedrick said in an interview while commenting on the 1977-78 proposed state budget that increasing the $4 fishing license fee may "be something we'll want to do, in fact I think it is" in the coming fiscal year.

If new sources of revenue aren't found, the 1,400-employe department may have to cut 60 jobs in 1978, said DFG Director E.C. Fullerton.

Fishing and hunting license fees, increased three times since 1971 after a 13-year stretch of no boost, provide the bulk of the Fish and Game Preservation Fund, $29.75 million, in the proposed state budget released today for 1977-78.

Lake Skinner Gets Trout Transfusion

By CHUCK GARRISON
Register Outdoor Writer

The future of Lake Skinner in Riverside County as a rainbow trout fishery has been enhanced by the signing of a cooperative trout stocking agreement between the Department of Fish and Game and Riverside County, according to DFG officials.

Under terms of the agreement, the state and county will stock catchable size rainbows in the lake on a matching basis throughout the winter and spring months when water conditions and temperatures are suitable.

The cooperative stocking program will begin this month, says Bill Richardson, DFG fisheries management supervisor. The DFG made a preliminary plant of catchable size rainbow trout in the lake around the first of December.

Trout stocked by the state comes from DFG hatcheries. Trout stocked by the county will be purchased from commercial trout farms.

To finance its share of the program, the Riverside County Parks Department, which operates the lake's recreational facilities, raised the entrance fee on Jan. 1 from $1.25 per car to $1.25 per person

The county program and the method of funding it were authorized by the Riverside County Board of Supervisors.

Present DFG plans call for planting a minimum of 20,000 pounds of catchable size trout in Lake Skinner this year. County plants are expected to at least equal and probably exceed that figure, Richardson says.

The Old Days

Dick Westermann of La Mirada recalled this week in Western Outdoor News some of his opening day specials when he first started his Sierra Sport Shoppe (no longer in existence) in Compton. That was on February 3, 1940 and some of the bargains included Winchester Model 12 shotguns at $29.95 each, Winchester 30-30 carbines for $24.95 and .22 long rifle ammunition at 17 cents a box or $1.60 for a small case of 500 shells.

Westermann says 12 gauge dove and quail shotshells went for 75 cents a box; a Penn No. 85 reel sold for only $2.85 and a 100-yard spool of Cortland Cuttyhunk line was priced at 25 cents.

Fishing trips at that time, he says, included local deep sea trips for $2.00 per passenger or runs to Catalina Island for $3.50 a ticket.

Anchovy Decision

The California Fish and Game Commission is meeting today to decide whether to grant the commercial fishing industry an increase in the seasoal tonnage of anchovies allowed for reduction purposes. The request, supported by the California Department of Fish and Game, calls for the current 100,000 tons per season in the southern permit zone to be increased to 200,000 tons.

Sportfishing interests have vigorously opposed any increase in the reduction anchovy quota, and have also asked the Commission to provide an anchovy sanctuary area extending from Point Dume to Catalina Island and from Catalina Island to Dana Point. Under the sportfishing request, DFG observers would also be placed on commercial reduction boats to monitor the fishery.

The Department of Fish and Game contends that a current abundance of anchovies warrants the 100,000-ton increase, yet sportfishing groups say that live bait has been difficult to catch and the current unharvested anchovy resource is needed to provide forage for game fish.

Pheasant Hunts

The general pheasant hunting season in California is now over, but there's plenty of pheasant hunting still available with Linc Raahauge's Pheasant Hunting Club open until March 15, according to club manager Mike Raahauge. "This season, since October 1, we've had our very best shooting results with a harvest rate of 85 percent of all pheasants stocked in the fields," Raahauge reports. "The recent rains helped, too, since guys with dogs can now pick up the scent of the birds easier. Anyone who shoots well usually has no problem getting birds."

Ringneck pheasants – both hens and cocks – are stocked at Raahauge's and the basic hunting fee is $60 for six birds planted. One guest is allowed on each of two hunts.

Linc Raahauge's Pheasant Hunting Club is located just off the Riverside Freeway in Corona, consisting of 1000 acres of land behind Prado Dam. More information may be obtained by phoning (714) 735-2361 or (714) 735-3461.

Trout Plants

The following lakes and streams, listed by county, are scheduled for restocking this week with catchable-size rainbow trout from Department of Fish and Game hatcheries:

LOS ANGELES – Big Rock Creek, Legg Lake, Puddingstone Reservoir, San Gabriel River (East and West Forks), Upper Piru Creek.

SAN DIEGO – Santee Park Lakes.

SAN BERNARDINO – Colorado River, Glen Helen Park Lake, Silverwood Lake.

SANTA BARBARA – Cachuma Lake.

VENTURA – Casitas Lake.

All scheduled stocking will be made if weather and road conditions permit.

Stripers Hitting At Lake Havasu

Striped bass are providing good fishing at Lake Havasu this week, notes Loran Perry at Black Meadow Landing and officials at Lake Havasu Marina. Catches have been coming in from all sections of the lake, from Parker Dam north to Lake Havasu City.

Fred Kunkle of Havasu Landing topped recent catches with a 28-pound striper taken near the Bill Williams delta area. Three-fish limits were taken by several residents of Black Meadow Landing: Jess Stone (to 13 1/2 pounds), Dan Wheeler (to 9 pounds), Jim Hogan (to 13 pounds) and John Curly (to 8 pounds).

Perry says most of the fish are ranging from 35 to 50 feet deep and are hitting silver spoons jigged up and down off the bottom.

Lunker size trout evaded hooks at Irvine Lake the past few days, but shore fishermen working the west bank and boat anglers fishing in Sierra Cove took some limits of 1/2 - to 2- pound rainbows. Joe DePriest and his son, James, both of Santa Ana, teamed up to take two limits of trout with Joe's catch averaging 2 pounds per fish. Scott Silvey of Anaheim, 3, caught a 2-pounder off the west shore.

Lake Sherwood in Los Angeles County opens its 1977 season on Jan. 20, according to lake manager Doug Collins. Approximately 1000 pounds of trout will be stocked prior to the opener. For information, phone (805) 495-2512.

Other reports and big fish catches follow:

LAKE CACHUMA – Fair to good for trout, with some limits of 1/2 - to 3/4 - pound trout taken in Cachuma Bay, Martini Hollow and Santa Cruz Bay. Bass fishing improving slightly. About 30 per cent of the bass taken have been smallmouths.

LAKE CASITAS – Fair for trout, with only a few fishermen doing well for bass. A few channel catfish hitting. George Carey, Ventura, 4-8 trout; Orin Chappell, Oak View, 5-8 bass; George Collier, Port Hueneme, 23-0 catfish.

CASTAIC LAKE – Trout fishing improving. Bass fishermen working 30 to 50 feet down for fish taken on jigs and spoons. Best trout catches made near dam on eggs, cheese and worms. Joe Hansel and George Abbee, Sylmar, six bass to 3-0. Frank Hardin, Los Angeles, 5-12 catfish.

BULLHEAD CITY – (Colorado River) Fair for trout below Davis Dam. Most rainbows pan-sized. Rosie and Ray Herberger, Old Station, 6-0 and 5-4 trout.

SAN ANTONIO LAKE – Fair for experienced bass fishermen. Bluegill and redear sunfish hitting worms in 20 to 30 feet of water near brush.

LAKE HENSHAW – Fair for trout. Slow for other species.

SALTON SEA – Light fishing pressure. Fair for corvina in deep water, where hula-skirted jigs or spoons are working best. A few sargo and croaker taken off State Park area on cut baits.

LAKE MIRAMAR – Fair for trout. Alto Jerkins, San Diego, 4-2 trout; Heinz Paegert, San Diego, 3-8 trout.

SAN VICENTE LAKE – Slow for all species. Don Cotton, San Diego, 11-9 catfish.

More Salmon Plants For Southland

An estimated 25,000 yearling silver salmon were planted in the lagoon of the Santa Margarita River in northern San Diego County Thursday as the California Fish and Game continued a marine sportfishing improvement program begun in 1974.

EVER STRIVING FOR SOUTHERN CALIFORNIA
TO BE AN EVEN BETTER PLACE TO LIVE

Let Peace Begin With Me

This newspaper is dedicated to furnishing information to our readers so that they can better promote and preserve their own freedom and encourage others to see its blessing. For only when man understands freedom and is free to control himself and all he possesses can he develop to his utmost capabilities.

We believe that all men are equally endowed by their Creator, and not by a government, with the right to take moral action to preserve their life and property and secure more freedom and keep it for themselves and others.

To discharge this responsibility, free men, to the best of their ability, must understand and apply to daily living the great moral guide expressed in the Coveting Commandment.

A Backpacker's Progress

Last Saturday in this space we burlesqued a militant friend of the Earth, who, spending a weekend in the undefiled wilds, defiled them. He came equipped with the latest camping gear and apparel, all of it innovated and sold at a profit by enemy industrialists. He left the campsite smoldering and littered, backpacking home just in time to catch a Monday night lecturer haranguing industrialists who rape Mother Nature. He listened enraptured.

Was the scenario exaggerated? Well, burlesques are supposed to be exaggerated. Even so, we have witnessed some people whose countryside habits and political beliefs run awfully close to that hypocritical cycle. But we're not M. Palin of Huntington Beach or David Bolland of Fullerton, who, in their own trips to the pristine woods, have Seen No Evil. Not from their fellow backpackers, in any case.

Readers Palin and Bolland write in today's Clearinghouse that our editorial was a "cheap attempt to label a few ignorant and destructive fools as concerned people" and that we "owe an apology to all those who have responsibly enjoyed the wilderness" etc., etc. We urge you to read their complaints.

M. Palin even suggests that we would deny environmentalists the right to express their views and champion their ludicrous causes. How that kind of censoriousness was derived from a perfectly libertarian editorial escapes us. We allow a wide variety of opinion to be expressed, in the Clearinghouse.

Palin gets to meatier stuff, however. He suspects that our editorial staff accepts passively as "sacred truth" anything the business and industrial community produces. We do not; never have. We advocate the market economy, not because what it produces is always right for society, but because it is unabolishable. No legislature, however animated by enviromentalist ardor, can alter the human tendency to pull a profit.

You cannot "balance the profit-only motive...with some values for environment protection" precisely because there is no such schism between economy and ecology that too many "environmentalists" imagine. This is an important point, which too many militants miss: here are environmentalist profits as well as industrialist profits. Often the two are the same; in a free market competition provides, does not destroy, natural balance.

Take for instance the problem of preserving natural "parks." Few would argue that the places selected by legislatures, however wonderful in natural beauty, were the best such examples; they were merely the plots the legislatures managed at the time to seize. The legislatures then declared such land open to all; the places were "owned" publicly.

So indeed the masses, no single member of which was actually self-responsible for the parks, trudged into these "public" places. Admission fees were either non-existent or minimal, so there was no way to regulate the flow of tourists and industrialism-bedecked campers. Government bureaucracy then invaded the places, paving footpaths and highways over meadows, franchising inn-keepers, curio shops and snack bars. The National Park Service freely admits the tourist-camper flood is one of their largest headaches.

On the other hand, private resorts regulate the numbers of visitors with a perfectly just market mechanism: price. There are room rates, meals, equipment rentals and so on; some places impose high admission fees so that the landscape might be able to breathe free of boobies who think they, the "public," own the place.

Private resorts ruin the environment too, you say? OK, but not any more than the national parks. There are also privately-held plots – the Irvine Co., for one huge example – which sustain natural habitats untouched. Enough said.

Do not think for a moment the "environmentalist" movement enjoys no sense of profit. There are legitimate ways to profit (you will notice the cleanest drinking water is sold by private bottlers). And there are illegitimate ways to profit (how many "environmentalists," well-intentioned or not, push legislation in order to get the bureaucratic environmental protection jobs?) Profit, like the earth itself, is neither moral nor immoral. It is.

We're confident Palin and Bolland, if they explore their reverence for nature sincerely and fully, one day will see our point. They may even want to burlesque the hypocrites themselves – if the truth doesn't hurt – and unapologetically.

Computers And Cash Registers

Those postage stamp-sized patches of lines that appear on more and more supermarket items, to hear some unionists tell it, are like the mark of Cain on the brow of your hair spray can.

The unionists, all in the name of "consumerism" of course, want a law passed to keep prices attached to shelf items. The patches of lines render traditional price stamps unnecessary because, as more cash registers computerize, the lines will ring up prices automatically without the checker punching numbered keys.

Consumers will be protected, contend the unionists, because prices will be displayed, in Arabic numerals, on the packages. Nonsense. The prices will stay displayed on the shelves, because it is commonsensical for store managers to serve customers.

What the unionists really are protecting is jobs; more to the point, they don't want to lose dues-paying members.

If it is uneconomic to employ people to stand in the aisles and produce rooms stamping prices – which, given newer technology, it is – then consumers ought not be required to pay the cost.

Properly perceived, the computer price registration is a gift to consumers. It will save an enormous amount of dollars.

And, properly perceived, the unions' latest effort is another reactionary attempt to halt the advance of technology.

Today In History

By The Associated Press

Today is Friday, Jan. 14, the 14th day of 1977. There are 351 days left in the year.

Today's highlight in history:

On this date in 1784, the United States ratified a peace treaty with England, formally ending the American Revolution.

On this date –

In 1809, England and Spain formed an alliance against Napoleon Bonaparte.

In 1814, Denmark ceded Norway to Sweden as one of the provisions of the Treaty of Kiel.

In 1907, an earthquake in Jamaica destroyed Kingston and took 1,000 lives.

In 1914, Henry Ford's first assembly line went into operation, vastly reducing the time it took to manufacture a car.

In 1953, Yugoslavia's parliament elected Premier Tito president, by a vote of 568-1.

In 1965, the prime ministers of Ireland and Northern Ireland met. It was the first meeting between the two country's heads of government in 43 years.

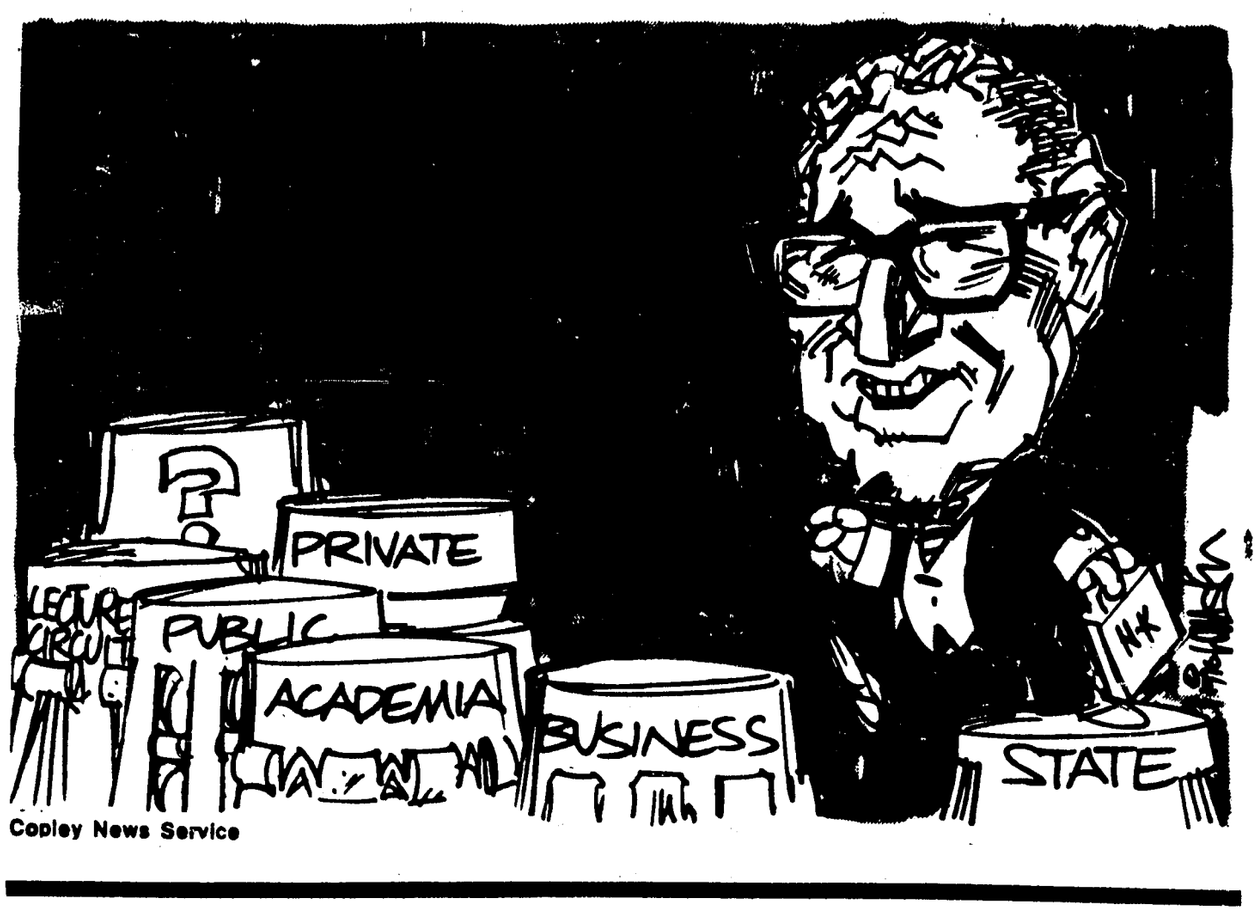

Ten years ago: A West German-French summit meeting in Paris improved relations between the two countries, but they retained their differences over the American role in Europe.

Five years ago: The American commander in South Vietnam, General Creighton Abrams, left after five years' duty in Saigon.

One year ago: The Spanish government drafted several thousand postal workers into the army in an effort to stem labor agitation which had idled 150,000 workers in the Madrid area alone.

Questions, Questions

Don't get me wrong. I love this country and have a fine son in the U.S. Navy.

1 – I want to know why I must speak Spanish in order to qualify for many top-level jobs. My father was an immigrant who came to this country when he was 18, fought in WWI, learned a trade, the language and even changed his name to become "more American." Now it seems that we native-born Americans must learn Spanish.

2 – I wonder what Earl Butz thinks of our freedom of speech and how we "defend to our death his right to say it."

3 – After we voted to reinstate capital punishment, why is the governor and the Supreme Court allowed to state that it is unconstitutional and cruel and unusual punishment? Were they not cruel and unusual crimes? Is this government of the people?

4 – Why are they restricting only Mexican immigration? Why not other nations as well? This is unfair.

5 – Why on New Year's eve do we see only New York's celebration. Why not spots all over America?

6 – Why TV re-runs in January?

Wrong Slant

A recent editorial in The Register, entitled "Weekend Spoilers", was supposedly to show the hypocrisy of a "typical nature-loving militant" in spending a weekend backpacking in a wilderness area. Instead, the editorial is rather confused statement illustrating the ignorance of the particular writer concerning wilderness use by backpackers.

The only valid viewpoint present in this editorial is so obvious that it hardly bears the constant repetition given it. No one, no matter how militant, is seriously advocating the immediate and total shut-down of all business and industry precisely because of the point the editorial runs into the ground, namely, that American society is dependent upon the business and industrial community for its way of life.

However, this does not mean that all must passively accept every idea and act that this community produces as sacred truth (which the editorial staff sometimes seems to do) simply because it has provided many good developments. Those who criticize business and industry as exploiting nature are only trying to balance the profit-only motive of this community with some values for environment protection, and are completely within their rights to do so (as is the editorial staff when publishing their views).

The legality of the editorial is unimportant when considering the real insult of it, which comes with an attempt to attack backpackers as destructive forces within wilderness areas (which are, for the most part, protected from commercial interests) and, thereby, associate them with the environmental destruction of the business and industrial communities. "Typical" backpackers throw cigarette butts on the ground, build campfires, and most certainly "leave a campsite strewn with cans, plus other assorted litter" when visiting a wilderness area. To represent them in such a way is to disregard the basic wilderness axiom: you packed it in, you pack it out. The individual writer and entire editorial staff owe an apology to all those who have responsibly enjoyed the wilderness for this very poor effort to ridicule their experiences and beliefs.

I'm sure the main point in "Weekend Spoilers" (Jan.8) was the hypocrisy practiced by environmentalists. Being one, this problem has dawned on me before. Living in compromised American society, we must compromise our ideals somewhat.

As for the slovenly "nature lover" depicted, he is not an environmentalist. The editorial was a cheap attempt to label a few ignorant and destructive fools as concerned people. I have spent some time myself packing out trash from the back country in order to improve conditions.

There are surely problems in practice of what one preaches, but if we all are concerned and interested in keeping beauty for the future unpillaged, we must quit calling names (i.e. business and environment values) and work toward that goal of balance in the use of our land. The damage has been done and there is only so much left. We should all help to assure the best use of those few remaining resources.

Progeny Get Breaks

I am writing regarding "Doctor Speaks Up" by Graham Gilmer, Jr., M.D.

Having been employed as a medical secretary for many years I found his article amusing to say the least. Dr. Gilmer's sons might not have been as fortunate as are many other progeny of the medical hierarchy, but they would definitely be in the minority rather than majority.

While in the employ of a local medical group it was one of my duties to type correspondence directed to board members requesting them to use their influence in the acceptance of one of the doctor's sons, after quotas were filled. He was accepted shortly thereafter. Let's face it — it's not what you know but who you know to play the med school game.

Also, it is quite common to have offspring of various doctors observe in the office and at the hospital, so they can get the jump on other students in their classes at college.

It is hardly the same to compare children of the ministry with children of doctors; first, because of the lack of competition in training for the ministry and secondly, the financial aspect involved. Try comparing a protestant minister's income with that of a surgeon.

One more small item — I for one would take that 3 a.m. call Dr. Graham referred to if I was paid what that "poor" doctor was, to let him get some sleep.

Political Suicide

Can there be anyone who still believes he (or she) really has anything to say about whether of not we are a representative government? Gov. Brown's intimidating remarks regarding what he would do with any bill which requires a death penalty ought to have removed all doubt.

Somewhere, sometime, perhaps a long time ago, I remember hearing something about our government being one "of the people, by the people, and for the people" but evidently that is all outdated stuff now.

This might be one time a politician has committed political suicide, I hope.

BRUDNOY'S COMPLAINT

Those New Year's Resolutions Blues

By DAVID BRUDNOY

On the first day post-Christmas my resolution read: send no more Christmas cards evermore.

On the second day post-Christmas my resolutions read: curse at no callers, and send no more Christmas cards evermore.

On the third day post-Christmas my resolutions read: don't buy the New York Times, think kindly of Carter, curse at no callers, and send no more Christmas cards evermore.

On ths fifth day post-Christmas my resolutions read: don't smo-o-o-ke next year, don't buy the New York Times, think kindly of Carter, curse at no callers, and send no more Christmas cards evermore.

On the sixth day post-Christmas my resolutions read: don't speed while driving, don't smo-o-o-ke next year, don't buy the New York Times, think kindly of Carter, curse at no callers, and send no more Christmas cards evermore.

On the first day of New Year's my resolutions read: give the Guv a break, don't speed while driving, don't smo-o-o-ke this year, don't buy the New York Times, think kindly of Carter, curse at no callers, and send no more Christmas cards evermore.

On the second day of New Year's my resolutions read: read that dreary textbook, give the Guv a break, don't speed while driving, don't s no-o-o-ke this year, don't buy the New York Times, think kindly of Carter, curse at no callers, and send no more Christmas cards evermore.

On the third day of New Year's my resolutions read: go on a diet, read that dreary textbook, give the Guv a break, don't speed while driving, don't smo-o-o-ke this year, don't buy the New York Times, think kindly of Carter, curse at no callers, and send no more Christmas cards evermore.

On the fourth day of New Year's my resolutions read: learn to like disco music, go on a diet, read that dreary textbook, give the Guv a break, don't speed while driving, don't smo-o-o-ke this year, don't buy the New York Times, think kindly of Carter, curse at no callers, and send no more Christmas cards evermore.

On the fifth day of New Year's my resolutions read: give up martinis, learn to like disco music, go on a diet, read that dreary textbook, give the Guv a break, don't speed while driving, don't smo-o-o-ke this year, don't buy the New York Times, think kindly of Carter, curse at no calles, and send no more Christmas cards evermore.

On the sixth day of New Year's my resolutions read: use the metric system, give up martinis, learn to like disco music, go on a diet, read that dreary textbook, give the Guv a break, don't speed while driving, don't smo-o-o-ke this year, don't buy the New York Times, think kindly of Carter, curse at no callers, and send no more Christmas cards evermore.

On the seventh day of New Year's (which is also the thirteenth day post-Christmas), mislaying my New Year's resolutions, I abandoned the metric system once more; had an extra-dry Beefeaters on the rocks with a twist, and a dash of vermouth; stormed out of a discotheque swearing never to endure that unbearable noise again; treated myself to a triple-scoop chocolate sunday with butterscotch topping, laced with almonds, drowned in whipped cream, with a maraschino cherry on the thing for color; threw out the dreary textbook and started the last opus by Irving Wallace; publicly accused the Guv of plotting to lay more taxes on the people; got stopped by a cop for doing 65 in a 55 mph highway speed trap; bought a new meerschaum pipe and two pounds of hideously expensive tobacco, and a new lighter, and puffed away all day; clipped fourteen articles from the New York Times and waited eagerly for tomorow's edition; suggested in none too polite terms that the president-elect would ruin the economy within a year; blew up at a lady who called the radio program suggesting that I was tempermental; and bought 300 Christmas cards on sale.

INSIDE WASHINGTON

Mansfield As China Envoy?

By ROBERT S. ALLEN

WASHINGTON – Former Senate Democratic leader Mike Mansfield may have the opportunity to utilize his signal expertise on China in a historic role.

Long in favor of establishing full diplomatic relations with Peking, the veteran Montana legislator will be offered appointment as envoy there by President-elect Carter – who holds similar views.

The matter has been discussed, but no decision reached pending developments, particularly in China where new Communist party chairman Hua Kuo-feng is leaning heavily on the army and senior military commanders to suppress radical elements seeking to take over following the death of Mao Tse-tung.

Aside from the question of policy, naming Mansfield as ambassador to China could be a political and diplomatic ten-strike.

Widely esteemed and influential in the Democratic party and Congress, he was for years chairman of the Far Eastern Affairs Subcommittee. On China he is without peer in firsthand knowledge and personal contacts there.

His experience goes back to World War I, when he was a youthful Marine (enlisting at age 14) and was stationed in China. Since then he has been there six times, the last three following former President Nixon's eventful trip and agreement to exchange official representatives. During these visits Mansfield conferred with top leaders, including Mao and Chou En-lai, late powerful premier.

Most recent Mansfield visit was last September-October at the invitation of the Chinese people's institute of foreign affairs, when he was extended unusual privileges, including touring Sinkiang, Kiangsu and Kwangtung provinces from which Americans had been barred since 1949, when the Communists captured control.

As required when a new president takes office, current Ambassador Thomas Gates has submitted his resignation. The one-time secretary of defense in the Eisenhower administration has been asked to continue in Peking until the Carter transition is completed – which may take some time, especially in the replacement of diplomats.

Key Problem

If Mansfield is appointed envoy to Peking, there will be no doubts or ambiguity about his views and position.

They are fully and clearly spelled out in a 158-page report, titled "China Enters the Post-Mao Era," published by the Senate Foreign Realtions Committee of which he was ranking member. While largely ignored, it is a penetrating study, particularly of the key problem of U.S.-Peking relations – Taiwan.

While Mansfield admittedly favors establishment of full diplomatic relations with Peking, he does not hold this should be done quickly or at the expense of breaking ties with Nationlist China.

On the "basis of my conversations" with leading Peking authorities, whom Mansfield names, he "believes satisfactory arrangements can be worked out concerning the handling of our relations with Taiwan." Just how or other pertinent details are carefully not mentioned.

But Mansfield pointedly stresses that Japan and other U.S. allies have successfully overcome this dilemma and expresses confidence that in time the U.S. can too. Argues Mansfield:

"All of the NATO allies, not to speak of dozens of other nations, have recognized the reality that the People's Republic is the rightful sovereign of all China, at no loss of their prestige in the world. There is not likely to be official collaboration with China on matters involving stability in the Pacific, disarmament or other major world issues as long as the present state of affairs exists."

No Rush — But

Mansfield goes out of his way to take a caustic slap at "China experts."

Their record "leaves much to be desired." Also he bluntly warns that China must not be "judged by American standards." Chinese society is rigidly disciplined, with the masses "subjected to unremitting propaganda from an all-pervasive government apparatus."

Soundly and realistically to weigh U.S. - Chinese relations, we must look at common interests, not differences. These interests are fatefully momentous.

"We are both greatly concerned about the Soviet Union and its intentions," says Mansfield. "We have a common interest in the moderation of tensions in Asia and in seeing that the nations in that region remain free of domination by outside powers. We both desire a viable Japan free of the menace of militarism."

Mansfield reached three basic conclusions on this trip:

(1) For the foreseeable future it is highly unlikely it will be of significance who controls China as far as relations with the U.S. are concerned. (2) What is of real consequence to the U.S. is not the makeup of the leadership, but that the system Mao established continues and works. (3) America can and should come to terms "with the realities of China without delay."

"Further delays," maintains Mansfield, "could well prove to be another in a long series of disastrous miscalculations that have afflicted U.S. foreign policy in Asia since World War II. If we act more wisely than in the past, we will act now, not on the basis of emotional catch phrases. But on the basis of rational contemporary American intersts in the Western Pacific.

THE REAL THING

By Barbara Taylor
Register Real Estate Editor

Success Follows Hard Work

From picker to packer to checker to real estate commissions of $85,000 in 1976.

"Never, never give up.

"If there is one piece of advice I would give anyone, that's it," Chris Diaz told The Register. And for someone who as a child worked in the fields harvesting crops, that philosophy has written a success story.

Determination, plus a combination of joy for work, joy of life, a positive outlook and a friendliness towards and understanding of people are what she claims is reponsible for her meteoric success in real estate sales.

During her first year – she made $18,000 and topped that last year with commissions on sales of $4.5 million.

CHRIS DIAZ

Her story is more impressive when one starts at the beginning. One of six children to Mexican immigrants, her mother died in 1941 when Chris was 11. Her father, worried about leaving the children unattended took the children to the fields to work alongside him.

"Many of the orchards had small trees then and my father would tell the owner he would care for the orchard in exchange for the privilege of growing crops between the trees," she said.

It was there in those fields that she acquired character attributes which have stayed with her through the years. "My father still prospects for gold," she said, "But what he taught me instilled in me the things that have so enriched my life and been golden to me."

SEVEN-DAY WEEK

"He would say, 'We will work until we can't see,' and 'If you (want to) eat you work.'" Work she does – seven days a week.

Today some think that I am money hungry, but that's not true. I love my work and there is one thing I have found. If you work hard, success has to follow."

"I love to help people. My father used to say 'cada cabazo es un mundo' (each head is a world). When I was young, I did not understand that but through the years working with people, I now know what he meant. You have to treat each one as an individual. Everyone has his own thoughts."

It is this understanding of individuals that she says helps her most in helping people fill their individual housing needs. "One thing I do stress," she said, "is that people not wait to buy their 'dream house'. Buy what you can afford now. Build equity. Maybe it isn't really what you want, but if you can afford it, at least it is a start."

For the Diaz family that start commenced when Chris, as a bride of 21, and her husband started looking for a home.

"I was packing oranges then," she said. "I did not want to live in the barrio. I'll never forget the salesman. Everything he showed me was where I did not want to live. When I would ask to see houses in other areas, he would say they didn't want Mexicans living there.

One day as we turned down Lyon Street in Santa Ana, I saw this little house. That's it, I said. They wanted $4,000 and $900 down. We bought it without looking at the inside," she said.

In a short time the Diaz' had the home paid off and borrowed against it to buy other property and today have parlayed their real estate into sizable holdings with an income of several thousand dollars per month.

Chris left the packing house to become a checker with Alpha Beta and at one time she and her husband owned a small grocery store. They also became the proud parents of five children including a set of twins.

Selling Career

In retrospect she sees all of her life's experiences as preparing her for what she does today. "The children I used to sell candy to in our store are now buying houses through me," she said.

Of her own children, she and her husband demand the same work ethic. "If you help them too much or give them too much, you make them weak," she said.

Two other keys to her success are a value of time and appreciation of information.

Last year she hired a secretary who relieves her of many time-consumming details and frees her to devote productive time to selling and new business – an idea Realtors might find to their advantage.

She now is considering hiring a second person to handle the paperwork. "Business continues to be great," she said. "I had eight sales during the first week of January and I do about 15 market evaluations per week.

A market evaluation is done when a homeowner calls and asks her to look at his property, she said. She goes armed with information garnered from a title search and all the comparative information she can obtain on the property prior to the visit.

"I know what they paid for it when they bought it and what homes nearby have been selling for," she said. "With this information lising prices are more realistic. In some cases, the buyer has no idea how much his property is worth and would not have asked enough."

This procedure of going armed with information has been an aid in getting new listings, she said.

One of the most highly awarded persons in the real estate field, Mrs. Diaz had qualified for the fourth year by April, 1976, for Forest Olson's Million Dollar Club.

Phosphate Find In Michigan

By The Associated Press

Rocks rich in a high-grade phosphate mineral used to make fertilizer have been discovered in the Upper Peninsula.

David Snider of the Michigan Department of Natural Resources said it was not yet clear whether the phosphate rock is worth mining, but said, "The potential looks real good."

The deposits are located about 40 miles northwest of Marquette.

The U.S. Geological Survey (USGS) said the newly discovered deposits are about two billion years old and appear to be some of the oldest and richest sedimentary deposits of phosphates known in the United States.

"We don't know yet how extensive the phosphate deposits are because the area is covered by thick layers of rock debris deposited by glaciers and glacial streams during the last Ice Age," said William Cannon, USGS geologist at the Survey's National Center in Reston, Va. "As a result, the older phosphate rocks are left exposed in only a few locations."

Cannon said more testing would be needed to find out if the minerals could be mined. But, he added, "The fact that we actually found phosphate minerals in five locations during a cursory examination suggests that phosphate-bearing rocks may be fairly common and widespread in the area."

He said researchers were working on a geological map and weren't looking for phosphates during their original fieldwork. They found the rocks had mineral value "almost by accident" in later laboratory tests.

Snider said the phosphate-containing rock is a black pebble conglomerate in the rough. He said similar mineral deposits already are being mined in the Southeast, especially Florida and North Carolina.

A deposit of phosphate in the U.P. could be most valuable as a fertilizer source for local farmers. Snider said the U.S. has plenty of phosphate and the rock is heavy and expensive to transport.

Dollar Drops Against Pound

LONDON (AP) – The dollar declined againts the British pound Thursday but strengthened slightly against other major European currencies.

The price of gold went up in both Zurich and London, the two major European centers.

In London, the pound gained a fraction on the dollar, closing at $1.7105, up from Wednesday's closing of $1.7069.

Dealers said there were two reasons for the upward movement of sterling:

The state-run Bank of England found itself strong enough in funds to return $1.36 billion to other banks which they were compulsorily forced to deposit as an inflation-curbing move. A call for a further $680 million which was scheduled to be deposited at the end of this month was canceled.

Second, a miners' threat to strike over a claim for early retirement was settled Wednesday night.

The price of an ounce of gold in Zurich moved up $2 to $132.375 an ounce. In London the price rose $1.75 an ounce to $132.125.

Other closing exchange rates for the dollar:

–Paris, 4.9805 French francs, up from 4.9710 Wednesday.

–Frankfurt, 2.3905 West German marks, up from 2.3755.

–Zurich, 2.4850 Swiss francs, up from 2.4732.

Hayden Stone Seeks Merger With Orion

NEW YORK (AP) – Shearson, Hayden Stone Inc., the large securities firm, said Thursday it has proposed a merger with Orion Capital Corp., the successor to the scandal-ridden Equity Funding Corp. of America.

Under the proposed merger offer, each Shearson holder would receive one share of the holding company. Each holder of stock in Orion, an insurance holding company, would receive .55 of a share of the new company and a preferred issue paying an annual 9 per cent dividend.

Shearson said the board of the merged company would initially be drawn from Shearson directors, but that present Orion directors would be represented on the new board "to a lesser extent" than Shearson's.

Shearson currently owns 527,171 Orion shares, or about 7 per cent of the stocks outstanding. It bought the shares in the open market during November and December.

Shearson said the proposed merger would require approval of directors and holders of both concerns.

Orion owns the Bankers National Life Insurance Co. and the Northern Life Insurance Co.

Its present name was adopted as part of the Chapter 10 bankruptcy proceedings involving the collapse of Equity Funding.

At Shearson, Chairman Sanford I. Weill said the merger would combine "the expertise and products of Orion's insurance subsidiaries (and) Shearson's products and sales force."

The combination would "offer significant potential advantages to both companies."

Intermedco Maps Merger – Cash Deal

HOUSTON (BW) – Intermedco Inc. announced it has concluded an agreement in principle with Thomas Tilling Ltd., under which Tilling will acquire Intermedco in a cash merger where each outstanding Intermedco share would be converted into $7.50 in cash.

Thomas Tilling Ltd. is a London-based holding company listed on the London Stock Exchange.

The transaction, which involves the total price of about $15 million, has been given preliminary approval by the respective boars.

METRIC TON $9,222.50

Tin Stock Gone, Prices Up

LONDON (AP) – The price of tin for delivery in three months jumped $93.50 a metric ton Thursday after the International Tin Council's secretariat announced its buffer stock has been exhausted.

The price of the metal rose to $9,222.50 a metric ton at the close, compared with the preannouncement midday close of $9,137.50. A metric ton is equivalent to about 2,200 pounds.

A year ago, three-month tin sold for around $6,200.

The buffer stock, a reserve held by the Tin Council, buys the metal when prices fall and sells when prices rise in order to prevent excessive price fluctuations on the market.

On Sept. 30, the buffer stock held 1,898 metric tons of tin, just under 1 per cent of a year's world production. Three months before, on June 30, the stock held 2,822 metric tons.

In addition, the tin metal stockpile held in London Metal Exchange warehouses in Britain and northern Europe has shrunk to less than 6,000 metric tons.

The world is going through an acute tin-production shortage and prices have been spiraling as a result. Consequently, the Tin Council buffer stock manager has been persistently selling from his holdings. They ran out without effectively being able to halt the price rise.

Despite the slow economic recovery around the world and reduced demand for tin, the busy Japanese tin plating industry has consistently been taking the metal off the Far Eastern market, sources said.

The crisis in the tin mining industry is due to the high cost of capital investment needed either for deep mining in Bolivia and Malaysia or for offshore dredging operations in eastern Malaysia and Indonesia.

Producers continually have complained that the price of tin was too low to allow such investment. A dredger able to mine about 2,000 metric tons of tin a year now costs around $70 million.

The producers also complain that the price of heavy fuel oil, needed to keep the hundreds of pumps going around the clock in deep tin mines, is contributing to the high cost of mining.

There is, however, no danger of shortage for the United States. The government's General Services Administration (GSA) recently announced it had a surplus in its strategic stockpile of 200,000 metric tons, more than the world's tin mining industry can produce in a year.

Current world production runs below 180,000 metric tons a year and demand is around 190,000. The gap so far has been plugged by releases from the GSA or by sales from mainland China.

Retail Car Deliveries Increase 21 Per Cent

DETROIT (AP) – The pace of domestic car sales during the first 10 days of 1977 got off to its quickest start in four years, with retail deliveries rising 21 per cent from the year before.

The nation's four automakers reported Thursday total sales of 143,771 cars during the Jan. 1-10 period, compared with 136,008 during the same period last year.

The percentage increase is based on the daily rate because there was one less selling day in the 1977 period.

The daily rate of 20,539 – compared with 17,001 at the start of 1976 – was the highest since the record year of 1973, when the tempo was 23,602. The period record of nearly 29,000 cars was set in 1966.

Ford Motor Co., which suffered sales declines last fall due to a four-week strike, showed the sharpest gain at the start of 1977, with a 34 per cent jump on a daily rate basis.

Chrysler Corp. sales rose 22 per cent and General Motors Corp. posted a 17 per cent improvement. However, small-car specialist American Motors Corp., beset by a severe slump for more than two years, remained in a downslide with a 17 per cent decline.

Ford Vice President Bennett E. Bidwell said the industry's sharp sales gains from a year ago reflected "increased post-strike availability, continuing strong customer interest in larger cars and a general market upturn for new vehicles."

GM sold 78,392 cars in the period this year, up from 76,695 a year ago; Ford sold 42,806, up from 36,438; Chrysler sold 18,556, up from 17,372, and AMC sold 4,017, down from 5,503.

New Oil Field

CARACAS, Venezuela (AP) – Lagoven, the largest of Venezuela's state-owned oil companies, has announced a major oil discovery in Lake Maracaibo with an estimated production capacity of 5,308 barrels daily.

Brigido Natera, production manager for Lagoven, said the find is one of Venezuela's biggest in recent times. He said his company made the discovery after drilling to some 16,940 feet.

Cocoa Following Coffee

NEW YORK (AP) – Pity the inveterate nibbler who is hooked on a daily habit of one or two chocolate bars and several cups of coffee.

Already being asked to swallow higher coffee prices for some time to come, he now is being warned that cocoa prices are soaring.

Bad weather is generally blamed for a tripling of the futures prices of both commodities in the past 18 months.

And retail prices of both coffee and chocolate have gone up steadily.

One dealer said the cocoa situation would "make coffee look like a kid's game."

The price of the March 1977 cocoa contract on the New York Cocoa Exchange has jumped more than 16 cents to a record $1.61½ a pound in just six days of trading ending on Thursday. A price of $2 a pound in the near future would not be far-fetched, analysts say.

The price of coffee for the same contract month on the New York Coffee and Sugar Exchange has similarly shot upward in recent days, closing at $2.21¼ a pound Thursday.

The July 1975 frost in Brazil, which severely damaged the crop of the world's largest coffee producer, is considered the single most important reason for today's high coffee prices.

Bad weather also is blamed for a reduction in cocoa-bean crops in West Africa for two consecutive seasons. Because of tight supplies, analysts say some cocoa producers are holding out for still higher prices.

The impact of higher cocoa prices is expected to be more widespread than the impact of higher coffee prices because cocoa is used in so many more ways. But so far there is no indication of a reduction in demand from consuming nations, analysts say.

Presley Device Tests Reported 'Inconclusive'

NEWPORT BEACH (AP) – Presley Companies' scientific expert has seen a brief demonstration of a controversial "hydrogen generator" but said it was inconclusive, the company president says.

The inventor claims the "burning water" device can economically extract hydrogen from tap water, which the Presley company has admitted "constitutes a claim for a perpetual motion machine."

Randall Presley said Thursday that the firm is considering an offer by the inventor to build a machine for the company to test. The company has paid the inventor $500,000 as part of a $2.5 million deal for industrial applications for the device.

Presley said the inventor has made "several nonpublic demonstrations of short duration" of a new model of the device, including one lasting 12 minutes that the company's expert deemed inconclusive.

The company issued a statement that it doesn't "know of any plans on the part of the inventor to provide conclusive tests of that machine."

Carter Supporters More Optimistic

ANN ARBOR, Mich. (AP) Voters who picked presidential winner Jimmy Carter feel better about long-range economic conditions than do those who backed Gerald Ford, according to University of Michigan economists.

The report was made by the university's Survey Research Center (SRC) in its quarterly survey of consumer attitudes.

SRC Director Richard Curtin and his staff conducted 1,254 telephone interviews across the country to determine what people think of business conditions and what their spending plans are.

Curtin and survey founder George Katona said Carter supporters gave relatively fewer favorable reports about their current financial condition, compared to a year ago.

However, SRC said, "At the same time, Carter voters reported much more favorable expectations about the state of the economy and their own personal financial situation.

"Fully 56 per cent of the respondents who reported they voted for Carter in the recent presidential election expected business conditions to be better in a year, while among Ford voters only 29 per cent expected business conditions to improve in the next 12 months.

Similarly, favorable long term business expectations were held by 40 per cent of Carter voters as compared to 26 per cent among Ford suppprters."

Carter voters, asked why they expected business to be better in a year, cited possible changes in government economic policies.

Ford voters, on the other hand, said they viewed the long-term picture with pessimism because of the government's role in the economy.

SRC said that after a gain of 6 points recorded in the Sept. index, the figures based on the Oct.-Dec. national survey declined 2.8 index points.

It now stands at 86.0, down from 88.8 three months earlier.

The point system is based on 100 points in the Feb., 1966 consumer survey.

The survey report said consumer expectations about inflation, and opinions about expected changes in interest rates and unemployment all showed improvement in the last three months of 1976. One in three of those questioned reported he expected unemployment to decline in the next year, one in three thought prices would remain the same or go down and one in five expects interest rates to go down.

It noted during the fourth quarter a small increase in unfavorable attitudes towards buying conditions for large household goods, cars and houses.

SRC said the results indicate consumers recognized the current sluggishness of the economy, but, nevertheless "in the face of the so called economic pause, consumers have remained cautiously optimistic."

Of those interviewed, 51.7 per cent said they had voted for Carter, 48.3 per cent for Ford

$175,000 Refund Slated By BA In False Ad Case

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) – Bank of America, slapped with a $100,000 civil penalty for false advertising, agreed to refund $175,000 to customers who took out auto loans in the last half of October.

"We believe this $275,000 settlement is the largest ever made in California for false advertising," Ray Bonner, director of the district attorney's consumer fraud unit, said Thursday.

According to the agreement signed by the bank, the world's largest commercial bank, cash rebates averaging $85 will be paid to customers who took out loans during the time the bank circulated advertising boasting, "Our rates are very competititive."

Deputy Dist. Atty. David C. Moon, who handled the case, said figures supplied by Bank of America proved that the bank's rates were, in fact, among the highest in the state.

Moon said eligible customers would receive the refunds without having to make any application. "We know who they are," he said.

A bank spokesman said the false claims in the advertising were an "inadvertent" and that the case was first time the bank had made such an error in its ads.

According to Bank of America's own figures, its auto loan rates last October were topped by only one bank in the state and all other banks charged lower rates.

Bank of America customers floated auto loans during the period at an 13.26 per cent interest rate, on a down payment of 20 per cent.

The Bank of California's rate for a similar loan was 10.25 per cent, while Western Women's Bank had the lowest of all 9.25 per cent.

Bank of America said the highest rates were charged by Redwood Bank at 13.69 per cent.

When a borrower made a down payment of 25 per cent, Bank of America offered a lower 11.96 rate, a rate comparable to some but higher than 125 other banks.

Regular customers were also offered somewhat lower rates.

On Nov. 2, the bank cut its rate by nearly one per cent, bringing them a little below the level charged by its statewide competitors.

Another Smith Company Files For Bankruptcy

SAN DIEGO (AP) – Another company once controlled by C. Arnholt Smith is filing for bankruptcy.

The action was taken Thursday on behalf of Golden West Air Terminals, a subsidary of British Columbia Investment Co. and reportedly in debt by $5,850,000 to the defunct U. S. National Bank.

That would be owed now to the Federal Deposit Insurance Corp., receiver for Smith's bank which was declared insolvent in 1973.

In seeking protection under Chapter XI of the federal bank-ruptcy act, Golden West said it hasn't books or records to determine its assets and liabilities.

The petition saying Golden West is insolvent was signed by Flora Jackman as vice president. Golden West operated a fix air base and was a dealer in aircraft, the petititon said.

Twenty-eight other subsidiaries of British Columbia Investment, owned by the Smith family, filed for bankruptcy protection last week.

Bean Futures Drop 6 Cents

CHICAGO (AP) – Soybean futures fell 6 cents a bushel on the Chicago Board of Trade today and strongly influenced weakness in all other commodity futures on the floor.

Wheat futures were down more than 3 cents a bushel, while corn fell 2½ and oats 2¼. Soybean meal declined more than $2.00 a ton and soy oil eased 25 points or ¼ cent a pound. Iced broilers lost ½ cent a pound in very light trade.

Prices in the major pits were rather weak on the opening despite good commerical support. When this support left the pits, trade then was dominated by the local professional traders and prices quickly declined. Demand thereafter was very scare and, as a result, the volume of trade slowed down noticeably.

The government announced export commitments for last week and these were considered only fair. Weather conditions continued along the same lines for the last five days – bitter cold and snow for the central portion of the country.

As trade bogged down, there was a typical maneuver employed by the local professionals and that is known as spreading. This involves the sale of one option and the purchase of another or the sale of one commodity and the purchase of another. It tends to throw some pits out of line, moneywise, for brief periods such as Thursday. Prices then revert to normal.

At the midway point, soybeans were 4½ to 6 cents a bushel lower, Jan. 7.08½; wheat was 2¼ to 3¼ lower, March 2.75¾; corn was 1 to 2½ lower, March 2.60¼ amd oats were 1¼ to 2½ lower, March 1.71¾.

Sante Fe Intl. Reports Test In North Sea

Santa Fe International Corp., Orange, announced successful testing of an exploratory well on North Sea Block 21-1/18 in which it holds a 22.5 per cent interest.

E.L. Shannon Jr., Santa Fe president, said the 21 1/18-13, drilled in the extreme northeast corner – about two miles northeast of well 21-1/18-12 which was successfully tested last July, and about eight miles north of Thistle Oil Field – flowed high-gravity oil during production tests of a 40-foot perforated interval of the middle Jurassic sandstone.

Shannon said flow rates from the interval tested averaged about 9,100 barrels a day. Gravity of the oil is 42 degrees API.

Further testing will be necessary to completely evaluate the sands penetrated, the company said.

Thistle Field, discovered in 1973, is scheduled to go on production during this year's fourth quarter.

Utility Notes Tax Exclusion

LOS ANGELES – (BW) – Pacific Lighting Corp. (NYSE) of Los Angeles informed its shareholders that 13.13 per cent of dividends paid during 1976 on the company's common stock can be excluded from their taxable income for federal income tax purposes.

The company so notified its shareholders in a letter from Paul A. Miller, chairman of the board.

The exclusion results from certain benefits provided by the Internal Revenue Code which allow earnings computed for tax purposes to differ from reported earnings for companies involved in such businesses as public utilities, land development and agriculture, the letter indicated.

Pacific Lighting is involved in each of these businesses.

Dividends on the company's preferred stock are fully taxable as dividend income.

Walt Disney Has Record First Quarter

BURBANK — (BW) — Walt Disney Productions reported record revenues and net income for its first quarter ended Dec. 31.

Revenues increased 3.3 per cent to $119,529,000, while net income increased 5.9 per cent to $11,828,000.

Diseyland, in Anaheim, experienced heavy rains during several days of the Christmas vacation period. It reported total attendance for the first quarter of 1,743,000, 6.9 per cent behind the previous year.

Attendance at Walt Disney World declined 3.3 per cent to 2,234,000 during the first quarter, due to two major factors — many public schools in the northeastern United States did not close for Christmas vacation until Dec. 23, almost one week later than usual, and cental Florida experienced inclement weather during the month of December.

Revenues from entertainment and recreational activities increased 5 per cent to $71,732,000 and operating margins in the company's two theme parks — Diseyland and Walt Disney World — were maintained despite attendance declines during the quarter.

Card Walker, president, said, "The new records established for both revenues and net income during the first fiscal quarter of 1977 are particularly gratifying when you consider that net income during the first quarter of 1976 was 56.4 per cent above the prior year."

Dow Average Retreats

The stock market turned downward today, failing to sustain the technical rally it began on Thursday.

At closing the Dow Average was down 3.99 points to 972.16. Details of activity earlier in the day follow.

At 1 p.m. the Dow Jones Industrial Average was down 4.32 points at 971.83 on a volume of 14.51 million shares compared to 12.79 million at the same hour on Thursday. The NYSE index stood at 56.27, off 0.12, and the Amex index was at 110.84, up 0.21. The Dow, up 7.90 on Thursday, had dropped back 4.08 to 972.07 by noon today.

GainErs held a very slight edge on losers among New York Stock Exchange-listed issues.

Analysts said the sharp rise in the basic measure of the money supply reported late Thursday by the Federal Reserve had prompted some worries that the Fed might soon tighten credit, pushing interest rates higher.

"They may be misplaced worries, but they're worries nevertheless," said Newton D. Zinder at E.F. Hutton & Co.

IBM traded at 269¾, down ¾ after the company posted fourth-quarter earnings of $4.47 a share, up from a year-earlier $3.94. Brokers said the figure was about what Wall Street had expected.

The NYSE's composite index of all its listed common stocks slipped .13 to 56.26. On the American Stock Exchange, the market value index gained .12 to 110.75.

Volume on the Big Board picked up to 10.57 million shares over the first two hours from 9.84 million in the comparable period on Thursday.

Santa Fe International climbed 1⅛ to 49⅛ after a 47/8 point jump Thursday, when the company reported a successful test of a North Sea oil well.

World's Milk Output Grows 2% During '76

ROME (AP) – World milk output grew by about 2 per cent in 1976, and is likely to grow even further in 1977, the United Nations Food and Agriculture Organization (FAO) said Friday.

According to preliminary estimates, total production of cow, buffalo, sheep, goat and camel milk reached over 430 million tons in 1976, up from 423 million tons in both 1975 and 1974.

There was growth in the developed and developing regions, while output fell in the Communist countries.

Milk production rose in Western Europe, despite drought in the summer of 1976.

But demand for most milk products, including butter, continued to be slack in developed countries, and consumption fell considerably. As a result, the increase in butter stocks accelerated, while the skimmed milk powder stocks remained at their record 1975 levels.

There was a slight increase in international dairy prices in recent months, but the outlook was for continued oversupply in 1977, FAO said.

VW's 52 MPG Rabbit On Display In NY

DETROIT (AP) – A diesel-powered Volkswagen Rabbit, which its maker says gets 50 per cent better fuel economy than a comparable gasoline-powered model, went on public display Friday for the first time in this county.

VW, which is hoping to sell 10,000 diesel Rabbits this year, is the third European automaker to market a diesel in the United States, but the first to offer it at a non-luxury model price.

A spokesman for the West German automaker said the diesel version will cost "up to $300" more than a gasoline model, which retails for between $4,000 and $4,400.

Mercedes Benz, also of West Germany, and Peugeot of France currently offer diesel-powered cars in this country, but in limited quantities for higher-priced luxury cars.

General Motors' Oldsmobile Division plans to become the first U.S. automaker in modern times to market a diesel engine for passenger cars – sometime in 1978.

VW, which is displaying the diesel Rabbit at the Detroit Auto Show, says the cars should be available for sale next month.

According to government tests, the diesel Rabbit with manual transmission gets 52 miles per gallon of gasoline on the highway and 37 m.p.g. in the city, for a combined average of 44 m.p.g. A comparable gasoline Rabbit averages 28 m.p.g. The difference translates into an average fuel saving of $160 a year, according to the government.

Unlike the gasoline engine, the diesel has no carburetor, electrical ignition system, spark plugs, points or coils.

Combustion occurs when a mist of diesel fuel – a lower and cheaper grade of oil than gasoline – is sprayed at high pressure into hot compressed air in the combustion chamber.

The Rabbit's light-weight, 89.7-cubic-inch diesel has a horsepower rating of 48, while the 97-cubic-inch gasoline engine has a 78-horepower rating.

Diesel-powered cars had been offered in the United States in the past, but never caught on with the motoring public, in part because gasoline was plentiful and cheap.

The engine also has several disadvantages – it is noisier and takes longer to start, emits more smoke and odor, releases more pollutants and costs more to build than gasoline engines.

Colorful Silver Lake Area Has Just About Everything

By BOB KIRKPATRICK
Register Staff Writer

Silverwood Lake, some 30 miles north of San Bernardino, is another attractive recreation area within easy driving distance of Orange County.

The highest reservoir found in the State Water Project's aqueduct system, Silverwood is 3,355 feet above sea level, contains some 976 acres of water surface, and is rimmed by 13 miles of shoreline.

The impoundment's water is held by the Cedar Springs Dam in an area familiar to the early Indians who made this an important water stop on the ancient Mohave trail. Lake Silverwood can be reached by taking the Riverside Freeway north to Interstate Route 15 as far as Cajon Junction, then proceeding east on Route 138.

For a panoramic view of the lake, travelers can easily reach two vantage points: one is from atop Cedar Springs Dam at the north end of the lake on Highway 173, while the other is from the view point on the lake's west side on Highway 138.

Some 2,400 acres of recreation land surrounds the lake. The major recreational facilities developed so far by the state are located in the Sawpit Canyon area, on the south shore, and in the Cleghorn Cove area on the southwest arm of the lake. These facilities include scenic picnic sites with potable water, sanitary facilities, swimming beaches, a six-lane launching ramp, parking for 828 single cars and 206 cars with trailers, recreational paths, a marina, equipment rental facilities, fishing areas, and concessionaire-operated snack bars.

In addition, boat-in picnic areas have been developed at the Chamise, Sycamore Landing and Live Oak areas on the lake's east and west shores.

Still under development, the lake will acquire additional day-use facilities early this year: picnic areas, swimming beaches and recreational paths in the Miller Canyon area.

Group camping and day-use accommodations are being developed at the West Fork area, and a camp ground and campfire center is scheduled for completion at the Lower Mesa area.

Also slated for completion this year is an 8-mile bicycle and hiking trail to connect the Serrano Beach and Cleghorn Cove areas.

Moviegoers Line Up For 'Noah's Ark'

LOS ANGELES – Sun Classic Pictures of Los Angeles, producers of family-oriented films, has released "In Search of Noah's Ark," in the Los Angeles-Orange County area. And they claim it's breaking box office records.

The film is based on the biblical account of Noah's Ark.

Sun Classic has produced a number of successful general audience films, such as "Chariots of the Gods," and "The Life and Times of Grizzly Adams," but until now had not attempted to do one strictly religious in nature.

"There are very few forums for this kind of material," said Charles E. Sellier Jr., a film producer for Sun. "No major movie studio would have done this film on the first and greatest of all disasters.

But when material was gathered for the book, written by Costa Mesan Dave Balsiger, a Christian of evangelical leaning, and the company saw movie-making potential.

What the producers decided to do was present the film in what they call a "docu-drama" format, broken into four parts: dramatic reenactments, interviews with scientists, laboratory tests, and eyewitness accounts. Biblical scenes were dramatized, backed with modern-day scientific evaluation.

Additionally, the company unleashed an elaborate advertising campaign in areas the film is showing, using television coverage as the major vehicle, supplemented by radio and newspapers.

"Boxoffice" magazine, which rates the success of all commercial films, rated "In Search of Noah's Ark" number seven nationally on Aug. 30.

Another gauge to determine the success of a film is the opening week grosses at the theater box offices. Hollywood's Daily Variety performs this survey and according to them, "In Search of Noah's Ark" opened number one in Denver, Portland and San Francisco while opening in the number two position in New York City, Seattle and New Orleans.

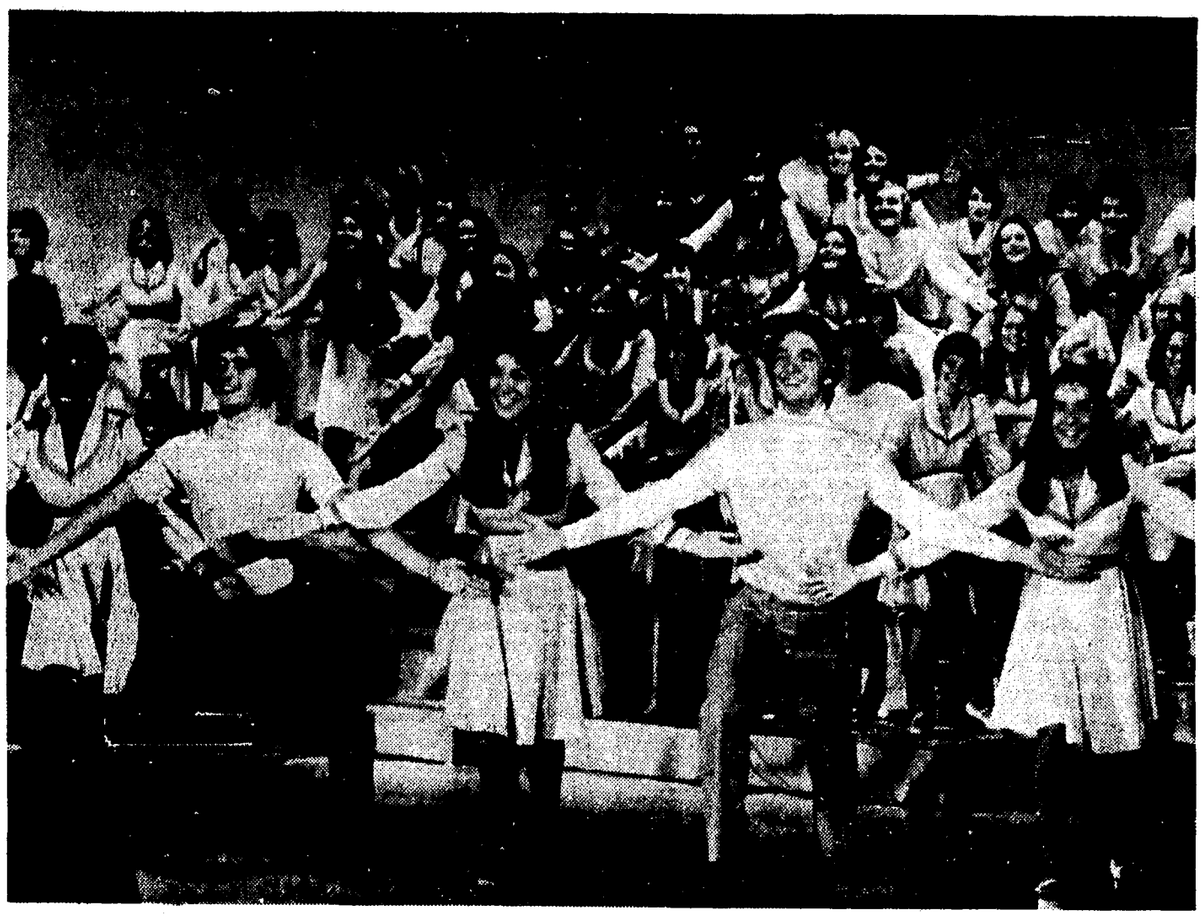

The "Boxoffice Barometer" showed that in New Orleans the film grossed 725 per cent. One hundred per cent is considered a normal gross.

Reviews of the film, however, weren't always so flattering. Newpaper film critic Dave Deneui said, "There Sun Classic pictures usually receive negative reviews, including from this corner, but it's not difficult to see that they're very popular with a large segment of viewers."

Why? Dr. Richard D. Mudd, a Saginaw, Mich., medical doctor who also holds a doctorate in history, said, "It was superb. I was amazed at the ingenuity in which scripture was presented. All of my friends got the same impression. Filmmakers are making a mistake by not having more of these kinds of things."

Those representing religious groups had the same opiinions. Steve Shakarian, a director for the worldwide Full Gospel Business Men's Fellowship International, says he was not only impressed with the film's production quality but "was glad to see an honest effort made to get to the facts concerning the biblical ark. Seeing the story presented as historical fact was exciting to me."

The movie received praise as wholesome family entertainment.

RETURN ENGAGEMENT — "Up With People," the international educational-entertainment program, is performing in Orange County this weekend. The 50 young entertainers were scheduled to do a benefit show at Mission Viejo High School this afternoon and are scheduled to perform at 7:30 p.m. today in the Laguna Hills Mall. The group, one of five Up With People casts currently on tour, will do its third show at 7:30 p.m. Saturday in the Laguna Hills Leisure World Clubhouse, but it is not open to the public. "The big show," according to the group's publicist, will be staged in the Mission Viejo High School gym at 8 p.m. Sunday. Tickets may be purhased at most banks in the Mission Viejo area and at the school today. They also will be available at the door prior to showtime. This will be the third straight year that the group has appeared in Orange County.

By ELIZABETH DUFF
Knight News Wire

There's a tremor in his hands and a quiver in his voice. He coughs. And the lines in his face run deep.

But he still wears powder-blue suits and blue suede shoes and asks everyone he meets if they want a souvenir penknife. Engraved.

He's an old man with a skip and a polka — Lawrence Welk.

But Welk, 73, is demanding to be taken seriously now. In his latest book "My America, Your America" ($7.95 Prentice-Hall) he warns against sinister forces eroding the foundations of democracy and free enterprise. He also gives a solution! Abolish child-labor laws.

He urges action in the strongest terms. "At this very moment we're at the point of no return," he writes. We either climb on up to the top of the mountain — or we fall into the waiting hands of some power structure ready to take over our lives."

Privately, he confesses that this is a softened version. "I had a much more severe statement in the book, but my wife was afraid they'd kill me, so I had to take it out," he says, chuckling and shrugging his shoulders.

Turning serious, he explains that the leviathan power structure threatening us is already in place. It consists, he says, of big government and powerful unions that together are strangling businessmen like Welk and, through child-labor laws, are destroying America's youth.

LAWRENCE WELK

It's this last that Welk finds particularly nefarious. "Child-labor laws close the door to young people," he says, growing visibly angry. "The young folks never learn to work before you learn by doing. . .and that's the reason if you ask young people today what they want today they say 'I don't know.' "

He says this "having that love for the younger generation that I do."

All this falls under Welk's broad philosophy, which is: "You can't 'give' life to anyone. It has to be earned." And Welk is his own best example. Until he was 21 he worked for his father, a German immigrant, on the family farm near Strasbury, N.D. A sickly child, he left school after the fourth grade.

He began his musical career during the Roaring Twenties with Lawrence Welk's Hotsy Totsy Boys, and later, Lawrence Welk's Honolulu Fruit Gum Orchestra.

He rarely vacations and to this day he works incessantly. Painfully shy and admittedly limited musically, Welk nonetheless accumulated a large fortune, rich friends, an elaborate dressing room and shrewd real estate investments.

Throughout he writes, "I can honestly and truly say I've never thought about money."

SOMETHING TO SPOUT ABOUT

Boats For Whale Watchers

In December, January and February, gray whales, pilot whales and dolphin cross the shoreline of Orange County.

They are headed for Baja California. There they loll around the lagoons for two months. Females give birth to their young. In early April, they begin the northward trip to the Bering Sea where they feast on huge quantities of plankton that lie north of Alaska.

During the eight months they are en route and while in southern waters, the sea animals eat almost nothing, being able to survive on stored body fat.

The gray whale can grow to 50 feet in length, but the average is around 45. Females are slightly larger than males. The adult weighs between 35 and 40 tons. During migration they travel at four knots for 15 to 20 hours a day. A single leg of the journey runs 6,000 to 7,000 miles.

Sunday at 1 p.m., the Youth Science Center of North Orange County will sponsor four whale-watcher boats out of Dana Point. Reservations for the excursions can be made by calling the YSC office. Members of the public are welcome.

Other excursions are scheduled for 1 p.m. Jan. 22 and 9 a.m. and 1 p.m. Feb. 26. Reservations may also be made by writing to Youth Science Center, 301 N. Pomona Ave., Fullerton.

The whale-watching vessels are 65-foot, diesel-powered craft equipped with electronic and safety equipment. An instructor will explain the ecology and natural history of the marine environment.

Youth Science Center was organized in 1962. It offers privately supported classes three semesters a year in science-related subjects for groups that range in age from four years to 17 years.

'Non-Traditional' Photo Show Set In GG

GARDEN GROVE – It's billed as a photography show. But don't go looking for Polaroid-type shots of Aunt Esther staring down a hog at the county fair.

At first glance, in fact, the uninitiated probably won't recognize a number of the pieces on display as photographic processes at all.

"It's non-traditional. It's not the black-and-white photography that most people are used to," said Judy Rosenfeld, curator of the Orange Coast College photography show which starts Saturday and runs through February at Mills House, the City of Garden Grove art gallery. The gallery is located at 12732 Main St.

"What you can do artistically with photographic processes has no limit other than the imagination, and that's the purpose of the show," she said.

"Some of the processes people will be seeing simply evolved by accident. Many are not used on the production or commercial levels. They are used on the art level. Yet many of the processes demonstrated are not new. They're just being used in new ways."

One of the show pieces is a pillow covered with material that has been photographically silkscreened. Other pieces employ a method called cyanotype.

More commonly known as "blue print," the process involves treating paper or cloth with light sensitive iron compounds which, when processed, yields a blue image. Some of the cyanotypes on cloth have been mounted, stuffed and stitched to give a three dimensional appearance.

Other processes used for pieces in the show include collage, solarization, chemical staining, inko dye, photogrammming, negative printing, Kodalith and silver and non-silver printing.

Altogether, more than 50 pieces of work will be on display. Hours for the show are noon to 4 p.m. Thursday through Monday. Tours by appointment will be conducted for groups of 20 or less people on Tuesdays and Wednesdays.

Tallman Busy Flying In New 'Hughes' Film

Hollywood's keeping Frank Tallman and his stable of crack stunt pilots busier than ever these days. In contrast to most assignments, Tallman's working on his home grounds this week, winding up shooting for the TV flick "Howard: The Amazing Mr. Hughes" at Orange County Airport. The CBS film is due for network release early this spring.

A few days ago, oldtimers around the airport could have sworn they were back in the days of World War II for a few flashing moments as a P-38 roared over the area on pass after pass, working to get the scene letter perfect.

Old time residents can remember back when the last group of fighter planes stationed at the Santa Ana Army Air Base in 1945, near what is today the county airport, were the twin-tailed P-38s.

The antics of those pilots, particularly the wild mock dog fights with Marine fighters down the road at El Toro are legendary.

It was in a P-38 that a young Howard Hughes crashed just after the war, nearly doing himself in. The county airport sequences lead to that crash that will be filmed in a studio lot using a model plane and all the boom boom stuff that goes with it.

A great deal of the footage for "Hughes" was shot at old Flabob Field near Riverside where Hugnes personally directed the flying scenes for his famed 1928 film classic "Hell's Angel's".

Knowledgeable film makers and pilots agree they are still among the greatest dog fight scenes every recorded.

The choice of ole Flabob was a natural, studio execs told me. Seems the owners of the air field down through the years have succeeded in preserving it just as it was 49 years ago when Hughes made the film there.

Tallman wanted to fly in those recreated combat shots, but injured his bad leg in a freak fall just before filming. He watched on crutches as Art Scholl of Riverside, another of Tallman's famed stunt pilots, stepped in and performed in his place.

Also working in the film are local pilots Frank Pine, Bob Appleby and Tom Mooney. Mooney long ago fought with Pappy Boyington's Black Sheep squadron in the Solomons, in 1942-43.

The film will also show Hughes breaking the world's speed record over the long-gone beet fields of South Santa Ana in 1935. Hughes cracked up that time too, but walked away.

The final "Hughes" footage was still being shot here when Tallman hopped into an old B-25 (a left over from "Catch 22") Tuesday and headed for Seattle to begin shooting "The Other Side of the Mountain" for 20th Century Fox. The man's always on the go.

One last footnote on "Hughes." Observers who knew the billionaire way back when he was only a little old millionaire say Tommy Lee Jones, late of "Jackson County Jail," does a thoroughly professional job portraying Hughes right up to the end of his life. He also bears a striking resemblance to The Man.

Look for Hughes films to tumble out of Hollywood by the truckload after this one. CBS just got there first.

RANDOM RAMBLINGS: At the Beach Ball on the waterfront near the Newport Beach Pier, comedian Denny Johnston, a young up and comer who's appeared with Mike Douglas, Merv Griffin and other top talkies, has the gig this Monday night at 11. Owner Bill Wastek brings in top young comics every Monday and they pack the place.

Regular entertainment fare has Tony Wayne Monday through Wednesday and late Sunday, Stan Orlow on guitar Thursday through Saturday and early Monday, and Bob Gulley, a real crowd pleaser, on guitar (oldies but goodies to acid rock) on the early shift Wednesday through Sunday. Wastek would like to get Gulley on the late shift, he's that good but the guy doesn't like to work past 9:30.

Your agent's nomination for the most politically aware musical group in Orange County – the Grand Jury Probes. Honest it's a jazz group. How "current" can you get? But discount those rumors that their theme song is "Jail House Blues."

Just thought all of George's old friends out there, and they're legion, might want to know where he is and drop by.

Diners Given The Bird...And They Like It

Basketball Now A TV Highlight

Super Bowl is gone.

Football fans will be completely lost this weekend, as there's nothing to look forward to except Monday night's Pro Bowl game up in Seattle's Kingdome. Then it's wait until July, or is it June now when the pro teams start up again?

TV logs for tonight, Saturday and Sunday reflect only the normal fare, with little of a blockbuster nature on the schedule for any of the networks.

Sonny and Cher do show up at 9 tonight on CBS for their regular weekly show and will make Friday their "home" night from now on.

The UCLA and USC basketball teams are up in Northern California, with telecasts scheduled Saturday, and the Lakers are on the tube tonight with another NBC game Sunday.

Otherwise the sports fans have a relatively quiet weekend ahead.

Good time for all to look for other worlds of entertainment, either elsewhere on this page, in Leisuretime Magazine, or other pages of The Register.

ABC Shoots At Reducing Reruns In The Springtime

By LARRY DISTEL
Register TV Editor

Don't look now but those new programs announced by ABC just might turn out to be something in the way of answers to those who complain because of the growing length of the annual rerun season.

The first announcement said the five shows listed so far would be added to the ABC schedule "sometime in March." Now, in clarification, the network said the three announced this week, two announced earlier and one yet to be announced will premiere about the time the rerun season normally would start.

Here is a case of a network already romping along in front of the pack in the ratings taking a strong step to consolidate its position. The move would seem to be the sort of thing to be expected from a network seeking to make a comeback, to recapture an old spot at the top.

Television's record over the years has been one that reflects a gradual reduction in the amount of first-run programming through a season. At one time there were 39 new episodes, with time off for a light-viewing summer of some repeats.

This gradually dropped to fewer first runs, and more reruns, until in recent years most of the prime-time series were made up of from 22 to 24 first-runs, varying numbers of reruns, and a mixture of reruns and new "light" entertainment for the summer.

ABC's announcement now seems to indicate about six months of first-runs on its regular prime-time programs, another three months of prime-time quality first-runs of new shows, and possibly the same mixture of reruns and "light" entertainment during the summer.

The difference could be that many summer reruns of prime-time shows might be first time reruns, and wouldn't resolve into reruns of reruns as has been so often the case.

There is another angle to all this that could work to the advantage of the network, at least in the field of relations with the viewers.

When the new shows come on in March, it will not be following "cancellation" of the series they will replace, the network says. It is entirely possible, says ABC, that the shows replaced and their replacements all might show up on regular prime-time schedules in the fall.

The point is that the Captain and Tennille, for instance, will be making way for one of the new entries, but will not be "cancelled" as such, but will merely be taking a rest for possible return to the schedule in the fall.

This could be a matter of semantics, but it also could prevent heavy complaints from fans of that particular-show if it is clear the show well might be back on the schedule.

Incidentally, "Eight Is Enough" is the comedy drama that will move into the Captain and Tennille time slot at 8 p.m. Mondays, when all this takes effect.

And at 10 p.m. on Tuesdays it will be the new "Westside Medical" taking the place of "Family," another show which probably will be back on the fall schedule.

"Future Cop," the third show announced this week, hasn't been tagged for any particular time, but will be shown in six episodes this spring, running as specials.

"Feather and Father" and "Dog and Cat," previously announced by the network, are both involved in program shifting following the closeout of the Monday night football season, with no indication of what happens when in relation to the baseball season.

ABC has announced also one new comedy will be added to its spring schedule under the same new series replaces old series temporarily programming.

Obviously all this doesn't involved ABC's entire schedule. It would seem it's an experimental move to see what happens to brand new series added to the schedule in early spring, at a time when normality has called for almost all reruns.

The intricacies of the television business could get very involved in all this. Ratings seasons traditionally have run from the start of a new season in the fall through the close of the recognized first-run season, usually around March or April.

Now along comes a front-running network with new shows to run through those spring months. Ratings-wise, first-run shows usually have an edge on the reruns. Does this mean ABC again has set itself up for a surge that will consolidate its ratings position?

I have a feeling the other networks are apt to push for a ratings "year" ending with prime-time first runs, or else ABC is likely to wind up with the biggest entire season ratings lead anyone has chalked up yet.

Of course, it's always possible NBC and CBS might retaliate with some first-run product of their own in an attempt to match ABC, but we'll just have to wait and see about that.

John Soukeras has a nice way of giving his customers the bird at his Pirates Inn in Corona del Mar. But it's hitting him in the pocketbook.

When a patron's ready to pay up, a waitress winds up a mechanical bird in a cage and puts it on the customer's table where the little chirper sings away, then coughs up the tab.

Trouble is, John's customers are so enthralled with the contraptions they've been pirating them away and at $100 a pop — it's got to stop, says John. He's lost six of the gadgets already. Others have been broken.

"If I catch anyone taking them, I'll put THEM in a cage and hand THEM the bill," said John presumably referring to possible slammer time for the light fingered. He's made one change. He's now buying Japanese-made birds for $35 per.

Music-Maker Speaks Mind

And yet money or the lack of it is at the heart of his solution for America, his "system."

By paying workers as little as possible Welk figures they will give their utmost for those little extras, like bonuses. He would eliminate all contracts.

Children would start working early, for little or no money, in jobs "as lowly as possible; having them get coffee or tea or sweep the floor or something," Welk explains. This would teach them the nature of work and discipline.

Employers would become father-figures, treating their employes like children. They would be guided by God's laws, and if they failed to carry out a "holy" directive adequately, then and only then, would unions or the state interfere.

This is the system Welk uses as much as possible, with his own employes.

He points proudly to the Semonski Sisters as exampls of how the system works for children. The parents, ambitious for their six daughters, uprooted them from Florida and moved them to California on the off chance that Welk could use them. Welk moved them into a trailer park that he operates in Escondido Calif., gave the older girls jobs as waitresses and cashiers, and put them through a rigorous training program on the off-chance that they might be useful.

"We try to do something a little extra like that with all our people," he explains.

After a couple of years and several misfires the Semonskis finally got their act together. But it was a near thing, and at no time did Welk promise them a job. They wouldn't have worked as hard if he had, he explains.

Then there's the case of Barney Liddell — to Welk a story of how his system acts as incentive. Liddell, a 24-year orchestra veteran who is "like a kid brother" to Welk, was gaining weight. Welk told him to lose some. He didn't. So Welk fired him.

AID TO ECONOMY

WASHINGTON (AP) — Washington National Airport contributes $348 million a year to the economy of the nation's capital area, according to the Air Transport Assn.

It says, "The direct economic impact of payrolls and expenditures generated by the airport comes to $174 million. Following the standard economic rule that each dollar spent creates another dollar in the economy, the total impact of the airport is $348 million."

Royal Shakespeare Troupe Masterful

By BERNIE WEINER

The past week five members of the Royal Shakespeare Company of Great Britain were in residency at the University of California at Irvine. They gave six master classes and staged two different evening productions at the campus theater.

This reviewer was present for the first performance: "Lovers and Madmen: A Shakespearean Frenzy." In it, under the theme presented in the title, a group of scenes were masterfully done. We saw Shakespearean madness in scenes from "Macbeth," and "Hamlet." There were also King Lear's wandering, Richar II's delusions, Sir Topas' dilemma in "Twelfth Night." On the theme of love there were scenes from "As You Like It," "Love's Labours Lost," "Antony and Cleopatra," "Midsummer Night's Dream," and "Taming of the Shrew."

The company, consisting of Sheila Allen, Richard Pasco, Patrick Stewart, Juliet Aykroyd, and Ben Kingley, has been seen in the U.S. in such productions as "The Suffragettes," "The Prince and The Pauper," "A Walk With Destiny," and "Room At The Top."

They are all master craftsmen and seeing them work is a wonderful theatrical experience. The members of the group are easily in terms of training, body control, and all-around acting one of the best ensembles I have seen in a very long time.

Their production of "Lovers and Madmen" added a unique dimension to Shakespeare that is not possible in a regular performance of one of his plays. By presenting the scenes as separate units they were not rushed with the total concept of the play. Instead by doing each sequence as an independent entity the group was able to develop the total theme of each scene anu bring out every innuendo of Shakespeare's fine writing. It was a really fantastic theatrical experience.

Their second production was called "Groupings and Gropings." It was an anthology of poetry, prose, and songs from John Donne to Bob Dylan.

During the balance of this month and for part of February the Five will be working andperforming at other Universities of California: Jan. 13-15 at Riverside, Feb. 1-5 at Los Angeles, and Feb. 15 -19 at Long Beach. If you missed the Irvine performance you can still catch their productions at the other universities.

NEW "DO" – Ellen Andrews (Jodie Foster) in her daughter's body, gets it a new hairdo in this scene from Walt Disney Production's far-out farce, "Freaky Friday." The story of a 13 year old girl who wish to trade places with her mother comes true is an upcoming release, in color from Disney. Co-stars are Barbara Harris and John Astin.

A New Romance For Old In Brenda Vaccaro's Life

By SHIRLEY EDER
Knight News Wire

About a month ago Brenda Vaccaro said goodby to me in the lobby of the Hilton Hotel in Tehran and said that she and her traveling companion and friend, Kenny Solms, were leaving for Israel. Having never been there before, she was looking forward to the trip. "We might even spend some time in a kibbutz," she said.

I don't know if she met the new man in her life in the kibbutz, but for sure she met and fell in love with a young Israeli named Raphael Shaul. Shaul owns discotheques in Israel.

Brenda, back in Hollywood, currently is working in the movie, "Capricorn One." She's not missing Shaul because he has come over from Israel to spend some time with her.

Casting notes: Has anyone ever said to you, "Oh God, you look like John Denver?" Well, if it's happened and you are a fella, it just might pay off for you.

Producer Jerry Weintraub and director Carl Reiner are, or were, looking for a Denver look-alike to play a scene in the Denver-George Burns movie "Oh God." They very well may have their man by now, since the scene is supposed to be shot in Hollywood next week. But if you do look like Denver and want to take a chance that no one has been found yet, send your photo to Warner Brothers Casting Dept., 4000 Warner Blvd., Burbank, Calif.

SHIRLEBRITIES: Warren Beatty is dating an angel – not his own, however. She's one of "Charlie's Angels," Kate Jackson. If Beatty puts his mind to it, Jackson could very well become "Warren's Angel."

It may not be classy but for sure it's flashy. Ken Harper, producer of "The Wiz," has a neon sign of the show's logo flashing on and off in his Manhattan apartment. After the show's 1,000th performance on Broadway this spring, producer Harper plans to give a party for 1,000 guests that will cost a whole lot more than $1,000.

The O'Jays have formed their own record company called SOC. Translated, SOC means Sound of Cleveland. The company will be headquartered in Cleveland.

Talking about records: Charo has signed a contract to record for Salsoul Records. In English, Charo?!?! Salsoul Records headquarters in Philadelphia. Okay, Motown, you may be sorry you left Detroit for Hollywood.

FLICK FLACK: There should be an announcement soon about a $10 million crime movie titled "Opium." It will begin shooting in March or April and will be on location in Bangkok, Tokyo, Macao and Washington, D.C. Charles Bronson and Toshiro Mifune are set for the leads. It is expected that production costs on "Opium" will be recouped in the Orient alone via preproduction release deals. All these deals have been consummated on the strength of Mifune's name. Now that is what's called superstar power. Bronson's name doesn't hurt either.

You won't be surprised (because I'm telling you about it) if President Ford plays golf with Dinah Shore on television. Dinah's working on that project right this minute.

Ed McMahon is delighted that Columbia has changed the opening date of his movie (also Jane Fonda's and George Segal's), "Fun with Dick and Jane," from January to Feb. 9. Ed figures his drinking buddies will be able to see it clearly by then.

MGM Films To Investigate Theories On Life After Death

"Life After Death," one of the most provocative and controversial motion picture projects in recent years, will be written and produced by Howard B. Kreitsek as a major Metro-Goldwin-Mayer production.

The unique screen drama will be concerned with the phenomona of personal experiences related by those who have been declared clinically dead and have returned to life.

Working with Kreitsek as professional consultants are Dr. Karlis Osis, internationally-known psychologist and director of the American Society for Psychical Research; Dr. Charles A. Garfield, of the Cancer Research Institute, University of California College of Medicine; and other eminent experts in the field.

Kreitsek, a veteran screenwriter and producer became interested in the life-after-death phenomenon six months ago and has since travelled 35,000 miles to consult with experts in the field as well as interviewing dozens of people who have related personal experiences of returning from death to life.

ON BROADWAY

Stoppard's Latest Efforts Poor

By WILLIAM GLOVER
AP Drama Critic

NEW YORK (AP) – Tom Stoppard, winner of several Broadway awards for witty plays, should get a booby prize for his latest effusions.

"Dirty Linen" and "New-Found-Land" are the public aliases of his inane, cheap and, worst of all, tiresome trifles unveiled Tuesday night at the Golden Theater. Considerable success was their previous reward in London, where sniggering farce is a popular commodity.

"Dirty Linen" concerns a House of Commons committee supposedly investigating sexual hanky-panky among the membership when not engaged in parliamentary debates.

The jest centers upon the presence, as the committee's secretary, of a curvy lass who has been out on candlelit dates with just about everyone in Whitehall, including at least one raunchy female M.P.

The affair drifts along in a swirl of those multi-lingual quips that are a Stoppard banality by now: Puns, double-entendres and a gradual shedding of outer and nether garments by the wench whose name is Maddie Gotobed. A lot of the English gags thud like a suet pudding here.

The involved performers in the charade get a breather from breakneck-speed jabber for the sandwiched-in sketch, "New-Found-Land.'

Taking part in it are an old gaffer, deaf but determined to tell how he once won five pounds from Lloyd George, and a younger Home Office minion who is trying to clear up some citizenship applications.

One of the requests is from an American, which opens the way for the skit's raison d'etre, a long, chaotic and occasionally humorous journey through U.S. geography and history.

That piece of ham delivered, the other soggy slice of "Dirty Linen" is quickly slapped on to end the dubious entertainment.

The works were reasonably enough directed by Ed Berman. According to a Stoppard note, Berman's British naturalization triggered the entire undertaking.

Among the performers, Remak Ramsay, Francis Bethencourt and Merwin Goldsmith are the most egregious lawmakers; Cecilia Hart, the nubile cupcake; and Humphrey Davis, the inner play's breathless harangue.

Lawrence King and Michael H. Yeargan have supervised the original London design by Gabriella Falk that matches the scruffy, smudged script to a fare-thee-well. Which is what the entire production also deserves.

Wild Dogs Theme Of Terror Film Going Into Production

By MARY GANZ
Associated Press Writer

BODEGA BAY, Calif. (AP) – This tiny coastal community, invaded by critters once before when Alfred Hitchcock filmed "The Birds," soon will be menaced by a new cinematic terror – wild dogs.

Weintraub-Heller Productions, Inc., will begin filming in February with a crew of actors, technicians and mutts.

The movie will be called "The Pack" (not "Jowls," as someone suggested). Co-producer Paul Heller said Bodega Bay's craggy Pacific Ocean coastline will be used to portray a New England resort island off-season.

Heller said the plot centers on a band of bowsers who, left behind when their tourist-owners abandoned the island for the winter, prey on livestock and eventually threaten the villagers.

"It's probably going to be the most complex animal stunt picture ever undertaken," said Heller in an interview from his Los Angeles office.

He said trainers have been at work rehearsing the 18 dogs and their doubles since July.

"One of the biggest problems in training is to get a pack of dogs that will work together and be compatible," Heller said. "It's like putting 18 actors together without fighting."

He said about half the dogs are mongrels and half are breeds, but he said all will be made up to look like mutts.

Not all the human parts for the $2 million movie have been cast yet, but Heller said the lead will be Joe Don Baker of "Walking Tall."

Heller said it is a movie with a message.

"As you know, people pollute with animals," he said. "They go off and leave them. They pick up a couple of dogs from the pound or something so they can play with their kids for the summer, then they leave them.

"This is about that group of people and the dogs that have become threatening."

Liz Brady, administrator of California's Motion Picture Development Council, said the movie makes an important statement: "Don't litter the countryside," she said, "whether it's with cans, bottles or dogs."

She said the problem of "wild" dogs attacking sheep and other livestock is acute near California's state and national parks, where tourists take their pets on vacation and lose or abandon them.

The movie is based on a book by Dave Fisher and screenplay by Robert Clouse, who also directs.

Heller denied the story is a spin-off from "Jaws."

"With 'Jaws' the monster was unknown," he said. "Here you're dealing with an enemy in a sense who is very close to man."

He said Humane Society representatives would supervise the filming to make sure man's best friend doesn't get hurt crashing through windows and doing other fearsome stunts.

Inner-Tubing In Snow Can Break Backs

LOS ANGELES AP – There's more than one way to break your bones on the ski slopes – lots of people end up with crushed vertebrae after inner-tubing, an orthopedic surgeon said Monday.

The vertebrae injury is "fairly unique to the inner-tuber," said Dr. Michael D. Roback, adding the injury is "frequently is seen in very young children using large inner tubes" to zoom down mountainsides.

"As the inner tube accelerates, it starts to bounce higher and higher until the child slips down the center hole. The child strikes the ground with his back and buttocks," the doctor said. "The result is a severely painful spine fracture which requires bed rest for a prolonged period of time."

He said in one recent case at the Southern California ski resort of Big Bear, an 18-month-old girl and her 36-year-old mother rode an inner tube together. The child sustained a broken thigh bone and the mother a fractured tailbone.

Medieval-Renaissance Group To Play At UCI

"Music for a While," a New York-based medieval and Renaissance chamber music ensemble, will perform at UC Irvine Tuesday, January 18.

The concert, sponsored by the UCI Committee for Arts, will be held at 8 p.m. in the UCI Fine Arts Village Concert Hall.

Program selections will focus on Franco-Flemish music of the 15th and 16th Centuries featuring works by such composers as Guillermus Dufay, Heinrich Isaak and Josquin des Pres.

"Music for a While," established in 1970, has rapidly become popular with a growing audience of medieval and Renaissance chamber music enthusiasts. The five members of the group are artists in residence at Sarah Lawrence College where they participate in a graduate program in early music.

College Band Concert Set

John Philip Sousa's "Sabre and Spurs," the march of the United States Army's Cavalry, will stir things up – musically – tonight when the Fullerton College Music Department presents the Concert Band in the Campus Theatre.

Under the baton of Larry Lowder, the 8 p.m. public concert will feature saxophone soloist Randy Hoover, pianist Allison Graham, the Saxophone Ensemble and the Trombone Quartet.

Now You Know

Among 14 year old boys in 1890, 23 were reported to be married, one divorced and none widowed, according to the U S Census Bureau.

French Actor Signs Pact

French stage and motion picture star Francis Huster has been signed by Claude Lelouch to co-star in "Another Man, Another Woman," a United Artists release starring James Caan and Genevieve Bujold.

Huster is currently co-starred in Lelouch's international box office smash, "If You Had To Do It All Over Again," starring Catherine Deneuve and Anouk Aimee, and plays Jeanne Moreau's young lover in "Lumiere," the movie directed by the French actress.

In his American motion picture debut, Huster portrays a French photographer who emigrates with his wife, Ms. Bujold, to the West in the 1870's "Another Man, Another Woman." Lelouch's first American-made film, is being directed by Lelouch from his own screenplay with Alexandre Mnouchkine producing.

DIAMOND ANNIVERSARY – Members of the Placentia Round Table observed the 75th anniversary of the organization's founding during its January activities. The club was founded on January 15, 1902, to cultivate literary interests. Jan. 9-16 was named 'Round Table Week', by the Placentia City Council this year to mark the occasion. Mrs. Leon Gillilan, a past president and 50-year member, examines a historical record of the organization with two newer members, Mrs. Dale Kingseed, left, and Mrs. Charles Barnes. Round Table became a member of the California Federation of Women's Clubs in 1913. A Junior Round Table was organized in 1952. The two groups perform social, cultural services for women in the Placentia area.

SLIM GOURMET

Thrifty Meal-Size Soup Is A 'Scot' With Calories

BY BARBARA GIBBONS

Rich with flavor, thick with barley and vegetables, our Slim Gourmet "Scotch Broth" is a meal in a bowl! Not only hearty but economical (because it recycles the meaty bones from leftover lamb or any other meat.) Must be one reason the Scots got their reputation for thriftiness!

Generally, the word "broth," implies a thin soup, but the traditional Scotch Broth is so thick and chunky it's more like stew than soup. However, our version is thin about calories.

That's because we make it a day ahead so that every greasy glob of fat can rise to the surface and be skimmed away.

Scotch Broth is traditionally made with barley, a tasty, slow-cooking grain that's less fattening, more filling and fiber-rich than rice or noodles. After 45 minutes of gentle simmering, barley cooks up soft and plump, and helps to thicken the soup.

Lamb is also traditional, but you can make this soup with the meaty bones from a leftover roast beef, veal or fresh ham roast ... even a meaty turkey frame; the meatier the better. (The actual calorie count depends, of course, on how much meat goes into your soup. Our counts are estimates only.)

'SCOTCH BROTH'

meaty bones leftover from a roast lamb (or other meat)
2 quarts water
2 teaspoons salt
optional: One-half teaspoon MSG
3 tablespoons medium pearl barley
2 onions, peeled and quartered
3 ribs of celery with leaves, cut in 1 and one-quarter-inch lengths
4 carrots, sliced
3 or 4 sprigs of fresh parsley, chopped

A day ahead put the meaty lamb bones in a stockpot or pressure cooker. Add water, salt and MSG. Cover and simmer 1 and one-half hours (just 30 minutes in a pressure cooker) until meat falls easily from the bone.

Allow to cool, then reserve meat and discard bones. Refrigerate overnight.

Lift hardened fat from the surface of the soup and discard.

Reheat. Add barley and vegetables, then simmer until barley is soft, about 45 minutes. Each meal-size serving (about one cup meat and vegetables plus one cup fat-skimmed broth) under 200 calories.

Here's another meal-size barley and vegetable soup, Italian-style:

'BARLEYSTRONE'

meaty turkey frame or meaty bones from leftover veal roast
20-ounce can Italian tomatoes, broken up
5 cups water
2 teaspoons salt (or garlic-salt)
optional: one-half teaspoon MSG
1 teaspoon fennel seeds
1 teaspoon oregano or Italian seasonings
3 tablespoons medium pearl barley
4 onions, peeled and quartered
1 carrot, sliced
1 cup raw cabbage, chopped
One quarter cup fresh parsley, chopped (preferably Italian parsley)
Sprinkle of Parmesan cheese, optional

Combine meaty bones, tomatoes, water, salt, MSG, fennel seeds and oregano. Cover and cook according to preceding directions. Cool; strip meat; discard bones; chill.

Next day skim fat and add remaining ingedients. Cook according to preceding recipe's directions until barley is tender. (Serve with a scant sprinkle of grated Parmesan cheese, if desired.) Under 200 calories a serving (one cup meat and vegetables plus one cup fat-skimmed broth.)

Eggplant parmigiana, chicken cacciatore, spaghetti, meatballs and more! For these and more "the low-calorie way" send a stamped, self-addressed envelope and 25 cents to SLIM GOURMET ITALIAN RECIPES, in care of the Register, Sparta, N.J. 07871.

Can Plants Have A Good Life In Plastic Pots?

By LYNN AND JOEL RAPP

DEAR MOTHER EARTH

Dear Mother Earth: Most of my plants are in plastic pots. They seem to be doing well, but I've heard that plastic isn't good for them? Should I transplant them into clay pots? – M.S., Denver, Colo.

Dear M.S.: Plants are usually sold in plastic pots because they are lightweight, unbreakable and inexpensive to ship. Plants need less water in plastic pots and can live for a long time if you are careful about not overwatering. There are some very attractive plastic pots on the market. We particularly like the clear, lucite-like pots because you can see the roots growing.

Clay pots have certain advantages. They are heavier and less likely to tip over, and because of the porosity they dry out more quickly if you are heavy-handed with your water. And they are natural.

By using the double-potting we can use the clay pots and virtually eliminate their frequent watering demands.

The clay pot is set within another, the bottom of which is lined with broken clay pots or gravel, and the space between the pots is stuffed with sphagnum moss. Water is then poured onto the moss rather than into the inner pot, and it seeps through the clay walls to moisten the soil within.

One advantage of double potting is that the moisture transfer through the clay pot walls is not only constant but it is gradual as well. The soil can thus be readily maintained on the dry side; that is, with barely enough moisture to maintain the plant without encouraging fast growth. Because of this slow but even supply of moisture, double-potted plants live beautifully for years indoors. Happy growing!

ORANGE COUNTY Guide to Good Eating

An exciting hotel in Orange County is the Newport Beach MARRIOTT located on Newport Center Drive across from Fashion Island. Last Friday night I attended a delightful wine-gourmet dinner and (because it lasted past midnight) decided to spend the night. The place was really bustling with happy friendly folks especially since the Oakland Raiders were staying there.

The banquet, honoring the graduates of a wine course given by San Antonio Winery under the direction of wine master Wolfgang Schoeppler, was a huge success. It began with a clear curry-flavored beef consomme with cheese straws accompanied by a pale 1905 sherry. Next came huge mushroom caps filled with slightly garlic-buttered escargot.

We were then served galantine of pheasant and of trout accompanied by Winzenheimer Rosenheck. The filet of salmon was poached with Armagnac. The wine was Chablis Premier Cru. Then (to refresh our palate) came Champagne sherbet.

The main course was tournedos Beaugency Bouquetiere, two tender beef filets surrounded by fresh vegetables plus a broiled tomato, noisette of potatoes and fresh broccoli. Our delicious wine was a red Chateau des Captains Fleurie. Our salad served in the French manner after the main entree) was a Boston bibb lettuce vinaigrette, decorous with a cherry tomato and croutons.

The Marriott is a pleasant place for an escape week-end. You may begin on Friday with dinner in the King's Wharf where you will enjoy a marvelous cup of Red Snapper soup and selections from a bountiful salad bar. The main entrees include live Maine lobster, choice steaks, prime rib, king crab and several seafood dishes. In the adjacent Main Brace Lounge there is Disco for your dancing pleasure.

Next morning you may enjoy breakfast in your luxurious room or on the Capriccio Terrace. I decided to have mine in my room with its spectacular view of the lush green golf course below, horizoned by the blue waters of the Pacific Ocean. Everything was served beautifully, quick and hot by a lovely California miss, tanned with long blond sunstreaked hair and dressed in white pants and a nautical striped shirt.

The rest of the weekend can be enjoyed swimming and lazing in the hydro-massage pools plus other fun activities such as golf, tennis, shopping at Fashion Island (a beautiful new Bullock's Wilshire will open soon). Saturday night enjoy dinner and piano bar entertainment featuring Wally Ruth in the Capriccio Cafe with International menu of crepes, quiche Lorraine and other specialty dishes. Sunday morning was topped off by a Champagne brunch. Checkout time is 5 p.m. on Sunday. The cost for all is $59.50 per person (double occupancy) plus tax and tips. There is also a delightful Tennis Weekend. Call them. Incidentally the fine chef at the Marriott who had charge of the wine dinner was Rolf Jung.

You may dance to the nostalgic sounds of the big bands every Tuesday night in the HYATT HOUSE Showplace Disco lounge in Anaheim across from Disneyland.

Benny Goodman, Glen Miller, Jimmy and Tommy Dorsey ... will live again in marvelous quadrophonic sound. The disco music of today will be featured every Wednesday through Monday with the talented John Easton Stuart Show every Thursday, Friday and Saturday evenings. As an added attraction on Friday and Saturday nights, The Gong Show will offer outstanding amateur talent. Why not go early for dinner in Daisy's Market, and later move across to the lounge?

We goofed last week .... Two of my write ups were accidently mingled in our back shop. So I will try again ....

Many restaurants are featuring specials this month. THE KETTLE RESTAURANT in Anaheim on Lincoln just west of Euclid is offering steak dinners at $3.95. The Tuesday night specialty is the popular Delmonico while Wednesday night you will enjoy the 8-ounce petite filet mignon. Both dinners include soup and salad, a relish dish, choice of potato, hot sourdough bread, coffee, tea or milk.

The SAN FRANCISCAN RESTAURANT in Newport Beach on Westcliff Drive is again featuring prime rib for $6.95 (a child's plate is $2.95). Dinner begins with soup or salad. The entree is accompanied by cheese stuffed baked potato, vegetable du jour, hot San Franciscan bread, cheese pie, ice cream or chocolate mousse. This dinner is served Sunday through Thursday from 5 until 10 p.m., Friday and Saturday from 5 until 7:30 (closed Monday). Entertainment-dancing is featured nightly in the lounge with The Fellowship playing from 8:30 until 1:30. Sunday night is Dixieland at it's best with Tommy Mullinix and his Dixie Halo's from 7:30 until 11:30 p.m. Call for reservations.

Roberta Linn and her show will be appearing this Sunday night at MR. MIKE'S in Santa Ana on Edinger and the Newport Freeway. This is a beautiful restaurant, offering delicious prime rib, steaks, lamb, seafood and excellent entertainment every night featuring The Bill McClure Show Tuesday through Saturday. Monday night is Danny Diaz night while Sunday is guest night featuring name entertainers. Be sure to make reservations.

You won't believe the crowds that pack into KENNY & STU'S FRENCH QUARTER nightly to see and dance to the music of Chris Wade and his group. I was there last Thursday night and almost couldn't find a seat. Chris is a charmer and a talented young man from Scotland who truly knows how to please his audiences. Chris sings and plays several instruments and is backed by a fine trio. Eric Jones is on guitar, Bob Dawson is on drums and Lloyd Nolan is at the organ. THE FRENCH QUARTER is in Anaheim at Knott and Ball. Stop and give them a try – it's a great spot for the "now" of today.

Handsome, talented Frank Sydell and Company are appearing Tuesday through Saturday in the lounge of the impressive LAKESIDE RESTAURANT in Newport Beach on MacArthur across from Orange County Airport.

A great spot for dinner and dancing, Lakeside has 86 entrees on the menu for your selection that include veal, beef, fowl, lamb, pork, seafood .... Two favorite dishes of mine are the New York pepper steak prepared with cracked pepper, bacon bits, scallions and sauce Madeira and the veal sweetbreads, Mascotte prepared with mushrooms, hearts of artichoke, green onions and sauce Espagnole. There are 20 hot and 20 cold appetizers too. And, while you dine, you will enjoy the window view of a beautiful lake with ducks, geese ... Call for reservations

I can hardly wait for HOULIHAN'S OLD PLACE to open on the 20th of January. What a place this is going to be! The location is Von Karman near Campus Drive. It promises to be a restaurant extraordinaire featuring everything on the menu from escargot to ice cream sodas. Open seven days a week, it will offer lunch, dinners, cocktails, Sunday brunch. More on this after it opens.

SEXIST DINING?

Ambrosia, Chez Cary Stick To Old Custom

LOS ANGELES (AP) – The old restaurant custom is fading, but not fast enough for those women who want to know if chateaubriand is going to break their escort.

"It's just a matter of haute cuisine and savoir faire, not women's lib," says Bernard Jacoupy, food and beverage director at one posh downtown restaurant.

A few Southern California restaurants still give women a menu without the prices listed. It's an old European custom and still is prevalent in Paris.

It happened in Palm Springs and the lady was not amused. She was, in fact, offended.

"I immediately called the waiter over, pointed to my husband and loudly complained that here I was, taking my lover out for dinner, and they had given him the menu with prices," said the woman, who asked for anonymity.

"My husband was horrified, but the waiter rather quickly brought me another menu. I know it's supposed to be high class, but I guess I'm just not an elegant lady."

Besides the Palm Springs restuarant, the custom is practiced at Chez Cary in Orange, the Ambrosia in Newport Beach and Bernard's in downtown Los Angeles.

The purpose, the managers say, is not to "inconvenience" the ladies with such matters as prices. It might also encourage them to order a more expensive dish if they don't know the price.

But Bernard's is often visited by women executives and attorneys and the practice is not appreciated, they say.

Jacoupy said "some women lawyers" who dine there get menus with prices – and any men with them get menus without prices.

At Chez Cary, manager Mary Louise Frazier said, "We do not trouble our ladies with prices. We try to pamper our ladies."

Geril Muller, owner of the Ambrosia, said, "It is very rude to be a guest and have prices in front of you. You never show a lady the price of what she orders. A lady is a lady and should not be involved in prices."

But what if the lady objects?

"What is there to be offended about?" Muller asked. "If the lady feels offended or discriminated against, tough luck. She can go elsewhere."

Muller added, "You can put down that we are most stubborn about this issue."

The Women's Lawyers Association of Los Angeles also admits to being stubborn about the issue.

Lelia Honig Jabin, president, and Carol E. Schatz, recording secretary, said, "We find the practice offensive and hope those involved would think again about the intelligence of the custom."

Comedy Fare At Med Building

ORANGE – Israel Cafe offers its "Comedy Cabaret" program Saturday evening in the banquet hall of the Orange County Medical Association Building at 300 S. Flower.

A periodic presentation of Israel Academy, Israel Cafe is a nightclub offering Jewish program and cuisine to the total community. Now in its fifth year, Israel Cafe has been called "the only night club in the world whose Saturday night program starts with Havdalah". (Havdalah is a brief but colorful religious ceremony, utilizing wine, mixed spices and a multi-wicked candle, to bid farewell to the Sabbath.)

Included on the program are entertainment by Will Teague, former member of the Christy Minstrels, the magical violin of Sol Sloan and dancing to the music of the Melody Makers.

Student Musicians Needed

COSTA MESA – A new musical entity will tune up for the first time at Orange Coast College this spring.

The Opera Theatre Orchestra, which is recruiting instrumentalists interested in pit orchestra experience and training, will meet Wednesdays from 4-7 p.m. in Fine Arts Hall 119. Students interested in joining the orchestra should enroll in Music 138AD.

Spring classes begin Feb. 7.

During the course of the semester the Opera Theatre Orchestra will perform the Brahm's "Requiem," and Mozart's "Cosi Fan Tutte,"

Spring registration runs Jan. 4 through Feb. 1 by appointment. Open registration, on a drop-in basis, will be held Feb. 2-10. Registration appointments may be secured in OCC's Admissions and Records Office.

OCC courses are tuition-free to persons who have lived in California for at least one year. Students pay only a $5 health services fee at the time of registration.

CONCERTIZING – Coloratura Jan Schmidt of Orange, right, and Carol Stewart, a member of the piano faculty at the Univ. of Southern California, will appear in concert Sunday at Bowers Museum, 2002 N. Main, Santa Ana. Dr. Stewart and Mrs. Schmidt will perform virtuoso works for voice and piano by such varied composers as Leonard Bernstein, Frederic Chopin, Charles Ives and Joaquin Rodrigo. There is no charge for the 3 p.m. concert.

Booking Partnership For Touring Artists

WASHINGTON (AP) – The Kennedy Center for the Performing Arts and the Metropolitan Opera has announced an agreement to book U.S. tours by renowned performing companies from abroad.

The first company to appear will be the Stuttgart Ballet. It will perform at the Kennedy Center, May 24-June 12; the Metropolitan Opera House, June 14-July 2; Robin Hood Dell in Philadelphia, July 5-7; Garden State Arts Center, New Jersey, July 8-10; Airie Crown Theater, Chicago, week of July 11.

Announcement of the new partnership was made at a joint news conference by Roger L. Stevens and Martin Feinstein, chairman and executive director of the Kennedy Center, and Anthony A. Bliss, executive director of the Metropolitan Opera.

The Kennedy Center has in the past initiated engagements for such companies as Berlin Opera, La Scala, and Paris Opera, while the Bolshoi and other operas were booked jointly with S. Hurok. Metropolitan productions were formerly booked by the Hurok organization, but now are handled independently.

General Manager Says:

I was born and raised in the car business. I've always detested the systems that some dealerships have used in the past. I believe you have the right to know all the facts before being obligated to a contract. The reputation of the auto sales people is due for a change...that "change" has been made here.
